POLITICS, NATION'S CURSE, HAS ENTERED INTO WHOLE WAR PROGRAM, SAID LANE

Wheat for Needy Europe Delayed; Hoover Said List of 800 Cars on McAdoo's Desk for a Week JAPANESE WORRIES ARE TOLD

This is the FIFTH article in a series selected from "The Letters of Franklin K. Lane." Another will be printed tomorrow. (Copyright, 1922, by Anne W. Lane)

February 25, 1918.

As I entered the building this morning Dr. Parsons of the bureau of mines met me. I asked how the cyanide plant was getting on. His reply was to ask if he might request the war department to allow us to make the contract—that he could have the whole thing done in two days. This is where we are at the end of more than six months of effort. It is hopeless! We find the process, everything—but cannot get the contract, through the intricate, infinite fault-finders and negligence of the war department.

Manning came to see me to say that he expected, after the Overman bill was passed, that the President would take over the gas work—order it into the war department. He had been asked twice if he could be tempted by a uniform into that department, and had said that he was freer as a civilian—had planned the work and gathered the force as a civilian, and would not leave the department. He felt damned sore and indignant, that a work so well done should be the subject of envy, and possibly be made less effective and useful.

Everitt Macy lunched with me and told me the sad story of the mishandling of labor affairs by the shipping board. He had gone to the Pacific Coast and with his colleagues, Coolidge and others, made an agreement with the shipbuilding trades. Five dollars and twenty-five cents for machinists, etc. In Seattle, however, because of one firm's bidding for labor, he felt that there would have to come a strike before this schedule would be accepted. Before he got back the threatened strike came, and then the demand of the men for a 10 per cent bonus was acceded to, upsetting all other settlements in San Francisco, Portland, Los Angeles, etc. Result, 10 per cent gain everywhere. And now the eastern and southern men ask the Pacific scale, and he can't see how it can be avoided, nor can I. They will have to standardize all wages. Poor chap, his advice was scorned, for he protested against the bonus being given to Seattle, and as he said, "If it had not been war-time I would have resigned." To increase the men in the south, to this unprecedented scale, will not get more ships, he fears, but less, for they will not work if they have wages in four days equal to seven days' needs. I advised for standardization. He said the navy wouldn't hear of it, as it would demoralize their yards.

Politics, politics, curse of the country! It has gotten into the whole war program. Hoover and McAdoo are at swords drawn. Hoover had a cable signed by the three premiers, George, Clemenceau and Orlando, crying for wheat and charging us with not keeping our word—and starvation threatening all three countries—in fact, almost sure, because we have not been able to get the wheat to the ships; and with starvation will come revolution, if it gets bad enough. I asked Hoover about this on Sunday night. He said that a list of 800 cars had been on McAdoo's desk for a week.

(McChord of the interstate commerce commission said on the bench today that he thought Hoover 75 per cent right).

Wilson Balked at Sending Men to Siberia

March 1, 1918. Yesterday, at cabinet meeting, we had the first real talk on the war in weeks, yes, in months! Burleson brought up the matter of Russia. I would we support Japan in taking Siberia, or even Vladivostok? Should we join Japan actively—in force?

The President said "No," for the very practical reason that we had no ships. We had difficulty in providing for our men in France and for our allies (the President never uses this word, saying that we are not "allies"). How hopeless it would be to carry everything 7000 or 8000 miles—not only men and munitions, but food!—for Japan has none to spare, and none we could eat. Her men feed on rice and smoked fish, and she cannot eat anything we would eat. Nor could the country support us. So there was an end of talking of an American force in Siberia! Yes, we were needed—perhaps as a guarantee of good faith on Japan's part that she would not go too far, nor stay too long. But we would not do it. And besides, Russia would not like it, therefore we must keep hands off and let Japan take the blame and the responsibility.

The question is not simple, for Russia will say that we threw her to Japan, and possibly she would rush into Germany's arms as the lesser of evils. My single word of caution was to so act that Russia, when she "came back," should not hate us, for there was our new land for development—Siberia—and we should have front place at that table, if we did not let our fears and our hatred and our contempt get away with us now.

Daniels whispered today that Russia had five fast cruisers in the Baltic, which could raid the Atlantic and put our ships off the sea. He had wired Sims to see if they couldn't be sunk. I hope it is not too late; surely England must have done something on so important a matter, though she is slow in thinking. And how is anyone to get there with the Baltic full of submarines and mines! The thought is horrible, the possibilities! We certainly have made a bad fist of things Russian from the start. They have deserted us because they were trying to drive the cart ahead of the horse; economical revolution before political revolution, socialism ahead of liberty with law. And they know we are capitalistic, because we do not approve or socialism or force.

No Talk of War at Cabinet Meeting

March 12, 1918. Nothing talked of at cabinet that would interest a nation.

Dead Bandit

PAUL HEINER, paroled convict, killed after bank robbery yesterday.

2 HOMES BURNED; 11 MEET DEATH

Mother Fatally Hurt While Attempting Rescue of Sleeping Children.

EUGENE, Ore., Dec. 7.—Six children and a mother were burned to death and one child and three more adults were burned severely when a can of gasoline used to start a fire at the home of Ivor Johnson in the west part of the town exploded last night.

Two more victims of the tragic fire died this morning. Mrs. Ivor Johnson, mother of two little ones who died in the flames which gutted a two-family residence, succumbed to fatal burns, and four-year-old Hazel Church joined her two brothers and sister in the grim death all which has shocked all Eugene.

The dead: Orvil Church, aged 5. Ida Church, aged 3. William Church, aged 6. Hazel Church, aged 4. Marvel Johnson, aged 4. Leroy Johnson, aged 2. Mrs. Ivor Johnson. Severely burned: Clifford Johnson, aged 1. Mr. and Mrs. James Church. Ivor Johnson.

Two families occupied the small house that was destroyed. Ivor Johnson and his wife and three children and James Church and wife, who lived with them, had six children, of from four to twelve years of age.

CHARRED BODIES FOUND IN BED. The charred bodies of four of the children, a girl and three boys, were taken to the morgue, charred beyond recognition. Three of them were found on a bed and one of them beneath the bed.

Four of the children were found dead in the ruins of the home, one died three hours later in a hospital, and Hazel Church, the sixth, died during the morning.

The explosion and fire resulted when Mrs. Johnson, according to her husband, by mistake poured gasoline from a large can, instead of kerosene, as was her custom, in the stove to start a fire. "It all happened so quickly that the older people present had no time to save the children," said Johnson as he lay on a hospital cot here this morning.

Leroy Johnson, aged 2, died at the hospital about 11:30 o'clock last night.

FOUR CHILDREN DIE IN CHICAGO BLAZE. BY ASSOCIATED PRESS. LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE. CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Four of the six children of Joseph and Veronica Budak were burned to death when the parents and their two remaining children were severely burned in a fire early today that partially destroyed their home. It was believed by firemen that the blaze was started by an over-heated stove.

The dead are: MARY BUDAK, 13 years of age. SOPHIE BUDAK, 9 years of age. JOHN, 3 years of age. EVA, 15 months old. The injured: Michael, 16 years old. Anna, 12 years old.

Heat from the flames awoke the elder son and the father, who ran to warn Mrs. Budak and the children, sleeping in a rear bedroom. But the flames so enveloped the rear of the house that they were unable to gain an entrance. The father was burned severely in the attempt. Within a few moments, the fire department, called by a pedestrian, had arrived and members rescued the mother and daughter and carried out the dead bodies of the four children.

The four injured were taken to a hospital, where physicians said in all probability they would recover.

DEAD BANDIT IDENTIFIED; EX-CONVICT

Paul Heiner, Sent to Prison For Nine Years in 1917 For Robbery, Paroled in 1921, Victim in Bank Raid

Desperado Recognized As Recently Employed At the Palo Alto Base Hospital Under Alias "Caleb West"

On a slab at the morgue lies the bullet riddled body of Paul Heiner, paroled convict, the twentieth century replica of the fictional Lone Wolf, a silent testimonial to the accuracy of Oakland's shotgun squad.

Heiner was killed at Twelfth and Oak streets yesterday after a chase, punctuated by shooting from the town of Danville, where he robbed the branch of the San Ramon Valley bank of $7,695.48.

His identification was established today through the finger-print system and he lived at Palo Alto under the name of Calvin West, an employee of the Palo Alto base hospital, according to Major L. L. Kennedy, personnel officer at the base hospital.

Heiner, who was sentenced to nine years in Folsom penitentiary for the robbery of Archie Stewart here on Seventeenth street and Broadway in 1917, was paroled on February 28, 1921.

NEW CRIME ENDS IN BANDIT'S DEATH. Yesterday he appeared in Danville and perpetrated one of the most daring hold-ups in the crime history of the county and seemed to bear a charmed life until he met the local police squad on the dam at Lake Merritt and was shot to death.

Unrivalled in song or story is this tale of the Twentieth Century replica of the Gallic thug who showed himself coolness personified as he executed his well-laid plan, stopped in the face of nothing, defied the police of Danville and figured in a sensational cross-country chase.

The capture was ultra dramatic and was effected in the presence of hundreds of awe-stricken passers-by, including a street car full of passengers who, imprisoned through the action of the car crew in closing the gates, saw the battle to the death by the police and the bandit.

Sitting in the tonneau of the bullet-bombed bandit machine was a small boy who had asked for a "lift," unconscious of the character of the man with whom he wished to ride. Proof of the daring of the bandit is to be seen in his action, stopping his car to give the boy a ride, at the height of the chase.

BELIEVED TO BE HOSPITAL EMPLOYEE. The dead man was an orderly at Palo Alto base hospital No. 24 for the past year and who left the hospital suddenly on December 2. Officers at the hospital give West a good record.

At two o'clock yesterday afternoon a stranger clad in a cravenette and a rain-hat, walked with business-like tread up to the teller's window at the Danville bank. H. H. Daley, assistant cashier, was suddenly alerted by the man's action, stopping him and putting him to the window Daley smiled a pleasant good afternoon. He turned to arrange the last pile of currency.

When he turned his head again he was gazing along the barrels of two revolvers held in the hands of a man whose face was frozen with ferocious intent.

"Pick up your hands! Put 'em up!" he yelled. "Stand still! One move and I'll kill you!"

Daley did not move again. He said the ferociousness in the man's face warned him that he would be as good as his word. Daley stood paralyzed with fear, hoping that his partner, H. C. Rasmussen, the only other employee in the bank, who was in a room at the rear, would see what was going on and get help.

"Turn around!" ordered the bandit, and Daley complied, instantly. Then the bandit asked: "How do you open this door?"

He referred to the door at the side of the rounded cashier's cage which gives entrance not only to the cage but to the vault, the door of which was standing open.

Daley told the robber that the keys to the smaller door were inside and that the door was locked. He was ordered to proceed slowly to the door and open it. This he did.

"Now lay down on the floor and turn over your boys," demanded the bandit, who was a white man, a shotgun with which a nine-year-old son was playing.

TWO IRISH STATESMEN SHOT DOWN

Sean Hales, Member of Dail, Killed and Deputy Speaker Patrick O'Malley Wounded By Assassins in Dublin

Acts of Violence Occur As Free State Government Is Inaugurated; Rebels Take Cork County Barracks

DUBLIN, Dec. 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—President Cosgrave announced to the parliament this afternoon that Deputy Sean Hales had been shot and killed and Deputy Patrick O'Malley, who was deputy speaker, had been wounded while they were on their way to the parliament session.

The two victims were on a jaunting car proceeding along the quays when they were attacked with revolvers. Deputy Speaker O'Malley's wound is serious.

After President Cosgrave's announcement, Minister of Defense Mulcahy rose and said: "These men did not have a priest, nor were they asked if they would see their relatives."

All the members of the parliament rose as a mark of sympathy.

These are the first acts of violence reported during the inauguration of the Free State government. O'Malley was elected deputy speaker of the Dail, or lower house of the Free State parliament, at yesterday's session when the members took the oath of allegiance. Hales was returned from South Carok in the last parliamentary elections, running as a pro-treaty candidate on the panel ticket framed by the opposing factions.

REBELS CAPTURE FREE STATE BARRACKS. CORK, Dec. 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Two hundred rebels captured the barracks at Ballymacar, near Macroom, yesterday, killing a man and wounding fifteen. The rebels took thirty prisoners, including Commandant Mooney, after a fight lasting several hours, but released them later.

The fight was the fiercest yet reported in County Cork. Before advancing on the barracks the rebels captured an armored car at Brandon, which they used, together with twenty machine guns and bombs in their attack on the troops defending the village.

The Free State military was eventually outnumbered and forced to surrender.

LONDON, Dec. 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—A suggestion that King George may go to Dublin to open formally the new Irish parliament, as advanced by the Liverpool Courier, seems based partly on surmise and partly on private rumors. Although the possibility of the king's presence has taken no definite shape, it is safe to say that if Ireland intimidated such a visit would be welcome, the sovereign would acquiesce. It is regarded as quite unlikely, however, that his majesty would take the initiative.

BOMB BURIED AT MILITARY CAR. CORE, Dec. 7.—(By Associated Press.)—A powerful bomb was thrown at a military car this afternoon. The missile did not reach its mark, but exploded nearby, wounding two men and two women. The bomb thrower escaped.

ULSTER "CONTRACTS OUT" OF IRISH FREE STATE. BELFAST, Dec. 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Both houses of the Ulster parliament voted unanimously today to "contract out" of the Irish Free State, as permitted under the Anglo-Irish treaty.

Rail Wages Increases Total $1,800,000 BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE. CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Wage increases totalling approximately $1,800,000 annually for maintenance of the Pennsylvania railroad system have been granted by the road after conferences between the management and employees' representatives, John G. Rodgers, vice-president of the northwestern region of the Pennsylvania announced here today.

Hinton Hops Off At Para, Brazil PARA, Brazil, Dec. 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Lieutenant Walter Hinton resumed his New York to Rio Janeiro airplane flight today. He started for Maranhao down the coast, with the intention of stopping at Braganca to replenish his gasoline supply.

Boy, Playing With Gun, Hurts Three BY ASSOCIATED PRESS. LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE. COLUMBUS, Mo., Dec. 7.—Mrs. Louis Kuch and two daughters, aged 5 and 2, are in a hospital here dangerously wounded as a result of the accidental discharge of a shotgun with which a nine-year-old son was playing.

Short and Ugly Word Stirs Judge's Ire Against Women

GRACE DARMOND, screen actress, who, with her mother, Mrs. Alice Darmond, was ejected from court during a civil action because they yelled "Liar" at a witness and at the defendant.

Screen Actress and Her Mother Are Ejected From Court When They Scream "Liar" at Witness

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—Three women used "the short and ugly word" in a township justice court here yesterday during the preliminary hearing of the case of P. L. Daniels charged with obtaining money under false pretenses. One of the women was Grace Darmond, screen actress; another was her mother, Mrs. Alice Darmond, and the third was said to be a sister-in-law of the defendant. Her name was not learned.

When she gave her testimony to that effect today, Daniels' sister-in-law shrieked "Liar!" at her, and was ordered from the courtroom. When Daniels took the stand, Miss Darmond cried "Liar!" at him, and she, too, was ordered from the room.

Then Daniels resumed his testimony, only to be interrupted by Mrs. Darmond, who, in turn, screamed "Liar!" She, too, was sent from the room and was fined $5.00.

Daniels was held for trial in the superior court on a grand larceny charge.

WITNESS TELLS OF SEEING MYSTERY CAR. That Mrs. Phillips was aided in her escape by three men was the contention of Mike Lannon, watchman at the county garage in Los Angeles, when he testified in court yesterday that she had fled for the border failed to reveal any trace of her.

Believing that Mrs. Phillips is still in or near Los Angeles, officials searching for her planned to center all their efforts in combing the city here hoping to capture her when she makes a dash for liberty. The opinion that Mrs. Phillips had never left Los Angeles was strengthened today when Sheriff Traeger and his deputies ran down county clues that she had crossed the border into Mexico and found they had nothing but theory to work on.

WIDE SEARCH FOR HAMMER SLAYER VAIN

All Mexican Claws Fruitless and Sleuths Now Believe Clara Phillips Is in L. A.; East in Frenzy Over Hunt

Woman Informant Regarding Escape Abducted; Husband of Fugitive Freed After Probe; Witness Discovered

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—(By the Associated Press.)—Search for Mrs. Clara Phillips, escaped murderer, which today took to the western half of the country, has been without avail. Developments south of the California border in Mexico eliminated that section from the hunt for the slayer of Mrs. Alberta Meadows.

Sheriff W. L. Traeger and a posse made an unfruitful search at a resort near Tia Juana, Mexico, and the sheriff planned to return to Los Angeles.

Motorboats along the California coast were called upon to maintain a search of its islands along the coast as a possible hiding place.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—(United Press.)—Sheriffs today took out in hot pursuit of an automobile in which a woman, who, they said, had given important information regarding the escape of Clara Phillips, had been abducted. Officers had secured the number of the car in which the woman was carried away and Chief Criminal Deputy A. Manning declared he expected to locate her and her abductors in a short time.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—Abandonment, temporarily at least, of the search along the Mexican border, for Clara Phillips, "phantom woman," who escaped from the Los Angeles county jail Monday night, loomed today when all clues indicating that she had fled for the border failed to reveal any trace of her.

Believing that Mrs. Phillips is still in or near Los Angeles, officials searching for her planned to center all their efforts in combing the city here hoping to capture her when she makes a dash for liberty. MANY SLAIN AS BULGARIAN REVOLUT MARCH ON SOFIA

Agrarian Rebels Assassinate
Three Former Ministers; Stage Is Declared

LONDON, Dec. 7. (By International News Service).—Revolution has broken out in Bulgaria and revolutionaries are marching upon Sofia, the capital, according to reports received here today from Athens and Belgrade.

Three former Bulgarian ministers, M. Danoff, M. Guecheff and M. Malinoff, are reported to have been assassinated.

Later a telegram was received, dated Sofia, saying that the government had succeeded in pacifying the agrarian rebels.

STRITS FACE TURKS FACE TURKS FACE

LAUSANNE, Dec. 7. (By the Associated Press).—The Turkish delegates to the Near East conference today faced the difficult problem of deciding whether Turkey, in formulating her plan for control of the Dardanelles, should cast her lot with Russia or with the entente powers and the United States. Turkey's suggestion for the solution of the perplexing straits question will be made public tomorrow at the Hotel D'Europe.

Ismet Pasha and his associates, in formulating their plans, were faced by the sharp differences of opinion between Great Britain and Russia in the discussion of the Dardanelles question. If Turkey goes over to the British camp she fears the late Russian army on her eastern frontier; if she sides with Russia in demanding complete control of the waterway, she fears the British navy in the straits.

The Turks thus far have temporized by saying that they favored M. Tchitcherine's plan, but Ismet Pasha and his associates were impressed by the plan presented by Lord Curzon yesterday on behalf of the entente, approved in general by the United States.

Turkey has always found protection in numbers. She has played the European countries against each other to her great advantage time and again, and she hesitates to leave her fate to Russia alone while the rest of Europe, supported by the United States, opposes an effort to turn the Black Sea into a Russian lake.

M. Tchitcherine, fighting hard to defeat Lord Curzon's plans, urges that it would enable a combination of powers like the entente to keep a great navy in the Black Sea, as each member of the combination could maintain there as many ships as belonged to Russia, or whatever Black Sea power happened to have the largest navy at the time.

Turkey, however, in considering Russia's plan, apparently has an eye on her own pocketbook. If she adopted M. Tchitcherine's proposals, Turkey would be forced to make a great outlay for a fleet and for fortifications, and as she has no money she would prefer to have some one else bear the expense of policing the straits.

a family, or a child. No talk of the war. No talk of Russia or Japan. Talk by McAdoo about some bills in Congress, by the President about giving the veterans of the Spanish war leave, with pay, to attend their annual encampment. And he treated this seriously as if it were a matter of first importance! No word from Baker nor mention of his mission or his doings.

February 16, 1918.

Things are going much better with the war department. My expectation is that this war will resolve itself into three things in this order: Ships for food, airplanes, big guns. We must, as you know, do all that we can to keep up the morale of our own people. There is a considerable percentage of pacifists, and of the weak-hearted ones, who would like to have a peace now upon any terms, but the treatment that Russia is receiving, after she had thrown down her arms, indicates what may be expected by any nation that quits now.

The prospect for democratization of Germany is not as good as it was a year ago, when we came in, because of their success in arms due to Russia's debacle. The people will not overthrow a government which is successful, nor will they be inclined to desert a system which adds to Germany's glory. It is a fight, a long fight, a fight of tremendous sacrifice, that we are in for. I said a year ago that it would be two years. Then I thought that Russia would put up some kind of front. Now I say two years from this time and possibly a great deal longer. Lord Northcliffe thinks four or six or eight years.

The Germans seem to have discovered some way by which they can tell where they are without being able to see the lights of the city, for now they have bombed Paris, when it was protected, on a dark night, by a blanket of fog, and London also under the same conditions. The compass is not much good, the deviations are so great. It may be that the clever Huns have found some way of piloting themselves surely.

We are starting two campaigns through the bureau of education. One is for school gardens. To have the children organized, each one to plant a garden. The plan is to raise vegetables which will save things that can be sent over to the armies, and also give the children a sense of being in the war. Another thing we are trying to do is educate the foreign-born and the native-born who cannot read or write English.

Laments Lack of Waterpower

Washington, March 7, 1918.

The thing that a democracy is short on is foresight. We do not have enough men like the general staff in Germany who can think 10 and 20 years ahead. We are too much embedded and incrustured in the things that flow around us during the day, and think too little of the future.

For five long, weary years, I have been agitating for the use of the water powers of the United States. We estimate the unused power in tens and tens of millions of horsepower. Right in New York you have in the Erie Canal 150,000 horsepower, and on the Niagara river you have probably a million unused. If you had a great dam across the river below the rapids we should have water power in chains, like fire hoses in their stalls, that could be brought out at the time of need. But we are thinking in large figures these days, and while we used to be afraid to ask for a few hundred thousand dollars we now talk in millions, and some day we may realize that to put the cost of a week's war into power plants in the United States would be money well invested.

We have no law under which private capital feels justified in investing a dollar in a water power plant where public lands are involved, because the permit granted is revocable at the pleasure of the secretary of the interior, and capital does not enjoy the prospect of making its future returns dependent upon the good digestion of the secretary.

GIRL ENGAGED ON TURKEY DAY

When did you get the sparkler? And why didn't you tell us the tidings? When did you and Ted become engaged?

"Thanksgiving, dear one. I just thought I'd wait and see how long I had to wear the ring before someone would notice it."

"Aren't you clever? Have you been wearing that ring every day since Thanksgiving?"

"Yes, and fairly flaunting it in your faces and neither you nor Elsie could see it. I was so mad at you but I wanted you to ask me about it before I told you."

"Aren't you silly? I don't see how you could keep the secret. How did it happen, anyway? You always said, 'Ted is like a big brother.'"

"Well, he was, and I have been wild over him ever since he and brother became so chummy. He acted as though I were a mere infant. You know he spent Thanksgiving with brother. I wore my new dress and it makes me look years older. It is one of those new things with drapes. And I had my bobbed hair up for the first time. Ted began looking at me as though he was seeing me for the first time. Finally he asked the question and said he loved me."

ing motor car bearing the notorious woman. Tips were received from scores of cities that she had been seen.

A score of detectives stormed the Northwestern's crack flyer when it arrived here early today and apprehended Miss Clara Hutchins and Miss Elsie Coe of Baltimore. The girls immediately established their identity and were released with profuse apologies.

Oakland, Omaha and Belvidere, Ill., reported a woman who "looked like" the escaping prisoner.

Every woman with a "brown coat" who was "barcheaded" and who appeared to have a "prison pallor" was an object of suspicion to authorities at wayside stations and country crossroads.

AIRPLANE MYSTERY FRAUD AT BORDER

BRAWLEY, Dec. 7. (By United Press).—Local authorities were of the opinion that the plane found abandoned here after the occupants had escaped to the border in a stolen automobile had no connection with the sensational jailbreak of Clara Phillips. The plane was identified as one from a Los Angeles airport, but the name of the pilot was not known and officers were placed around the craft.

The stolen automobile was found a short distance from the border and identified as that of L. F. De Armond, a local jeweler. Mexican police were adding federal officers in following up a report that three persons had also been seen crawling through a break in the international border fence just outside of Calexico late last night.

WOMAN SEEN IN PLANE BY POMONA SLEUTHS

POMONA, Dec. 7. (By United Press).—The airplane reported abandoned at Brawley and investigated as a possible clew to Clara Phillips' flight may have been the one that Police Officer Hoopnell and T. R. Hall of this city declared alighted in the hills south of Pomona about noon yesterday. Hall is positive one of the occupants was a woman, as he could clearly see the machine, flying low, just before alighting, presumably due to engine trouble.

Americans Jailed For Arms Trading

HONGKONG, Dec. 7. (By the Associated Press).—An engineer and a storekeeper of the American steamship President Jackson have been sentenced to six months imprisonment on a charge of trading in arms.

HANKOW, Dec. 7. (As a consular court hearing Wednesday on the seizure by Rear Admiral Phelps, commander of the American warships on the Yangtze, of six airplanes destined for the Chinese military forces, it was developed that the planes were landed at Hankow on a customs permit issued by the minister of war. The customs documents classified the planes as munitions. The purchase of the planes was financed by the Hongkong-Shanghai bank.

James Elvin, an American arrested in connection with the seizure, is charged with violation of the arms embargo of 1919, and the President's proclamation of March, 1922, regarding the trading in arms.

Lindsey Would Give Children Sidewalks

DENVER, Dec. 7. (The recent suggestion of juvenile Judge Fred Lindsey, foremost champion of the rights of children, that they be allowed to ride bicycles and to roller skate on the sidewalks, has aroused a storm of criticism as well as approval in Denver.

Judge Lindsey, in a recent letter to the city attorney, urged creation of an ordinance legalizing the use of sidewalks for bicycling by children, "limiting the age, if necessary, to 14 or 16 years."

The list's reason for proposing such a law is that "the alleged dangers from children on the sidewalks with roller skates or bicycles is much exaggerated and that the danger to children on roller skates and bicycles on the streets is positive."

Waving Tresses Ruined By Hats

By ALICE LANGELIER, Correspondent.

PARIS, Dec. 7. (The modern hat is the ruin of women's hair," said Monsieur Marcel, creator of the Marcel wave, who has just been celebrating the fiftieth anniversary of his invention in the French capital.

There are many beautiful modes of dressing the hair, but the Marcel wave, which cannot be used because of the impossible hairgear the women insist upon wearing. Elaborate and attractive coiffures are out of place with the modern hat."

Lost Pearl Falls Into Swimmer's Mouth

PARIS, Dec. 7. (While diving in one of the Seine public swimming pools, Adolph Landermann lost a valuable pearl ring. It dropped in the mouth of another swimmer who was floating on his back with his eyes closed.

Landermann has asked the police to force the swimmer to disgorge.

Six Saws Found On Prisoner in L. A. County Jail

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7. (By The Associated Press).—Six saws were found in the possession of E. A. McNabb, held in the Los Angeles county jail on three criminal charges, according to Mark Bailey, jailer.

The saws were discovered in a search of the jail when, after the escape of Mrs. Clara Phillips early Tuesday morning, a rumor reached the jailer that certain prisoners were plotting "a wholesale delivery."

This alleged plot involved McNabb and "Fat" McDonald, alleged bandit, recently arrested in Minneapolis and returned here for trial and both were placed in dark, solitary cells.

Jailer Bailey and other jail officials began an attempt to learn how the saws had been smuggled into the building.

Y. W. C. A. Tree to Be Lighted Dec. 21

Christmas plans are being perfected in the Young Women's Christian Association this week by leaders of the various departments.

A big Christmas tree will be placed in the court which will be hung with wreaths and garlands. The Association Christmas party is announced for Thursday evening, December 21, when children from the Associated Charities will be the guests of honor. A Santa Claus will be present to distribute gifts. The Girl Reserves, Miss Dorothy Grout, secretary, are directing the arrangements. Mrs. Fred Allard, chairman of the department, will assist.

The grammar school Girl Reserves are making gifts for the children of the Sycamore Indian Mission at Toll House. The high school clubs will provide Christmas to individual girls this year. Scrap books are being made and dolls dressed by the Technical high club for the children in the Clawson Day Nursery.

enrollment from 2935 collegiate students in 1921 to 3500 in 1922, which, college authorities say, forecast an enrollment for the next two years 25 per cent in excess of that for 1921-22.

More money and more facilities must be provided to care for this increase, is the claim of the regents. The need of the farmers of the state have been recognized by the regents in a requested increase of about $375,000 for the college of agriculture.

Capital expenditures of $300,000 also are recommended for this growing department.

The regents were aided in their preparation of this budget by co-operation of the agricultural legislative committee, which organized sixty farmers from all parts of California to study the activities and needs of the college, and make budget recommendations to the regents based on their findings.

"The university has done its utmost," said Comptroller Sproul, "to co-operate in the economy program which the people of the state endorsed at the last election."

The budget presented to the state board of control today represents not the real need of the university, but those minimum needs without which it cannot function properly.

"Any reduction of the budget as presented will not mean economy, but inefficiency."

Inquest on Trunk Murder Is Begun

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7. (The coroner's inquest in the murder of Mrs. Margaret Bannon of 381 Fulton street, killed with a hatchet and her body jammed in a trunk, was begun today. The police have arrested the woman's husband, Elmer E. Bannon, charging him with the killing.

The principal witness against Bannon is his 5-year-old daughter, Helen, left by him in a downtown drug store on the day of the tragedy.

'SLIGHTLY HURT,' VICTIM OF AUTO ACCIDENT, DIES

Widow Succumbs From Injuries At First Believed To Have Been Trivial.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7. (Although she was at first thought to have been only slightly hurt, Mrs. Sophia Schallich, a widow, 57, 3662 Sixteenth street, died today at St. Luke's hospital from injuries suffered last night in an automobile accident. She was crossing Market street at Seventeenth when struck by a small machine driven by Lloyd A. Flatland of 75 Castro street. She was taken to the Central Emergency hospital, suffering apparently from severe bruises and abrasions. Her son told the police he did not want Flatland arrested, explaining that he believed the accident unavoidable. Mrs. Schallich gradually grew worse and following her death the police planned the arrest of the driver on a manslaughter charge.

Columbia

TEN reasons why you should buy a Columbia

1. Harmonies delightfully with your home furnishings. All instruments are beautiful and easily kept clean.
2. Automatic Record Ejector. Eliminates the search for the desired record. An ideal place for your choice selections. Automatically cleans them before use.
3. Tone Control. Leads or soft music as you choose—operates on same principle as pipe-organ control.
4. One-hand Top. Easy to raise and lower without danger of damage or breaking.
5. Universal Reproductor. Each gives natural accuracy of tone because it is constructed to reproduce the proper balance between overtones and fundamentals.
6. Straight Tone Arm. Which allows the sound waves to develop fully and naturally—undisturbed by joints and reflections—from the time they are picked off the record till they emerge through the tone arm.
7. Tone Amplifier. Which assures free and natural amplification. Size and design are the result of 30 years' constant experimentation.
8. Display Motor. Brings (to rest record) operates in the background. Noiseless gear. Guaranteed. Easy to oil or clean.
9. Ease of Handling Needles. Three cups for different types. Used needles dropped into special receptacle. Extra care.
10. Non-Slip Automatic Stop. It stops the motor, without human aid, when the record has finished playing.

A HOME without music of some kind is a pretty forlorn sort of place these days of peppy fox-trots, of new and popular song hits.

And what a parody on home, home is, without music at Christmas—the big, joyous, happy time of the year, when it's as easy to hum or sing or whistle as it is to think. So this year instead of wondering, "What will I give them for Christmas?" just say to yourself, "I'll give 'em a year-round gift—an all-year source of sunshine and happiness—a Columbia Grafonola."

First—Buy a Columbia for the educational value of music in the home—valuable to the youngsters and to the older folks.

Second—Buy a Columbia for the purity of its voice, its perfection of reproduction, its decorative beauty. Buy it because it has ten remarkable points of superiority that put it at the top of the list of worth-while phonographs made to-day.

You can't begin to estimate the joy and happiness a Columbia will give your folks every day in the year. You won't hesitate when we tell you Columbia Prices Have Hit Bottom.

See the Columbia Dealer in your vicinity to-day and get the facts—prices and terms—you'll be surprised and pleased at the opportunity he will offer you to own the most improved phonograph at a cost you easily can afford.

GIRL ENGAGED ON TURKEY DAY

When did you get the sparkler? And why didn't you tell us the tidings? When did you and Ted become engaged?

"Thanksgiving, dear one. I just thought I'd wait and see how long I had to wear the ring before someone would notice it."

"Aren't you clever? Have you been wearing that ring every day since Thanksgiving?"

"Yes, and fairly flaunting it in your faces and neither you nor Elsie could see it. I was so mad at you but I wanted you to ask me about it before I told you."

"Aren't you silly? I don't see how you could keep the secret. How did it happen, anyway? You always said, 'Ted is like a big brother.'"

"Well, he was, and I have been wild over him ever since he and brother became so chummy. He acted as though I were a mere infant. You know he spent Thanksgiving with brother. I wore my new dress and it makes me look years older. It is one of those new things with drapes. And I had my bobbed hair up for the first time. Ted began looking at me as though he was seeing me for the first time. Finally he asked the question and said he loved me."

PERSHING URGES PROTECTION FROM "BOYERS WITHIN"

With General Dawes, Army's Head Arouses Enthusiasm
For Increase of Regulars.

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—General John J. Pershing, in two addresses here last night, metaphorically linked arms with Brigadier-General Chas. G. Dawes in a plea for a national awakening to the dangers from external aggression and "boyers within." The two generals were the chief speakers at a patriotic dinner of the Association of Commerce. A few minutes after speaking at the banquet General Pershing repeated a part of his address from a radio broadcasting station.

General Dawes spoke heartily of the "skulking cowards and demagogues in office," but his language was unadorned by the adjectives which gained him the nickname, "Hell, Maria."

General Pershing also spoke regarding present conditions and pleaded for the "education of the people up to their obligations as citizens." Then the former A. E. F. commander took up discussion of the general defense.

"Some day war will come," he admonished. "Some day war will come—and come it will. We have come to the point where we must consider national defense."

"There is too much of a tendency to tamper with the constitution and too little respect for the authority of this country. The constitution is all right. No need to tamper with it. If those who want to do that will let it alone and live up to it, we will have no more of a lot of trouble that this country is in right now."

Referring to the pacifist pledge, General Pershing characterized it as a "pledge of disloyalty." "If we are wide awake, we are going to start to take some action in cases of that sort," he said.

Two resolutions, one introduced by General Dawes, were adopted by the meeting. General Dawes' resolution condemned Governor Small for release of William Gross Lloyd, wealthy radical, and sixteen associates from State prison. The other resolution introduced at the conclusion of General Pershing's speech called upon the government to maintain a standing army of 160,000 men.

CLEMENCEAU AND WILSON DISCUSS DAYS IN PARIS

French War Premier and U. S. War President Recall Peace Parley.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7 (By the Associated Press).—America's wartime President and France's wartime premier met here late yesterday for the first time since the signing of the peace treaty at Versailles, more than three years ago. The meeting was at the S-street home of Wilson and lasted just a little more than a quarter of an hour.

M. Clemenceau described his visit as one of the utmost cordiality and affection as between old friends, adding that he and the former president had talked a little about old times in Paris and also about "the past and the present."

Wilson made no reference to the purpose of the visit of the former premier of France to America, or the subject matter of his addresses in this country. M. Clemenceau continued, but smiled and seemed pleased when told that the mention of his name and of the fourteen points had elicited more applause from the French statement's audience than any other one thing.

Head of U. C. Mine College Returns

BERKELEY, Dec. 7.—After an absence of four months, Dean Frank H. Probert will return to take his place as head of the College of Mining at the opening of the new term in January. Dean Probert, who is regarded as one of the foremost mining authorities in the country as well as one of the most popular faculty leaders at the university, suffered a breakdown at the beginning of the college year last August.

Following a long period of rest in the Hawaiian Islands he returned to Berkeley a short time ago. He is now at Carmel, where he will remain over the holidays, and was greeted by John Randolph Bolling, secretary to Wilson.

He immediately was taken to the library. As he descended from his automobile, the aged statesman was given a start by a flash set off by the photographer, who was dispersed by the police before he left the home.

The call at the Wilson home was an important incident of a day that proved one of the busiest that M. Clemenceau has had since he landed on American shores three weeks ago.

DRIVER BREAKS FIRE HOSE AND FIGHTS POLICE

Autoist Retards Firemen
During Big Blaze; Stands
Off Officers.

As a result of an automobile driver's refusal to halt after he had driven over and broken five lines of fire hose, a running gun fight between the motorist and three policemen took place on East Fourteenth street last night. Two of the policemen made leaps to the running board of the speeding machine, and one was knocked almost senseless to the street by a heavy object in the hands of the autoist, who escaped amid a volley of bullets.

The police obtained the license number of the car, and a search for the machine and its driver are under way today.

The chase and fight occurred on East Fourteenth street in the neighborhood of Thirtieth avenue, at about 2:30 o'clock this morning, during the progress of a $20,000 fire which threatened 100 automobiles and destroyed twelve in the BREAKS FIRE LINES.

Following a momentary alarm, five lines of fire hose were stretched across Fourteenth street, when the unidentified autoist drove a large touring car across them, breaking each one in turn, and for the time completely stopping the work of the fire-fighters.

He was ordered to halt by Police Sergeant Dave Pullman and Policemen L. S. Trowbridge and A. H. Meyer, who were doing traffic duty, but refused to obey their commands.

Trowbridge leaped for the running board of the car, but slipped upon the wet pavement and fell to the street. Pullman made a similar unsuccessful attempt to board the speeding auto. Policeman Meyer then leaped for the car, and managed to gain a footing upon the running board. As he was about to place the driver under arrest, the latter struck him on the head with a heavy weapon and knocked him to the street.

Trowbridge and Pullman opened fire on the fleeing autoist, who turned in his seat, they declare, and fired back. He escaped down Fourteenth street.

GET LICENSE NUMBER.
Before the car was out of sight, however, Pullman and Trowbridge obtained the license number. It proved to be that of an automobile owned in Oakland.

As the autoist sped away from the three policemen, his car narrowly missed striking two firemen who were in the street.

The fire in the garage was extinguished after quick repairs had been made in the five broken lines of fire hose. Of the hundred automobiles in the garage, all but twelve were run out to the street by firemen and policemen. The damage is estimated to be between $10,000 and $25,000, most of which is covered by insurance. The garage is owned by Oscar Smith, who lives at 3334 East Fourteenth street.

SAN LEANDRO SAN LEANDRO

San Leandro Streets Baby Show Part To Have More Light Of Church Bazaar

SAN LEANDRO, Dec. 7.—Requesting the installation of lighting facilities at the corner of West Bay avenue and Hollywood boulevard, a petition signed by seven residents of that section has been received by J. J. Gill, clerk of the city board of trustees. The present condition, it was mentioned, is such that on a dark night there is little or no illumination whatever. The matter will first be investigated by the committee in charge of that phase of city work and installation probably ordered.

According to officials, extension of an efficient lighting system is planned for the whole city, but conditions do not warrant such action. Recently Estudillo avenue was strung with poles a portion of its length. Similar procedure on other streets is considered.

Trains Are Slowed Down by Request

SAN LEANDRO, Dec. 7.—Determined that promises made by representatives of the Western Pacific Railroad Company that trains traveling through this city would be slowed materially until past the residential section would be fulfilled, Mrs. Susie Datzel, member of the city board of trustees, undertook a personal investigation. The result, she stated, was gratifying. Not only did the trains slow to less than 10 miles an hour, but they informed residents of their approach by strenuous blowing of whistle and ringing of bell. The demand on the company that such precaution be exercised is resultant of several casualties in the past.

Funeral Is Held For Frank Roberts

SAN LEANDRO, Dec. 7.—Funeral services for Frank Roberts, who died at his home at 82 Chumalia street last Monday night, were held this morning from the chapel of H. W. Seramur, deputy coroner. Requiem high mass for the repose of his soul was said at St. Leander's Catholic church at 10 o'clock. Interment was at Holy Sepulchre cemetery, Hayward.

He was a native of this city. He is survived by a wife, Mary, a daughter, Mary, and two sons, Elsworth and Lawrence, and a mother, Mrs. Mary Roberts.

SPRECKELS HAS PLAN TO FIGHT CROCKER MERGER

New Move Would Combine
First National With Henderson Interests.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—As a counter-move to the plan to combine the First National Bank of San Francisco with the Crocker National Bank, President Rudolph Spreckels, the First National would amalgamate with the Merchants' National Bank of San Francisco and the chain of interior banks controlled by James Henderson of Sacramento and his Sacramento-San Joaquin Bank in a $50,000,000 financial merger.

The Spreckels plan contemplates the continuance of Spreckels control in the new combination. The merger with the Henderson interests has advanced so far as to receive the approval of the present board of directors of the First National and its affiliated First Federal Trust Company. The stockholders in the end must pass on it, and from now until December 20, when they meet, there is expected to be much jockeying and maneuvering by the proponents of the plan to unite with the Crocker Bank interests to defeat Spreckels' plans.

Spreckels' ideas propose a banking combination of about $30,000,000 against about $62,000,000 under the proposal of his opponents to combine with William H. Crocker and his affiliations.

FIGHT FOR CONTROL.
Spreckels is known to have been frustrating plans for fighting the effort to oust him from the control of the First National affairs, launched last spring, and the proposal to unite with Henderson was first heard of three months ago. At that time, it was understood, that interests apparently friendly to Henderson had secured a large block of the stock of the Merchants' National Bank of San Francisco. A few days later Henderson hinted that if Spreckels lost control of the First National bank and the First Federal Trust company, he might appear as the head of a new line-up headed in San Francisco by Merchants' National bank. Now Spreckels goes a step further. He proposes not only to fight to retain the control of the First National but to make it the key of a consolidation that will penetrate throughout the principal centers of the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys, instead of confining itself to the bay region, as was contemplated under the proposed combination with the Crocker National.

The Spreckels merging plan, as worked out by him, is explained in a letter mailed to the stockholders of the First National Bank of San Francisco today. In part, the letter follows:

"A tentative plan for the consolidation has been prepared pursuant to which the two national banks will be merged into the First National Bank, with a capital, surplus and undivided profits of $3,000,000, and the First Federal Trust Company and the Sacramento-San Joaquin Bank will be merged, with a capital, surplus and undivided profits of $3,000,000. It is proposed that the stock of the merged First Federal Trust Company and Sacramento-San Joaquin Bank shall be held in trust for the stockholders of the First National Bank, share for share, under a trust similar to that under which the stock of the First Federal Trust Company is now held.

"The share of capital, surplus and undivided profits of the combined banks to be allocated to the present stockholders of the First National Bank will be $5,000,000, thus leaving a majority of the stock of the new banks in the hands of the present stockholders of the First National Bank of San Francisco.

DIVIDEND PROPOSED.
"Resources of the combined banks will be about $30,000,000, and consolidation will give the First Federal Trust Company branches in Sacramento, Stockton, Modesto and Fresno.

"A portion of the present capital, surplus and undivided profits of the First National Bank and First Federal Trust Company will be paid to the stockholders as a dividend when the merger is consummated. The amount of such dividend should be not less than $15 for each share of stock of the present capital, surplus and undivided profits, approximately $2,000,000 will be used to carry such assets as may not be taken over by the merged banks."

Fine Imposed For Liquor Possession

SANTA CURZ, Dec. 7.—John T. Hyde, of Berkeley, a picture salesman who has been in jail since September 1921, was sentenced to six months' suspension of sentence by Justice C. C. Houck.

Hyde was driving along the highway Saturday night and left his car on the road when a car driven by William Martin, of Glenwood, rounded a curve and struck the Hyde car, throwing it to the ditch one side while the Martin car went off on the other side. Martin was badly cut about his knees.

Motor Officer D. A. Beauregard, who was summoned to the scene, on examining the auto found in it four bottles of brandy. Two were full and two partially emptied. He placed Hyde in jail and a complaint was sworn to by District Attorney Ralph H. Smith charging him with having liquor in his possession.

The accident occurred at the North Broadway warehouse of the Turlock Irrigation office.

Giant Candle Will Burn for Caruso's Soul

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—A candle of chemically treated beeswax, five feet in circumference at the base, 16 feet high and weighing one ton, known as the Enrico Caruso memorial candle, has been completed in the studios of Antonio Agajo and brother, and will be shipped to Turlock, Italy, within a few days. It cost $5700 and was made on the order of an orphan asylum in New York of which Caruso was a generous benefactor.

The candle will be placed in the church of Our Lady of Pompeii, where Caruso last worshipped. It is expected to last eighteen centuries, burning at the suggestion of Cardinal Vanuelli 24 hours on each All Souls Day, November 2.

Woodland Elks Give 100 Ducks to Needy

WOODLAND, Dec. 7.—Deserving families of Woodland were feted and feasted yesterday by Probation Officer A. A. Powers and Supervisor L. E. Hutchings with 100 ducks left over from a banquet given by the Woodland lodge of Elks. The duck supply greatly exceeded the demands of the Elks. The birds were taken from the preserves of the West Butte Gun club in Colusa county.

With the ducks the foreman, families were served with potatoes, cranberries and everything that went with a rare holiday feast.

Many Attend Turlock Episcopal Bazaar

TURLOCK, Dec. 7.—The Episcopal fair held this week was well attended by the women of this district. A tidy sum was realized by the sale of different novelties, such as dolls, handkerchiefs, embroidery and other handwork donated by the ladies of the church.

Driver Loses Arm As Train Hits Truck

Robert March, aged 26, a truck driver, 2139 Thirty-eighth avenue, was seriously injured today when the truck he was driving was struck by a train while he was crossing the Southern Pacific tracks at First and Oak streets.

March had just driven the truck out of the Sunset Lumber Yard when the accident happened.

He was taken to the emergency hospital, where it was found that his left arm was mangled and that he had suffered cuts and bruises about the head. It was stated at the hospital that amputation would be necessary.

Time is woman's greatest need!

For Christmas—add two hours per day to your wife's life

Do you want to give something new, useful and userful to your wife this year—something way out of the ordinary?

Then get her a Westgate Cooking Cabinet.

Here's why—

It cooks food better than any other cooking device—it is so economical it will pay for itself—it is beautiful, it is pleasing to the eye—and will actually give her every afternoon off.

Can you think of a better present than 365 afternoons off every year? You'd appreciate it, and your wife needs more time just as much as you do.

With this cabinet, she can prepare her entire dinner in the morning, put it in, and the whole meal will cook automatically and be ready just when wanted without a bit of watching.

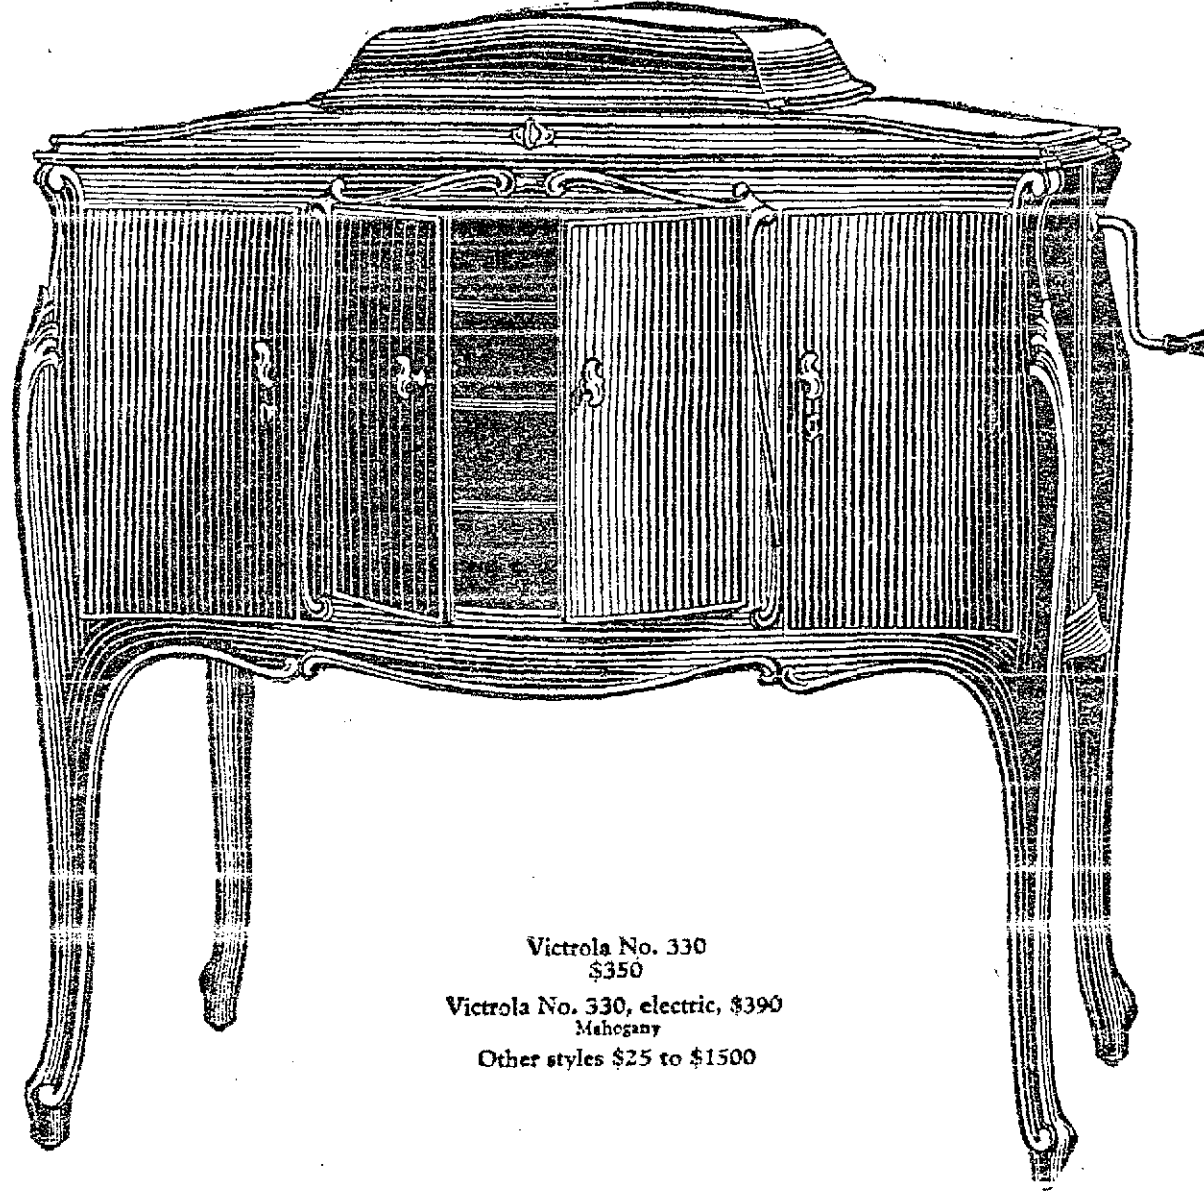

You can get it for a small down payment. After that it doesn't really cost anything, because you'll save enough on food bills to cover the small monthly payments.

OFFICER WARNS PEOPLE AGAINST FAKE SALESMEN

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Dec. 7.—A warning against fake solicitors and salesmen who have been working in this city for several days was today issued by City Marshal Ernest Copp. The bogus solicitors, it is said, are representing themselves to be connected with large San Jose and San Francisco firms dealing in household goods and are going from house to house taking orders. The marshal has requested all persons called upon by solicitors to demand their credentials and if they are not forthcoming to communicate with officers at once.

AMERICAN AND BRITISH VESSELS CRASH AT SEA

Steamer George Washington, Rains Clyde Rock, Other Marine Disasters.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS. LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE. DUBLIN, England, Dec. 7.—The collision between the George Washington and the Clyde Rock occurred at midnight between Goodwin Sands and the French coast, according to the crew of the Clyde Rock, which has arrived here damaged. The crew said that as far as they could see the George Washington was not damaged. No one was injured.

The crew of the Clyde Rock said the collision occurred while the vessels were clearing each other, the Clyde Rock bound west and the George Washington east. They said the accident was due to faulty maneuvering by the American steamer, asserting that the liner's position was so altered that the Clyde Rock struck the port bow. The impact caused a noise like an explosion.

Only a few persons were on the deck of the George Washington. The liner offered the Clyde Rock assistance, but when it was found that the Britisher could take care of herself, the George Washington proceeded for Bremen.

BOSTON, Dec. 7.—Radio messages today indicated that the British steamer Tyrhenia, bound from Liverpool for Boston and New York, was proceeding to the assistance of the German steamer Heinrich Kayser, reported in need of assistance last night 500 miles east of Cape May. The Kayser is bound from Savannah for Bremen and Hamburg.

Slash in Motor Vehicle Staff Is State Budget Aim

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 7.—A proposal which would eliminate the greater part of the force of motor vehicle inspectors now operating in California under the direction of the state motor vehicle department, has been submitted to Governor-elect Friend W. Richardson, by those assisting him in the preparation of the budget he will submit to the legislature.

According to Richardson's helpers, the state employs a force of seventeen inspectors at a total cost of $77,000 a year. It is claimed that most of these could be eliminated without crippling the work of the department and that the city and county governments could take over the supervisory and police work which the inspectors are now doing.

COUNTY OFFICERS URGED. HANFORD, Dec. 7.—An amendment of the state motor vehicle act creating in each county in the state an office for motor vehicle registration and collection of fees and making county 1 nks depositories for all motor vehicle license fees collected in the county in which they originate is advocated in a resolution passed by the Kiwanis Club of Hanford at its annual meeting here last night. The resolution declares the present system unsatisfactory and unfair because the counties do not receive their pro-rata of the fees collected until late in the year on account of the money being deposited in Sacramento.

Parents-at-Law Must Pay $465,000

BURLINGTON, Vermont, Dec. 7.—An award of $465,000 was made today by the jury which for more than forty hours had deliberated over the million dollar claim of Mrs. Dorris Stevens Woodhouse against her wealthy parents-at-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lorenzo E. Woodhouse, of New York and this city, for the alienation of the affections of her husband, Douglas Woodhouse. The case had consumed five weeks in hearing.

The plaintiff, daughter of a family in most circumstances, who were neighbors of the wealthy Woodhouses here, contended that her parents-at-law had inspired and supported her husband in a separation from her that led to his going to Reno, Nev., to establish a residence as the basis for a divorce. She had been snubbed by them, she submitted, and never had been given adequate recognition as the wife of their son.

64 FIRES PROBED

DURING MONTH
DURING MONTH
The Oakland fire prevention bureau made 1085 inspections during November and the various fire companies made 1920 in their districts, bringing the total to 3005 for the month, according to a report submitted to Chief Sam Short today by Battalion Chief L. J. Sandy, head of the bureau.
There were 64 fires investigated and 10 citations issued. The actual abatements for the month included:
Short chimneys extended, 14; illegal chimneys abated, 18; illegal garages vacated, 12; unsecured buildings vacated, 11; lights and signs placed in apartment houses, 24; illegal fires abated, 27; rubbish removed, 108; faulty heater rooms repaired, 16; fire escapes removed, 14; signs checked, 71, lots cleaned off, 18.
The fire prevention bureau officials say that their next job is to install "safety-first" principles for Christmas.

TARDINESS NOT LIMITED TO ONE SEX AT U. OF C.

BERKELEY, Dec. 7.—It is a close race between co-eds and men students as to who should be most severely chastised for being late to 8 o'clock classes in the morning at the university.
At least a "symposium" conducted among faculty members by students on the staff of the "Daily Californian" so reveals. Here are some of the answers:
Prof. M. Donato, French department: "I hate to say it, but most of the students who are late are the women."
Prof. W. A. Serchell, botany: "They're both careless, men and women. I've heard anywhere from 100 to 1000 different excuses every year I've been on the campus."
Prof. Louis Barnier, French: "Not only the women but the men are late, but they are always twice as late."
Prof. Eduardo Pava, Spanish: "It's because men stay out so late at night they hate to get up in the morning."
Prof. H. E. Grandy, economics: "It isn't that men are late to class. It's only that they start too late."

TAX INCREASE IN BERKELEY IS GIVEN BATTLE

Councilman Carl Bartlett Gives Five Reasons Why He Opposes Move.
BERKELEY, Dec. 7.—Instead of raising tax rates, now is the time for retrenchment, declares Councilman Carl Bartlett in a statement issued yesterday in opposition to an amendment proposed to the Berkeley charter which would increase the tax limit from 1 to 1.25 per cent.
That if Berkeley's funds were judiciously spent at the present time, there would be sufficient money for all needs is the declaration of Councilman Bartlett in urging the defeat of the proposed amendment on January 20. The following reasons are given by Councilman Bartlett for his opposition to the tax raise:
1.—The time is most inopportune. The city is on the verge of a possible change of government. Every argument for this change points to a more economic state of affairs under the new city manager.
2.—Our assessment roll is growing more rapidly than at any time in our history—thus providing an automatic increase in our income without raise of rate.
3.—We have not given up hope that the Railroad Commission will become conciliatory and remove the $150,000 burden it has placed upon us under the guise of a "stand by charge" for water service.
4.—The National Industrial Conference Board, after showing that the tax burden had grown from 6.4 per cent of national income in 1913 to 16.2-3 per cent in 1921, concludes its report as follows: "Under present conditions the tax bill in the United States is fast making inroads on the surplus necessary for economic progress, and threatens materially to hamper our growth, especially in view of the unintermitted rise in local government taxes."
5.—The universal trend today is toward retrenchment. While the State and Nation are working out big problems toward this end, does it seem most that a city of Berkeley's standing should be considering how the might increase her tax rate? Would it not be more appropriate that we consider how by retrenchment we might reduce it? The people of California spoke recently in no uncertain tone in favor of "economy and retrenchment," and during the next few years such a policy will without doubt be carried out.

MUSIC TEACHER MUST EXPLAIN TRAFFIC ERROR

MARTINEZ, Dec. 7.—Miss Bertha Weber, county school instructor of music, will be one of thirty-eight motorists who will bid "good morning" to Justice George Duncan at Walnut Creek next Tuesday.
Miss Weber's scheduled visit to court was altogether unintentional. The tail light of her automobile failed to function properly, or, rather, speed officers on the tunnel highway allege it was not functioning when they served the music instructor with her citation.

DAUGHTER OF JUDGE BAKER

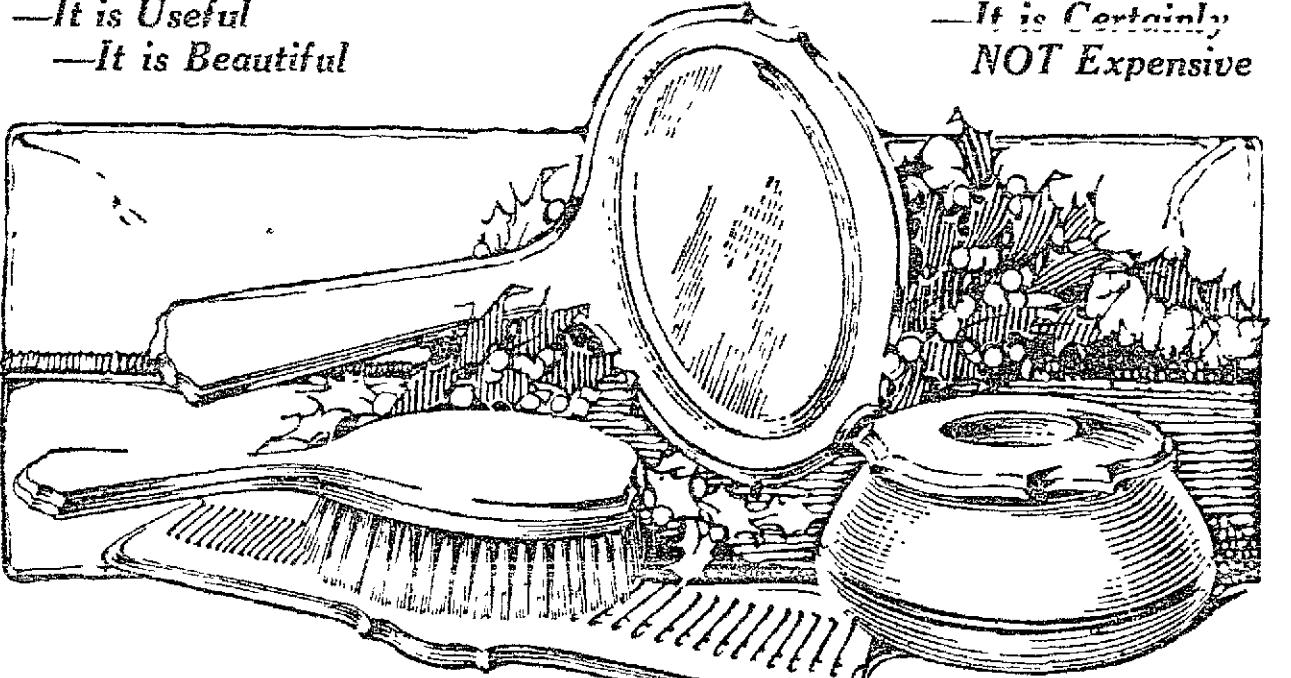

Mrs. Charlotte S. Gardner, wife of J. E. Gardner, prominent Watsonville attorney and daughter of Judge A. A. Sanderson of Berkeley, died yesterday following an illness of a few hours. The funeral will be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. from the California Crematorium.
Although for the past 15 years Mrs. Gardner has made her home in Watsonville, where she has been prominently identified with civic and club movements, she had kept in touch with large numbers of friends about the bay. She was a graduate of the University of California and with her sister, Mrs. Charles E. Fryer, was a charter member of the Gamma Phi Beta sorority. Mrs. Gardner was born in San Francisco.

On Thanksgiving Day a family reunion was held at the Watsonville home of Mrs. Gardner when she was surrounded in good health, beside her husband who is survived by her father, Judge A. A. Sanderson of Berkeley, and two sisters, Mrs. Charles E. Fryer of Santa Barbara, and Mrs. Fowler Mallett of Berkeley.

PEACE OFFICERS URGE NEW LAWS

FRESNO, Dec. 7.—Important measures for the state were endorsed by the law, legislative and executive committees of the California Peace Officers' Association, which met in special session here late yesterday.
Chief among them was a recommendation for the establishment of two state farms to be self-supporting and provide employment for persons convicted of misdemeanors. Counties would pay $1 a day for the maintenance of each prisoner.
Other measures endorsed were the extension of the tenure of office of sheriffs and constables from four to eight years; the charging of the county with the expense of returning fugitives from justice not arraigned or placed on trial; the habitual criminal act; severe penalties for automobile thefts committed by persons carrying firearms; a bill sanctioning an operation on any person guilty of criminal abuse of any female less than ten years of age; the placing of the traffic officers under the sheriff instead of the district attorney; a measure making it unlawful for physicians to prescribe drugs for a habitue until reports are made to police authorities; the establishment of a research bureau in all counties; and a bill making parents in their development and a resolution approving the work of the State Identification Bureau.

LIONS PREPARE FINE CHRISTMAS FOR POOR YOUTH

First $1500 of $4000 Fund
Is Raised at Luncheon in Hotel Oakland.

Plans for raising $4000 for the purchase of clothing and gifts for the children of the four West Oakland schools were outlined by members of the holiday gift committee of the Oakland Lions club at the organization's luncheon yesterday at the Hotel Oakland.

Following the luncheon, a collection was taken up and $1501 was obtained as a starter for the Christmas fund. The remainder of the money will be raised between this time and the holidays, it was said. Arrangements were made yesterday for the club's Christmas celebration, which will be held at the Arcadia dancing pavilion, Fourteenth and Franklin streets, and which will be attended by about 600 children. Mike Fisher and Fred LeBlanc will be the Santa Claus twins and distribute the gifts. Chairman A. S. Lavenson of the holiday gift committee presided at the meeting.

According to present arrangements, the names of deserving poor children will be gathered by school teachers and turned over to the committee, which will provide a gift for each child. Transportation

ENROLLMENT IN SCHOOLS SHOWS

888,936 TOTAL

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 7.—A total of 888,936 students enrolled in California state schools during 1921, according to estimates compiled in the state department of education. The figures include the enrollment in elementary, secondary and kindergarten schools, junior and teachers' colleges, special schools and the University of California. The enrollment was 2,242,242 in 1920. Elementary, 570,778; kindergarten, 46,131; high schools, 237,199; junior colleges, 2769; teachers' colleges, 8487; special schools, 58,090. The figures for the University include all its branches and extension courses. An increase of more than $6,000,000 is being asked by the department of education this year to cover the increase in attendance of the elementary and secondary schools for the coming biennium.

AUTOIST RUNS IN SAFETY ZONE; GETS 6 MONTHS

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 7.—Walter White, a Sacramento resident, was sentenced to serve six months in the county jail upon conviction of having run his automobile into a safety zone standard here last Saturday night. He was arrested by a deputy sheriff who said he saw White pilot his car against the sign.

to and from the celebration will be furnished and to those who are unable to attend, presents will be delivered.

Next Wednesday's meeting will be devoted to auctioning packages of merchandise provided by members of the club from their own stores and the proceeds from the auction will go toward the holiday gift fund.

Members of the committee, in addition to Lavenson, are A. W. Moore, president; Francis Woodward, secretary, and William Stri, Edgar Barber, Clarence Knight, Louis Scheeline, Oliver Kehrlein and Marston Campbell, directors. The Lions club chorus of twelve voices, under the leadership of Eugene Blanchard of Berkeley, made its debut appearance yesterday at the luncheon and sang several numbers. Appreciation of the efforts of the chorus and the work of Blanchard was expressed by the members of the club. On Saturday of next week the chorus will appear at San Rafael during the evening of the Marin county Lions club.

Penney Takes Out $3,000,000 Policy

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—J. C. Penney of the corporation bearing his name today joined the ranks of big league policy holders, when he took out insurance bringing his total up to $3,000,000. His annual premiums will be $120,000. Only three other Americans are now in the Penney class. These are Rudman Wanamaker, who is insured for $4,500,000; John Wanamaker, $3,000,000, and Pierre DuPont, $4,000,000.

Five Million Paid Colombia On Canal

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—The United States yesterday gave the Republic of Colombia a check for $5,000,000, its first payment under the $25,000,000 treaty ratified in 1921 to cover certain damages incurred in the construction of the Panama Canal. The payment was due September 30, but, for some unexplained reason, Colombia was not ready to receive it until yesterday. Under the treaty, the remaining payments will be made yearly in five million dollar sums.

Opera Star Robbed While Making Tour

Hempel, operatic star, returned yesterday to her apartment on Central Park West after a concert tour and was notified that the suite had been robbed. Jewels, furs and apparel composed the greater part of the loot, estimated to be worth between $25,000 and $50,000.

ROBBER SLAIN IN BANK RAID IS EX-CONVICT

DEAD DESPERADO IS IDENTIFIED AS FORMER CONVICT

Paul Heiner, Convicted Robber, Victim of Desperate Raid at Danville.

the hold-up man, but before Daley could execute the order the thug snatched the keys out of his hand, snatched the chain that held them to Daley's trousers, and commanded Daley to walk in front of him to the main door of the bank and lock it.

With the two revolvers pressed against the small of his back, Daley did as requested and further pulled together the old-fashioned shutters of the bank which operate from the inside. The room was now in semi-darkness and not a word was spoken for a few minutes.

For more than half an hour the bandit looked around the bank, stuffing his pockets with cash and currency. Then he returned to the vault.

"There must be more dough in this bank," he said. "Now you either tell me where it is or I'll kill you."

The bandit then politely requested Daley for the use of his handkerchief and used it to blindfold the cashier. When he had secured the knot to suit himself the bandit presented Daley with a package he had been holding under his arm throughout the proceedings.

"Take this loaf of bread and walk into the vault," the bandit said.

Once in the vault the bandit instructed Daley to sit down in a corner facing the door.

During the early part of the robbery Rasmussen was working in a room at the rear of the bank, and while he heard the conversation, he said that he believed it was one of the village sickness who frequently came into the bank and with loud conversation did similar things.

FORCED BOTH MEN INTO VAULT.

Finally, when he had finished his work, Rasmussen returned to the bank room and found the bandit standing in front of him with both guns leveled at him. Ordered to put up his hands, he complied with alacrity and with his hands elevated was forced to walk into the open vault where Daley sat.

Rasmussen was blindfolded and placed in a waiting position facing Daley. The two men were then ordered to disclose the exact places where the bank's money was to be found in the usual receptacles and the bandit left them in the safe and started to work on the burglar alarm.

In a brief space of time he completely dismantled the alarm without setting it off, proving to the police that he either had experience in this line of work before or was an experienced electrician familiar with the mechanism of burglar alarms. Once he was finished with the alarm he proceeded to search the bank.

Both men protested that they did not know of any other places to look.

DISCOVERS $50,000 IN CHECK DRAWER.

Unsatisfied the bandit returned to the search and finally discovered a pile of $50,000 in currency at the back of a check drawer.

A shout of delight followed this discovery and with the money clutched in his hand he raced back to the vault, crying:

"I've got you two now!"

The two men feared they would be killed, according to their statements, on account of shooting things as his first actions indicated, the bandit apparently turned around, slammed the vault door shut, without locking it, and left them.

While this search was going on the citizens of the town were becoming alarmed.

August Humbert had gone to the bank while the bandit was doing his work, in an attempt to enter and make a deposit. The doors were closed and he could not understand.

At 6 o'clock.

In an effort to discover what was the matter Humbert went to the home of Daley's mother, Mrs. Ida E. Root, and inquired of her if her son had said anything about closing the bank. She in turn attempted to raise the bank by telephone.

ROBBER DISREGARDS TELEPHONE BELL.

As the bandit worked the telephone rang in the bank and he did not take the time or trouble to detach the receiver from the hook.

Humbert then returned to the town and noticed Constable Oscar Olsen, who went to the bank with Bert Reed, one of the residents of Danville, and peering through a crack in the shutter saw the armed robber going through the cash drawers. Olsen was unarmed and dashed across the street to procure a revolver.

The gun he secured had only two bullets in it, but he returned to the bank just as the bandit opened the door and stepped out. Olsen fired two shots point blank at the robber, but missed and the robber returned the fire without effect.

Aroused by the shooting the citizenry armed itself and participated in the cross-town pursuit of the thief. Round and round bank building the chase went with the bandit loading and re-loading his weapons and firing back at his pursuers.

One of telling shots at the bandit was fired by a young Danville boy, who was returning from a shooting expedition.

Methods Most Daring of All Eastbay Raids

Bandit Ransacks Bank For Hour Before Locating All Currency.

This was the modus operandi of the most daring bank robber to invade the Eastbay district, who was killed by the Oakland shotgun squad after he had secured $50,000 from the Danville branch of the San Ramon Valley Bank.

At 2 o'clock the bandit armed with two revolvers, several rounds of ammunition and a loaf of bread and clad in a brown cravat and a rain hat stepped up to the assistant cashier's window.

He pointed the revolvers at H. Daley, ordered him to remain motionless until told to do otherwise and explained his purpose.

With Daley in front of him the bandit locked the bank door of the bank and closed the shutters on the windows.

Daley was then placed in the vault of the bank blindfolded and the bandit started to work.

JOHN DALEY IN VAULT.

H. C. Rasmussen, another assistant cashier, who was in the rear of the bank, came into the main office and was blindfolded and ushered into the vault with Daley.

For almost an hour the bandit searched the bank, putting loose money and currency in his pockets. A few minutes before his departure he discovered $50,000 concealed at the back of a check drawer.

The bandit then closed the vault doors and walked out into the street to face Constable Oscar Olsen, who fired two shots point-blank at the robber.

An exchange of shots took place and the bandit fled in the general direction of his car which was four blocks away.

Children joined in the chase which led to a barn where the bandit sought refuge.

Constable-elect James P. Root attempted to enter the barn unaided, but he was shot at and fled in the direction of the police who were on the scene.

While shots were flying about at random, the thug got to his machine, started it and fled in the direction of the police who were on the scene.

As he raced from the scene of the holdup the constable and his successor threw stones at him.

The police of the counties were notified and an attempt made to trail the robber. The bandit sped toward Oakland.

On East Fourteenth street a boy hailed the bandit car, asked for a ride. The bandit put on his brakes, brought the vehicle to a stop and told the boy to get in the car.

The police machine from Oakland scouting about in search of the fugitive, met the bandit car in East Twelfth street. The police chauffeur was going so fast the chauffeur could not turn to follow the bandit.

Inspector William Smith jumped from the police machine, commanded a passing automobile and chased the bandit car to the Lake Merritt dam.

Here he leaped to the running board of the bandit car and in the face of bullets fired by the bandit, fired at him and held him at bay until the police arrived on the scene. The bandit's gun was seized by the police.

One of the army bullets injured a motorman on a street car at the scene of the accident.

In the topmost of the machine was found beside a frightened school boy, coin and currency totaling $125.25.

CITY DREDGER PIPE LINE TO BE OPERATED UPON

A delicate mechanical-surgical operation, something like the task of re-aligning a string of pearls, is being undertaken by the city's waterfront experts to remove upon the pontoon pipe-line stretching from the municipal dredger to the Farr Terminal dock.

The pipe-line, which is located on a long string of pontoons, brings the dredged material ashore, where it is distributed behind the dock line. The pontoon line consists of 25 pontoons, each 40 feet long.

The pipe-line is being moved to put new joints to open up the 25 pontoons, without taking the line apart.

In such a pipe-line there must always be a certain amount of elasticity to allow for the action of the waves. The pipes have been joined together in the past by rubber joints, but it is found that rubber has a habit of growing old and blowing out suddenly.

The new joints will be steel bolt affairs of special design, built on the screw-and-socket principle. If they are found to be effective, they will be adopted for all similar waterfront work.

Clemenceau Honored At Harding Luncheon

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—George Clemenceau, war premier of France, was guest of honor at President Harding's luncheon today.

The other guests were: Chief Justice Taft, Secretary Hughes, Mellon, Weeks, Denby, Fall and Davis, Attorney General Daugherty, Speaker Gilbert, Senator Lodge and Representative Porter, chairman of the Senate and House foreign affairs committees; Ambassador Jusserand and Henry White and Hugh C. Wallace, both former ambassadors to France.

New York Shivers As Cold Wave Hits

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—Cold waves throughout New York were besieged by hundreds of shivering persons today as a cold wave swept over the city. Governor Miller and Fuel Administrator Moadin called on the state to make an Albany today in an attempt to remedy the coal shortage which threatens suffering here.

METHODS USED BRAND ROBBER AS UNBALANCED

Failed to Plan Escape and Dashed Directly Into Trap of Police.

By GEORGE C. HENDERSON, Author of "The Quiet Mystery" and "The Answer to a Million Crooks."

What is the psychology of a man who thinks he can rob a bank like that in Danville, win a battle with 110,000 people against him, and escape?

Paul Heiner alias "Calvin West," who was killed after the bank robbery in a duel with the Oakland police, was a borderline case, evidently a moron.

To the average sane person, such an exploit as that attempted by Heiner appears not only foolhardy but actually insane. But to the deluded mind of a mental defective it seemed a very reasonable and logical course of action.

METHODS DIBECILIC.

Heiner's modus operandi brands him almost as an imbecile. No expert criminal would have robbed the bank just as he robbed it. He rented a car in San Francisco, saying that he wanted one with the side curtains up on account of the rain. Of course he wanted the side curtains to conceal his identity.

But after taking these precautions, did he wear a mask or a disguise of any kind on entering the bank? He did not. And before the hold-up, he loitered around the town in conspicuous garb for two days and on the day of the robbery he exposed himself publicly, acting in a very nervous manner.

He entered the institution undisguised and held up H. H. Daley, assistant cashier, and H. C. Rasmussen, paying teller, ordering them into the bank vault in true bandit style. Then, when he secured another incident that showed a queer quirk in this man's mind, he handed one of his pursuers a loaf of bread, telling him that he would be in the vault a long time.

What strange line of reasoning led this man to think of buying a loaf of bread for the prisoners in the vault, when he could not figure out in advance his own line of retreat? This is another particular that certainly labels Heiner as a moron. Evidently he pondered over the crime for a long time. Undoubtedly he had read, in fact or fiction, of someone being left to die of starvation in a bank vault. Of course he was too imbecile to reason that they would starve to death and that a glass of water under such circumstances would have been much more valuable to a prisoner than a loaf of bread. But at any rate he was mentally unbalanced enough to provide himself with a loaf of bread for the persons he proposed to lock in the vault.

COIN GATHERING LOGICAL.

His next move was perfectly logical. He gathered all the gold, silver and currency in sight, amounting to about $50,000.

Puzzled as he was, and he saw them. Any sane robber would have bolted then and there. He would have fought his way through the spectators before they became too numerous or had called an officer.

But the bandit remained inside for one hour and twenty minutes. This clearly indicates Heiner was a moron. It would not require much intelligence on the part of an outlaw to reason that the longer he remained in an institution after committing a crime, the greater opportunity would be offered for the arrival of officers.

The marvelous part of the performance is that Heiner was not surrounded there in the bank by an armed posse and prevented from escaping.

After this long wait, during which time the slow progress of his brain began to function, he decided to fight his way out. He remembered that he had given the crowd ample time to summon officers and to get on the scene.

His action in shooting his way through that crowd is not very commendable to the personnel of the posse, but it certainly still further confirms the impression that he was mentally unbalanced. He raced for his automobile, but was cut off by the same crowd that he had just bluffed out. Apparently he lost his nerve or his direction of purpose. Maybe he had to stop to think. At any rate he was cornered in a wooded back of the home of Manuel Brown in Danville.

He reached his car and fled toward Oakland closely pursued. But he had played his getaway so cleverly, if he had planned it at all, that he did not even know the road over which he must travel. He stopped at Castro Villa, a road-house, and then he was captured.

He inquired his way into Oakland. Any normal crook would have realized that after the elapse of all this time, every avenue of escape would be guarded. A person of 12-year-old wisdom would have jumped out of the car and would have hidden in the hills until the hurry was over. But this bandit drove serenely into Oakland, apparently entirely oblivious to the fact that there are such things as police officers in existence.

And now comes the tragic finish which clearly marks Heiner as a moron. Contrary to general public opinion, the most daring bandits are not smart men.

The killer nearly always is deranged. Officers have no fear of arresting persons of ordinary intelligence. They know when they are beaten they will submit. But the moron does not reason. He acts on his impulse.

BATTLES UNREASONABLY.

When Heiner was cornered by the Oakland police on East Twelfth street, ordinary reason should have told him that he was beaten. If he had possessed a grain of common sense he would have known that he could not fight his way through a city of 200,000 people with hundreds of officers on his trail.

But he played in character to the end. He shot it out. He fought, though it was a hopeless battle. There was nothing heroic about it. It was pure insanity.

PURSuing CARS FALL BEHIND IN EXCITING RACE

Scores of Shots Exchanged As Fugitive Makes His Way to Oakland.

Historic battles in Alameda county were duplicated yesterday when law officers followed the daring bank bandit for 34 miles along a thickly trafficked road between Danville and Oakland.

Losing track at times of the bandit who was driving a swift car, the pursuing party, consisting of three smaller automobiles, fell by the roadside until only one of the cars containing Daley and F. A. Marshall remained in the pursuit when the car was stopped at Oak and Twelfth streets in Oakland by a shotgun squad.

After breaking out of the barn and the encounter with Root and Olsen, the bandit made his way to the car, firing at anyone who came in sight. Although unarmed, Root followed closely at his heels, throwing stones at the bandit and the car. It was here that Root obtained the number of the car, which was telephoned head to the police of Oakland and which subsequently resulted in the capture of the bandit.

DIFFICULTY IN STARTING.

The bandit experienced some difficulty in starting the car, taking fully two minutes to get the motor running.

While working the controls on the car in an attempt to start it, the bandit stopped at short intervals to take a shot at Root and Olsen and the citizens who were coming from the downtown section armed with firearms. Before the car could start, however, the bandit got the car under way and by a car of the back streets made for the highway, going south toward San Ramon. While making his way out of the city more than thirty shots were exchanged between the bandit and citizens.

Three pursuit parties, heavily armed, were formed the first carrying Daley and Marshall was the only one to complete the trip. One of the chase a few miles outside of Danville when a tire blew out, and the other went only a little further, being stopped on account of engine trouble. Marshall, driving the car which hung close to the heels of the bandit car all the way in, attempted at various times to get within range, but the bandit pressing his car to its utmost and keeping other cars managed to elude them.

SEEN ON LEVEL STRETCH.

At times when they reached a long level stretch, the bandit car came within sight only to be lost again at the next turn in the road. Other cars along the highway drew to the side and made way for the speeding cars.

The bandit car stopped at Castro Villa where he inquired as to the shortest and most direct route into Oakland. The pursuit car had fallen slightly behind and lost track of the car here until they found it at Twelfth and Oak streets.

Driving along Twelfth street at moderate speed, the car was stopped by thirteen-year-old Glenn Scott who asked for a ride into town.

The bandit admitted the youth into the front seat of the car and drove along in a leisurely manner until he came into the traffic on Twelfth street after crossing the Lake Merritt dam. The car was stopped to permit the passing of a street car at Twelfth and Oak streets, when it was overtaken by the police armored car.

POLICE KEPT INFORMED.

Captain of Inspectors Richard McSorley and Police Inspector Frank Rossick, after receiving a description of the bandit car and the bandit, immediately sent out a patrol car on the lookout for him on all roads by which he might enter the city, and also posted men to prevent his leaving the city either with the car or in any other manner. Road houses and gasoline stations along the way that had been given a description of the car kept the Oakland police informed of its movements as it passed, shortly after it left Danville until the time it reached Oakland.

The route covered by the bandit started from Danville, to San Ramon, Hayward Pass, and then into Oakland.

Widow to Inherit Whole Mann Estate

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Mrs. Emma C. Mann, widow of Congressman James R. Mann, who died several days ago in Washington, will inherit his entire estate with an estimated value of $200,000, according to his wife to be filed for probate this week, George W. Miller, attorney.

CHURCHES JOIN IN HOME VISITS

Tomorrow afternoon, from two to four o'clock, will be Home Visitation Day for Oakland, Berkeley and Alameda, when representatives of all faiths will call at the homes and will leave printed invitations, inviting the people to attend the Sunday school, church or synagogue of their choice. Records of individual church connections also will be secured for the pastors of the different churches.

Home visitation has been observed in all of the large cities in the United States and Canada and in many cities in other countries. More than 54,000,000 people have been visited through this movement during the past fourteen and a half years. It has been observed in such cities in the United States as New York, Chicago, Detroit, Baltimore, St. Louis, Kansas City, Dallas, Denver, Los Angeles and many others; and in Canada, Toronto, Montreal and other cities, and in Liverpool and Bootle, England, before the war.

POLICE, BANDIT FIGHT GUN DUEL TO DEATH

GUNMAN AT BAY MAKES HOPELESS FIGHT FOR LIFE

Throngs Gather As Bullets
Fly in Traffic Crowded Street As Chase Ends.

Within a few moments after news of the bank robbery was flashed to the local department, a police car, carrying four members of the shotgun squad with orders to "shoot to kill," was speeding eastward in an attempt to head off the bandit.

The posse was composed of Inspectors A. E. Stebbins, John Gannaw, William Smith and William Marshall.

Believing that the fleeing gunman would choose East Twelfth street as his entrance to this city, in his desperate effort to escape, the officers drove out this highway. Possessing only a meager description of the bandit automobile, the detectives had been ordered by Captain of Inspectors Richard V. McSorley to stop and question any driver that might arouse their suspicion.

POSSE SPOTS QUARRY.

As they swept out East Twelfth street and crossed Sixth avenue, the posse spotted a touring car which gave evidence of being their quarry. This machine was being driven west at a high rate of speed and was passing other automobiles. The police car was brought to a stop and an attempt was made to swing it across the street, blocking the road, but the approaching automobile was traveling so fast that it passed before this maneuver could be executed.

Inspector Smith jumped to the street, commandeered an automobile and began chasing the bandit alone, while the detectives' car was turning around.

The two machines raced wildly toward the downtown section. Smith's automobile gained slowly on the fugitive, who was forced to slow down because of increased traffic.

BANDIT BEGINS BATTLE.

Covering the gunman with his weapon, the officer ordered him to put up his hands.

"Go to h—!" cried the bandit, and fired his revolver several times almost in the detective's face. The bullets went wild, one of them striking C. B. Duncan, 24 Fourth avenue, motorman of a street car, which, coming east, had been stopped in the traffic, just a few feet from the robber's automobile.

Smith ducked, and still crouching on the running board, replied with more shots. For several seconds they were in this position, firing blindly.

Scores of pedestrians in the vicinity heard the shots and running to the scene of the gun battle, watched, awe-stricken, from a safe distance the close-quarter gun duel between the detective and the bandit, saw the windshield of one machine shattered by the flying bullets, heard the projectiles strike the avenue and saw them ricochet. They were witnessing the most sensational gun fight in the history of the local police department.

POSSE SURROUNDS BANDIT.

While Smith was firing, the bandit, apparently emptying one of his pistols, dropped it and reached for a fresh revolver in the back seat of the car. The police car containing the other three inspectors, reached the scene, and the officers, armed with sawed-off shotguns, deployed about the auto.

Seeing the posse's arrival, the bandit, wounded, leaped from his machine and made his last stand against the officers.

Shot after shot was pumped by the detectives from their shotguns at the hold-up man, who shot back with his revolver.

Finally the gunman ceased firing, and crumpled to the pavement in a pool of blood. The officers, closing in, found that he was dead.

In the front seat of the automobile, directly behind the frame of the windshield, which had been shot away, cowered a white-faced boy, noticed by the inspectors for the first time. He implored the detectives to hold their fire.

FLYING GLASS CUTS BOY.

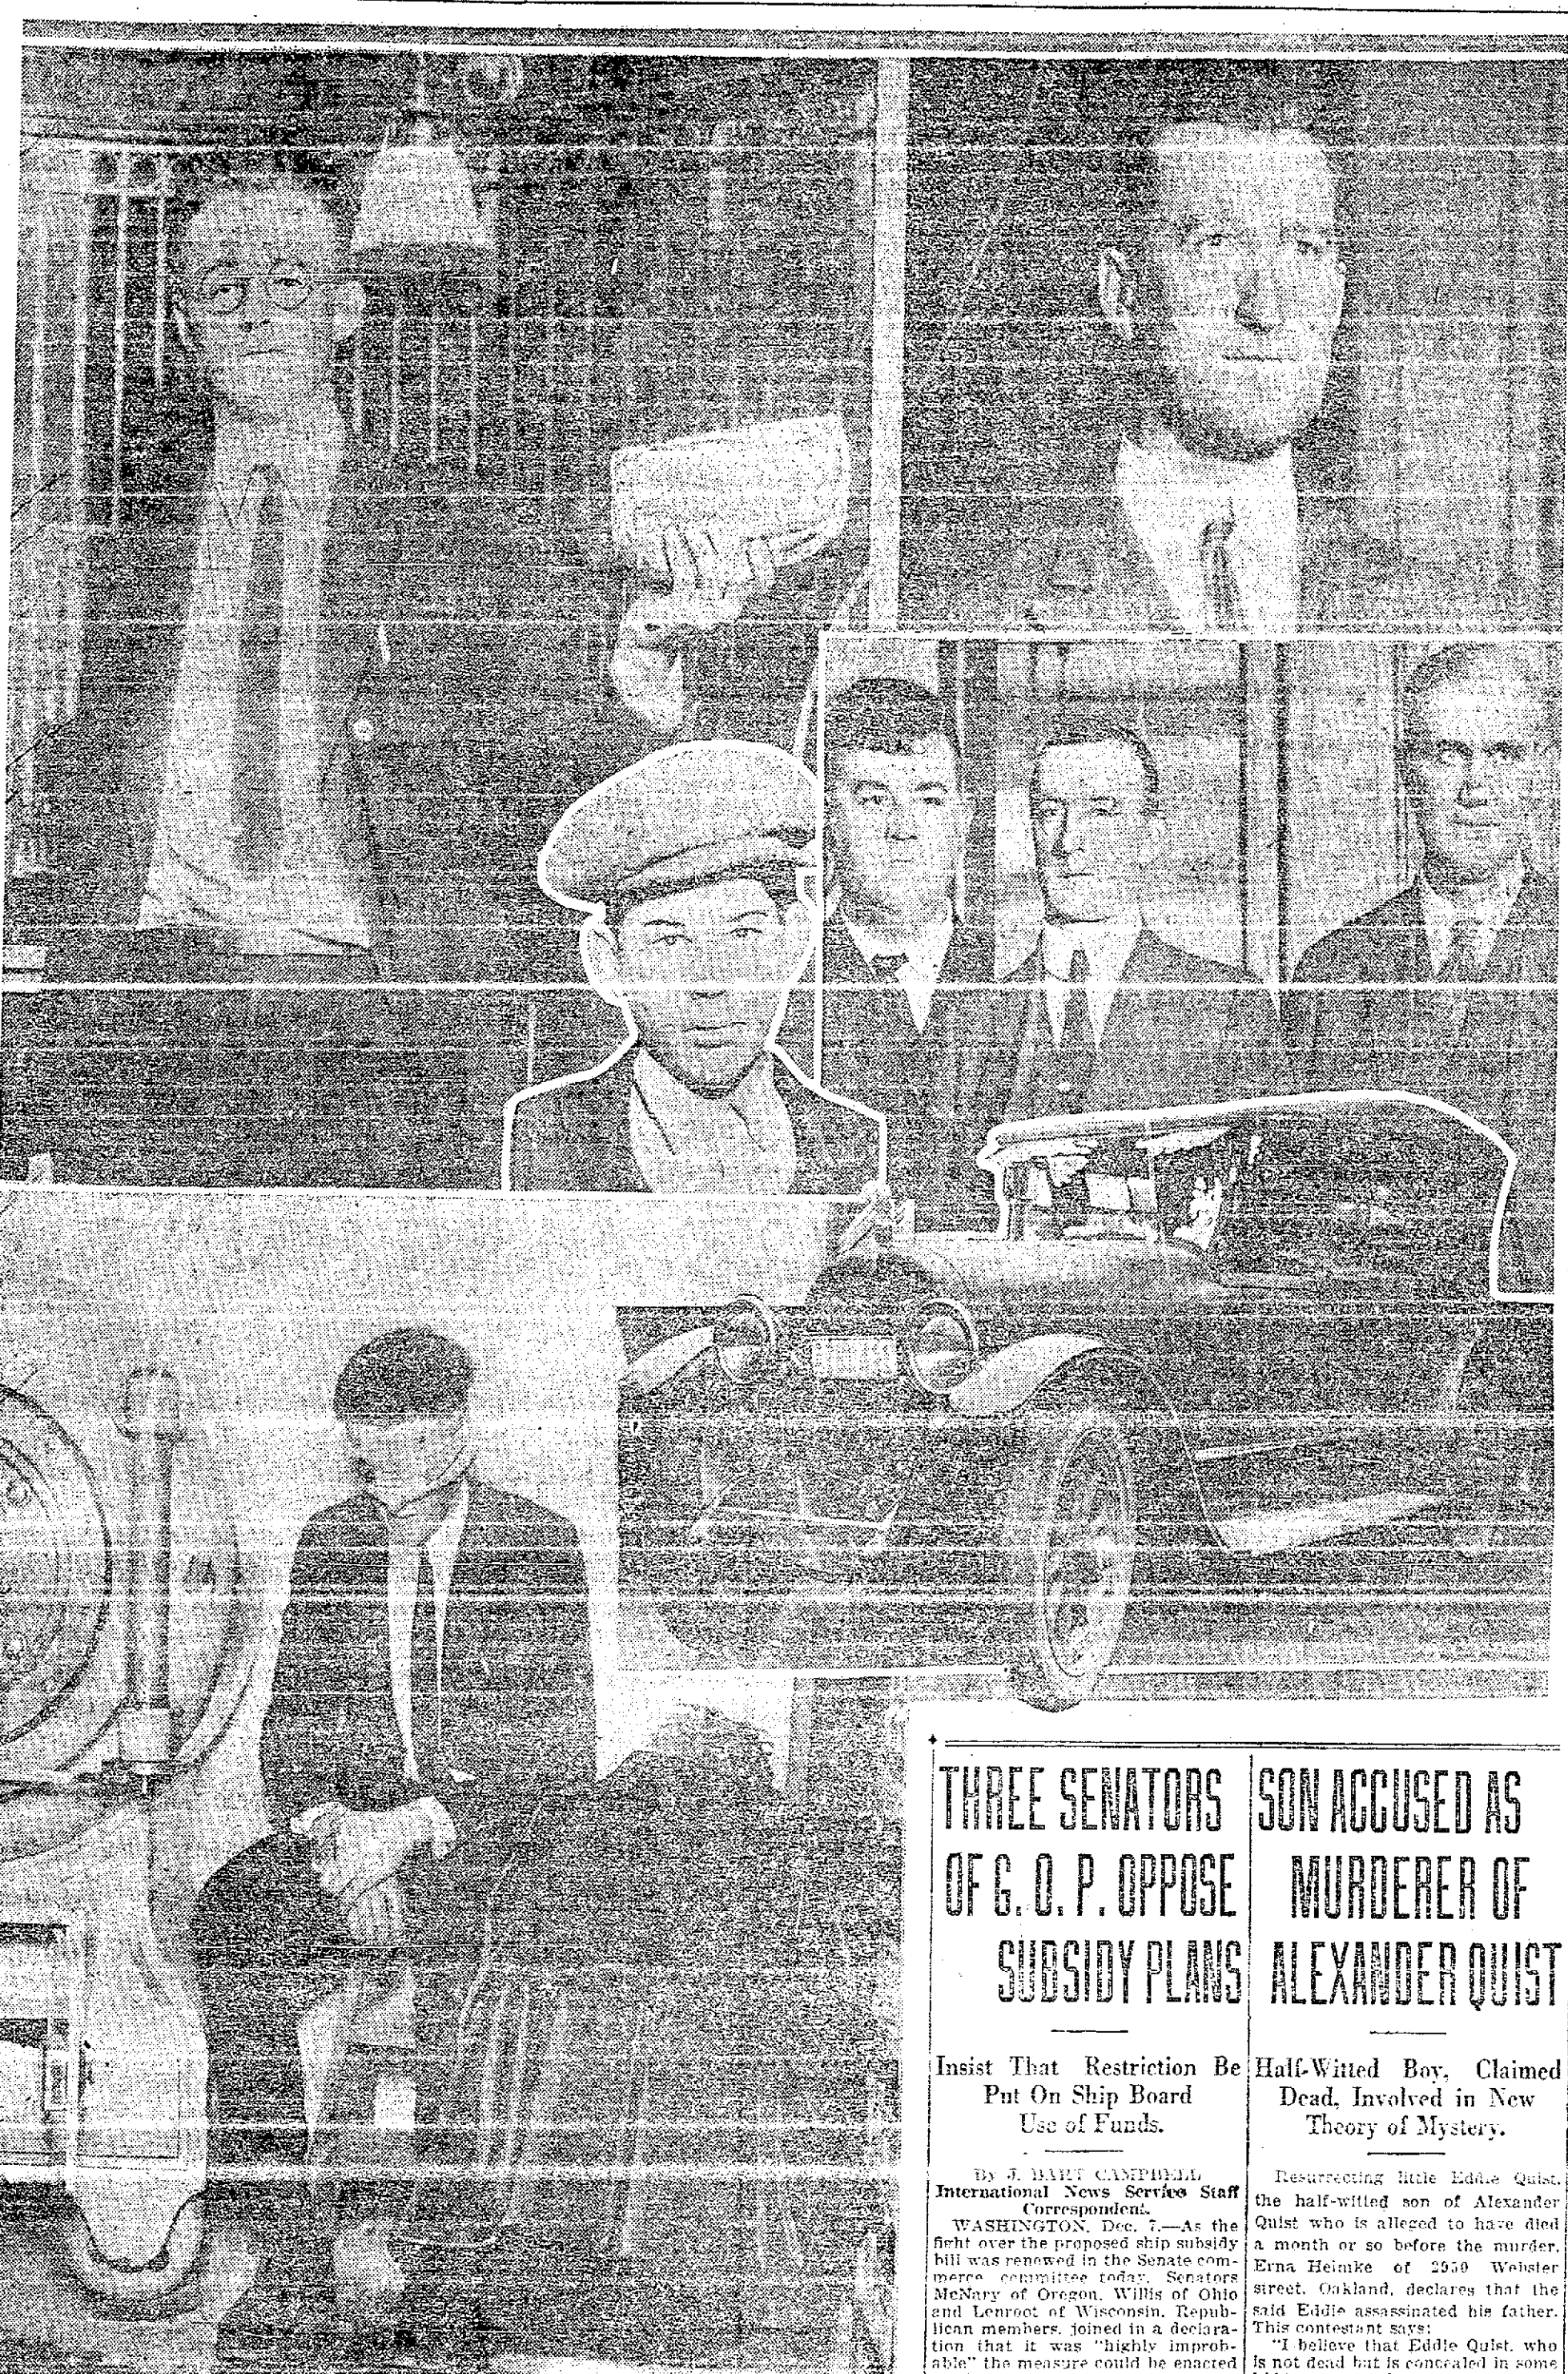

"Don't shoot me!" cried the lad. "I'm all right."

He was Glenn Scott, 15 years old, a school boy of 1106 Jackson street, who had asked the bandit for a ride at Seventh avenue and robber had slowed down long enough to allow the boy to get in

Bandit's Flight, Battle Told by Boy Companion

Youth Who Rummaged Ride
From Desperado Tells of Thrilling Trip.

Unwittingly the companion of a daring hold-up man, thirteen-year-old Glenn Scott, who was in the bandit car late yesterday afternoon when the unknown bandit who robbed the San Ramon Valley branch bank at Danville was killed by a shotgun squad, is today the envy of his schoolmates of the Franklin school while he tells the harrowing story of how he sat beside the bandit while he waged "the battle with the police."

Here is the story as the lad told it today while his father, William J. Scott, was adding to a number of cars which he had received from flying glass. The lad makes his home with his father and an older brother in back of a small grocery store at 1106 Jackson street.

"After the close of school yesterday I fooled around for a short time with a number of the fellows and had started walking home. I was going along Twelfth street and had asked a number of people for a ride, who didn't stop. Finally this man came along in a large car when I had gotten as far as Seventh avenue and East Twelfth street.

GIVES BOY RIDE.

"He seemed more than glad to stop and take me into the car. I noticed nothing out of the ordinary except that he seemed to be a little older than me, and he laughed to himself as I got into the front seat beside him.

"After we had started again he asked me if I could drive a car. I told him that I knew how to drive a Ford but that I had never driven a large car.

"Well, I guess you wouldn't be able to handle this car then," the man said.

"That was about all the conversation that went on, except that I told him that I lived on Jackson street and wanted to get out there.

"He looked very closely at all the cars that tried to pass us and didn't want to let any of them get by. I also noticed that as we got closer to town he started getting nervous.

"At the corner of Oak and Twelfth street we were caught in a traffic jam. A man ran to the left side of the car and pointing a pistol at the man's head said 'hands up.'

TELLS OF GUN FIGHT.

"The bandit pulled a gun from somewhere about his clothing and fired at the detective. The detective ducked and then started shooting at the bandit. They exchanged shots for a while and when the gun which the bandit had been using was empty he reached around on the back seat of the car and pulled out another gun.

"I felt something hit the side of my face, and then I jumped

TRIBUNE FIRST TO GIVE NEWS OF BANDIT HUNT

Extra Furnished Details of Daring Crime and of Battle to Death.

The Oakland TRIBUNE has once again scored heavily in being first with the news. This time the paper's news gathering and news disseminating powers were strikingly demonstrated in yesterday's story of the shooting of the Danville bank robber, which occurred at 4:59 p. m. The TRIBUNE was the only Oakland newspaper to appear with a story of the bank hold-up, and followed this up with being the only Oakland paper to publish an extra announcing the gun battle between the police and the robber, and describing the slaying of the bandit by the police officers.

San Francisco newspapers in each case did not cross the bay with these stories until fully one hour and a half after the TRIBUNE was "on the street."

As soon as word reached the TRIBUNE editorial office that there was a possibility of the bandit being enroute to Oakland after his robbery of the Danville bank, reporters and photographers were stationed at strategic points, with the result that every angle of the story was "covered completely" in newspaper parlance.

"The detectives killed the bandit and because they did not know how I happened to be with him started to take me along. When I told them how I happened to be in the car and that I lived only a few blocks from the scene of the shooting they took me home and after questioning my father and me further they let me stay at home.

"The lad assured his father and others in the room at the time of telling his story that it would be some time before he "bummed" another ride.

and emptied his shot-gun at the Captain of Inspectors Richard V. McSorley immediately mobilized his forces.

With Inspector Frank Rossick at the telephone the local police traced the flight of the bandit car through the towns in the neighborhood of Danville and finally learned that he was headed for Oakland. The shotgun squad then started out to meet the oncoming robber.

Within an hour of the time he left Danville the bandit was dead and the money recovered. It was stated officially today that the amount taken from the bank totaled $7698.18, and that $7258.35 was recovered, making a loss of $440.12 to the bank.

KID MCCOY BANKRUPT.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—Norman Selby, known in the boxing world as "Kid McCoy," motion picture actor and fight promoter, filed a petition in bankruptcy in the United States District court yesterday. He listed his liabilities as $8966.57, and his assets as $200, or three good suits of clothes.

Blood was streaming from a cut on young Scott's face caused by flying glass.

Scott, terrified, told the officers of his wild ride with the bandit from the moment he entered the machine until the gunfight ended with bloodshed.

After the bandit's death hundreds of people crowded about the spot where the body lay stretched out on the pavement. It was literally riddled with bullets. Patrolmen were called to keep back the crowd until the detectives gathered the evidence they desired and had the body removed to the morgue. In the tonneau of the automobile, wrapped up in a mackinaw, was found the money which the bandit had stolen from the bank at Danville, except for a small sum that is believed to have been lost by the robber in his flight.

AUTO BULLET-RIDDLED.

The automobile which he drove was pierced with pistol bullet and shot holes from the hood to the rear. The pavement was covered with bits of glass from the windshield which had been shattered by the flying bullets.

Police officials said today that the bandit's standing fight at a busy street corner and within a few blocks of the police station, and the heart of Oakland's downtown business district, was the most dramatic and spectacular in local police annals.

JURY FINDS ROY WILMOT GUILTY IN BRIBE CASE

F. Prohibition Agent Convicted and Will Be Sentenced Saturday.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—A verdict of "guilty as charged" was returned yesterday by the jury in the U. S. District Court in the case of Roy Wilmot, prohibition agent, charged with the acceptance of bribes. The case has been on trial since November 21.

The entire indictment returned against Wilmot by the Federal Grand Jury is covered by yesterday's verdict. The indictment was as follows: That Wilmot accepted the use of J. J. Kolburn's automobile as a bribe to affect his duty as prosecutor of a prohibition case against Kolburn and the latter's partner; that he accepted whiskey from a pharmacy with the same intent; that he had accepted a $100 bribe from Kolburn.

Wilmot will appear before Judge Van Fleet next Saturday for judgment. The maximum penalty on each count is three years in the federal penitentiary, and a $2000 fine.

Benjamin F. Gals of the U. S. attorney's office said in closing his argument yesterday: "Perjury means no more to Wilmot than water to a fish. If you want an in-

Consider the character of the man, consider the evidence as to his attempts to suborn perjury, to have someone commit perjury to save him. It was a deep laid plot and came very near going over. There is always something divine which bares the treachery of men who seek to drag others to the depths in which they find themselves.

Gals declared that, for a time, Wilmot had "fooled" some of the San Francisco police officials. But, he said, the police now see the light, and this was the reason that Captain of Police Goff took the stand and told of the manner in which Wilmot had been brought back from San Jose Monday.

The jury returned its verdict after having been out fifty minutes.

THEOSOPHY HEAR TO LECTURE BY TRIBUNE RADIO

"Ghosts of Shakespeare" Subject of Discourse to Go Out From KLX Tonight.

Something new in the way of radio lectures will be broadcast tonight by KLX. The TRIBUNE's station, L. W. Rogers, national president of the Theosophical Society, will speak on the subject "Ghosts of Shakespeare."

Rogers' lectures throughout the country have been described in various press notices as "stirring and informative," "encouraging the study of comparative religion, philosophy and science," and as "enlightening man on the unexplained laws of nature."

Rogers gave a public lecture at the Pacific building last night and will give another tonight. He spoke over the radio on several weeks ago at Detroit, Mich., on "The Living Dead."

The lecture by Rogers this evening from KLX is one of a series of various speakers arranged several weeks ago. He will speak this evening at 7:15 and 7:30. Radio KLX will be on the air from 7 until 7:15 with the regular press broadcast.

Tomorrow night the Hawaiian Knights, who pleased so many thousands at their first radio concert from KLX some weeks ago, are coming back again.

HAMON'S WIDOW ASKS DIVORCE FOR CRUELTY

CHICAGO, Dec. 7.—Charging certain acts of "jitsu," Mrs. William L. Rohrer, widow of Jake L. Hamon, Oklahoma oil millionaire and politician, who was killed by his secretary, Clara Smith Hamon, filed suit for divorce here.

Mrs. Rohrer asserted her husband was an expert at the Japanese wrestling art and practiced it on her, causing "great pain, annoyance and physical discomfort."

She charged, also, that despite claims of great wealth, Rohrer

RAIN IN STATE

ACCOMPANIED BY NEVADA SNOWFALL

Downpour Is General and Continued Precipitation Is Predicted.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—Although the North Pacific storm which deluged California with rain today and last night and caused a heavy snowfall in Nevada, has passed to the east and is now central over Wyoming, the moisture continues throughout the state. Heavy rain was general in Northern California, and the forecast of the United States Weather Bureau is for further precipitation tonight and tomorrow.

San Luis Obispo, with 1.10 inches, reported the heaviest rainfall. There were only .29 at San Francisco, but the heaviest rain of the morning occurred after the weather bureau's tabulation and while thousands of persons were on their way to work at 8:30 o'clock. Other weather bureau station reports were as follows: Eureka, .56; San Jose, .45; Sacramento, .44; Red Bluff, .38; Los Angeles, .28; San Diego, .42.

The storm bugged the coast somewhat in Central California and Fresno received no rain whatever for the 24-hour period.

KLS RETURNS TO

OAKLAND HOME

The radiophone station of Warner Brothers, known on the air as Radio KLS, has been moved back to Oakland from San Francisco, where it has been under operation as the Warner Brothers-Daily News station. Warner Brothers announce that they have severed connections with the Daily News, and will operate their own station.

The station formerly was located in Oakland at Twenty-second street and Telegraph avenue, but was moved to San Francisco. It again will occupy the same location, and will be in operation shortly.

While the station is being installed in Oakland The TRIBUNE's station, KLS, has been broadcasting on the time of KLS and will continue to use the time, at the request of Warner Brothers, until the new station is ready to operate on its regular schedule.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache often means you have been eating too much meat.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. An excess of meat may form uric acid, which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood, and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them. Like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is had you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore. Water soups and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus often ending bladder weakness.

Bad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia water drink. Drink lots of soft water.—Advertisement.

YEAR'S PATENTS RUN TO TOTAL OF 113,597

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—Seventy or eighty years ago an official of the United States Patent Office resigned, saying there would be no more use for the office, "since everything inventable had been invented." In 1920, when applications for new patents jumped from 75,557 to 102,940 for the entire year, it was believed the high water mark had actually been reached. Nothing comparable to that figure had ever before been attained in the history of the office. In 1921, however, the number rose to 107,656, and in the fiscal year ended last June it reached the total of 113,597, according to the annual report of the commissioner of patents, just published.

The business of the patent office is in process of what the patent office has developed into a highly efficient, Commissioner Robertson reported.

Until three years ago, Robertson declared, the office received about 8000 trade-mark applications a year, but in the year just closed over 17,000 applications were received.

The patent office was one of the few government departments showing a surplus of receipts over expenses for the year. Cash receipts, totaling $2,894,286, and total expenses, after paying $196,000 as a bonus, left a net surplus of $172,081.

CITY OF 600,000, 1944 FORECAST

Statistical proof that Oakland should be a city with 600,000 people in 1944, was furnished yesterday by Charles C. Weidemann of the University of California department of research, at the luncheon of the Knights of the Round Table, at the Hotel Oakland.

On previous predictions, also made on statistics, Weidemann had prophesied that Oakland would have 209,000 people in 1920. The actual figures were 216,000, or a variance of only 11 per cent. According to the same method of computation, Oakland will have 240,000 population in 1929, and 321,000 in 1939, according to the speaker.

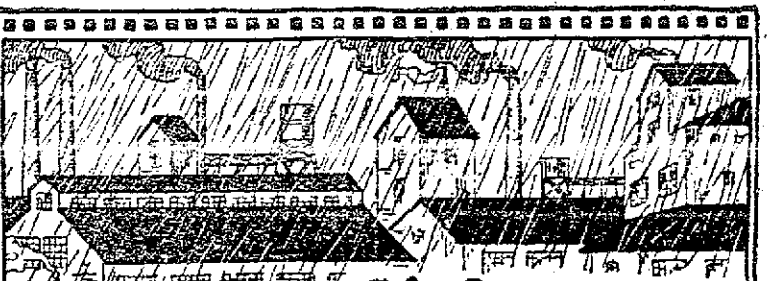

At yesterday's meeting of the Round Table, plans were made for a Christmas party to which the wives of the club members will be invited.

DELTA GROWERS START LETTUCE SHIPMENTS EAST

Antioch Chosen As Shipping and Packing Point For Newest Produce.

ANTIOCH, Dec. 7.—A new product of the Delta, lettuce, is now being shipped to eastern markets and experiments carried on this summer and fall are expected to lead to another laurel for the Delta lands. At Bouldin Island fifty acres have been planted to lettuce as an experiment to learn how the crop will do and indications are that the owners' hopes will be fulfilled.

To date four cars have been shipped out of an expected forty from the acreage which has been planted. The Bouldin Island growers are hauling the crop here to the Santa Fe warehouse where the packing is done.

Hayward C. of C. to Arrange for Budget

Program of work and a budget of expenditures for the coming year will be adopted by the board of directors of the Hayward Chamber of Commerce at a dinner meeting of the board to be held here tonight. It was announced today by M. A. W. Lee, secretary. E. A. Hey, president of the board; A. W. Beam and J. L. Wilber, vice-presidents, and W. W. Haley, treasurer, have drawn up a provisional budget of work and budget which the board will decide on tonight.

The recent membership drive of the chamber increased its membership 30 per cent and the chamber is now 50 per cent stronger than it was before reorganization in February of this year.

Haywardians Plan to Attend S.F. Luncheon

HAYWARD, Dec. 7.—Four members of the Hayward Chamber of Commerce will attend a luncheon meeting of the 100 Per Cent Club of San Francisco tomorrow noon. It was announced today. It is believed that the proposed construction of a toll bridge across San Francisco bay will be discussed at the meeting. I. B. Parsons, local banker; E. A. Hey, president of the chamber; W. H. Daniels, president of the Hayward Rotary Club, and M. A. W. Lee, secretary of the chamber, will attend the meeting.

EDUCATOR TALKS TO TEACHERS ON SILENT READING

Centerville Meeting Held to Improve Methods of Instructors.

NEWARK, Dec. 7.—The majority of the teachers of Washington township and several from Pleasanton and Livermore met in the Centerville grammar school auditorium after school hours Monday evening to hear the subject of silent reading discussed by Professor George W. Freeland of the San Jose Teachers' College, who has been engaged for the occasion by Deputy Superintendent J. L. Bunker of Niles.

Bunker, who has supervised the schools of Washington township since the first of the year, is of the opinion that reading is not being taught any too well and, with the view of making some improvement, he arranged for Professor Freeland, an authority on reading, to explain to the teachers in his charge the great advantages derived from silent reading. The speaker passed to the listeners many hints that will benefit them.

Newark teachers were among those who profited by the address.

MAN DIES WHEN HIT BY TRAIN

RICHMOND, Dec. 7.—Theodore Hooton, whose father is believed to reside in San Francisco, was instantly killed near Hercules yesterday afternoon when struck by a westbound Southern Pacific train. His neck was broken by the impact, although his body was not mangled. Trainmen believe that Hooton was walking on the tracks and stepped out of the way of the train and in front of one coming in the other direction.

A letter to his father was found on the young man's body stating that he would be coming toward the bay district in a few days.

Deputy Coroner Fred Maass left for San Francisco this morning in a search for the man's father.

Richmond Builders To Have Own Home

RICHMOND, Dec. 7.—The Richmond Builders' Exchange decided at last night's banquet to build a home of their own. Lots have been secured on Fourteenth street, just south of the Macdonald avenue intersection. Work on the new building, which is to be either a one or two-story structure, will start within sixty days. At a future meeting, the exchange will go over designs and decide on the height of the structure. The building will be financed by sale of stock to members. The banquet last night was handled by Charley Brown.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity. Prevents Food Fermentation. Sour, Gassy Stomach and acid indigestion.

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried peppermint, pancreatin, charcoal, drugs and various diet aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope and deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic, just try the effect of a little Bisulphate of Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate or other salts, but the pure Bisulphate of Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated, heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little Bisulphate of Magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover, the continued use of the Bisulphate of Magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion. BODY AND WIFE OF FRANK BACON DUE HERE TODAY

Star of "Lightnin'" Will Be Buried Near Mountain View Home Tomorrow.

Mrs. Frank Bacon, with her son Lloyd, accompanying the body of her husband, famous actor, to Mountain View for burial, will arrive in Oakland tonight, according to advices received by relatives today. She will be met by a delegation from Mountain View Lodge, No. 154, F. & A. M., of which Bacon was a member, and escorted to Mountain View.

Funeral services will be held under the direction of the lodge tomorrow afternoon between 3 and 4 o'clock. The services will be attended only by immediate relatives and a few personal friends. Business houses at Mountain View will be closed during the funeral.

Accompanying Bacon's body is that of Mrs. Emma Jeffery, an aunt of Mrs. Bacon, who died in New York about a year ago. Both bodies will be buried at the same time.

During a residence of over 20 years in this section, Bacon was for a time editor of a Mountain View weekly. Henceforth he considered Mountain View his "home town," and always referred to his little Mountain View orchard and residence as "home."

T. and D.

Don't miss "Sherlock Holmes," which will close at the T. & D. theater Friday evening. John Barrymore is the star, and this simple statement means that the greatest actor in the world has the leading role. It is supplemented by an attractive production of other features, including "Choose Your Weapons," a Christy comedy. Walter Beaton, Barlowe, and Becker and his orchestra, offering music in the ranges from the classical to jazz.

Starting Saturday is the photoplay adaptation of the most famous novel ever written, "Lorna Doone," with a notable cast headed by Madge Bellamy, John Bowers and Frank Keenan.

NEW BROADWAY

Widest and most thrilling of Oscar Dooley's dramatic and effective fiction, "The Hounds of Baskerville," will be presented at the New Broadway theater for two days beginning today. The same program is made additionally attractive by the presence of Herbert Rawlinson in "Confidence."

In the screen version of "The Hounds of Baskerville," all of the thrillingly dramatic episodes of the story are developed and interest and suspense is maintained at high tension throughout.

"Confidence" is typical of Herbert Rawlinson's productions, contains dramatic and love interest and an element of mystery that held a fascinating way from beginning to end.

"The Queen of the Moulin Rouge" will be offered Saturday, to be followed Sunday and Monday by the gorgeous Mae Murray in her latest production, "Broadway Rose."

STATE

State theater patrons will find a great deal for their money the latter part of this week starting yesterday. Betty Compson is the photoplay attraction in "Always the Women," her latest production. An especially strong cast is seen supporting Miss Compson, including Emory Johnson and Cora Tuam.

The four Harmony Boys are melodious singers of new songs that more than please, and Clinton Perry and Kathryn Hawthorne offer "Mid Bits from Life," a strictly comedy offering built for laughing purposes only. Nick Copeland and Marjorie Braxton call themselves "Late Stars of Nothing," but calloway, as a tramp comedian, succeeds in getting a barrel of laughs. The Aerial Ballets offer many thrills on the revolving ladders.

CURTAIN CALLS

By WOOD SOANES

FRANK BARRYMORE, stage director at the Fulton Theater, who will in all probability be called upon to produce the play created by Claude Gillingwater in the New Year's production of "Three Wise Men," notes his presence on the stage to a chance remark made by the foreman of his father's wagon and carriage factory in New Orleans.

"My father employed from 50 to 60 mechanics," says Barrymore, "and this man Perry was the foreman. In those days mechanics traveled almost continuously and they used to spend the noon hour recounting their adventures in various corners of the globe."

"One day I spoke out of turn and said: 'Well, some day I am going to travel a lot, too.' The men all laughed and Perry said: 'Why, you poor little thing, you're tied to your mother's apron strings and you will live and die in New Orleans.'"

TWENTY SEASONS AGO TODAY

"Our Boys" has succeeded "The Black Flag" at the Dewey Theater. The Bostonians with the original cast are scheduled for the Macdonough Theater for the near future.

"There was a lot of truth in what he said, but it was the way he said it that aroused my ire and ambition. The men all laughed and I crept away to cry in a corner and at the same time clench my fists and decide to go through with my threat."

From the time I was eight, when I saw my first theatrical performance I had cherished a hope to be an actor. Perry's remark decided me on a career and finally I broke away from the home ties and went to New York to learn my profession.

"For eight years I traveled continually, touring the entire country and playing in every city of any size. Then chance carried me back to New Orleans. My first thought was of Perry. I found him in the same position, although the firm had changed hands after my father's death."

"His greeting was pathetic. After chatting a while he said: 'Well, Frank, I've heard all about you. My son, you've been almost all over the world, haven't you?' I told him that he was right and then recalled the conversation we had years before. Naturally, he had forgotten it, but it made the old man inordinately proud and until his death he always said: 'Now, then, when I insisted that young Frank Guderian go on the stage.'"

Guderian, by the way, is Darrin's real name. He shortened it for stage purposes.

James T. Powers, the millionaire comedian, who is returning to the stage to star in "The Little Kangaroo" under the Morosco banners, had a somewhat different experience.

"I was walking alone Broadway looking for a private fighter type. His eye happened to light upon a figure nearby and immediately the comedian glowed with an inspiration. He approached confidently."

"Beg pardon," said Powers, "but you're an actor, aren't you?" "What made you think so?" parried the other.

"Oh, I can see at a glance that you're an actor," said Powers easily. "You're just the type I'm looking for. I want you to play the role of a pugilist in my new musical show."

"But, my dear sir," said the other mildly, "that is quite impossible. I am the T. R. Means from Shamokin, Pa."

EXITS AND ENTRANCES

Under the direction of Wilbur S. Tupper three one-act plays will be given on Saturday night at the Boulevard Little Theater, 1001 Boulevard and Fifty-seventh avenue. The selections are "The Master of Dreams" by Clifford Down; "The Two Brothers" by Tupper; and "The Price of Coal" by Harold Brickman.

The ending of the second act of "Whispering Wires" at the Forty-ninth Street Theater in New York has been changed. The act at first closed upon a piercing scream by Olive Tell, who has received information over the phone that Boris Strohman, the character actor, is in the city.

In the new version of the detective, George Howell, shoots at a mysterious hand which reaches from behind a curtain to shut out the lights, and this action is made to synchronize with Miss Tell's scream. The curtain falls as the detective picks up a scrap of paper and reads, "Don't forget . . . before midnight."

"The Cabaret Girl," the reigning musical hit of London and the first offering which Jerome Kern and Anne Caldwell bring to see the light of day away from home, will be brought to Broadway by Charles Dillingham next spring.

The problem of what Florenz Ziegler, Jr., would do with the New Amsterdam Roof after prohibition sealed up the roof shows as tight and as a drum, is an unsolved one. The curtain falls as the auditorium over for the presentation of dramatic shows.

Henry Shattuck, who takes his hand from the Orpheum theater to the Hotel Oakland tomorrow night for a benefit ball for the sick fund of the National Vaudeville Artists' Association, has already raised $25,000 by giving functions of this caliber along the Orpheum route.

Forty Years Ago Today—"The Once and Future King" is being celebrated at the Auditorium theater with "Abie's Irish Rose," which opens a three-day engagement on December 25.

MOTORIST HURTS THREE IN SAFETY ZONE, ESCAPES

Auto Driver Flees Amid Hall of Bullets After Running Down Victims.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—Three persons were injured, one of whom may die, when a motorist drove his machine through a group of people on a safety zone at Mission and Bosworth streets last night. The driver of the car did not stop, but escaped amid a hail of bullets fired after him by deputy sheriffs.

The injured: Mrs. Peggie Mayes, 58, Botch street, fractures of the skull and internal injuries; condition critical. Charles Carstensen, 227 Monterey boulevard; cuts and bruises. Peter Carrot, 415 Bosworth street; cuts and bruises.

The victims were waiting for a street car when the automobile, containing a man and a woman, plunged into their midst. Deputy Sheriff James Stenson, who happened to be on the spot, called to the motorist to stop. As the car pursued its way, he opened fire on it, without bringing it to a stop, however.

AUTO BREAKS MAN'S RIB. SAN LEANDRO, Dec. 7.—Walter James of Hayward sustained a fractured rib when he was struck by an automobile at the corner of East Fourteenth street and Estudillo avenue here last night.

NEW PIEDMONT

Tonight and tomorrow patrons of the New Piedmont Theater will see Priscilla Dean in "Under Two Flags," the new photoplay production of Guida's world-famous novel of the same name. It is said that never before has the character of "Cigarette," the daughter of the regiment, been played with such dash, brilliance and dramatic excellence as in this picture. Miss Dean's natural characteristics, her build and particular type of beauty all lend themselves to a role of this kind, and those who have seen her play this part declare that her work in this vehicle is the best of her career. "Under Two Flags" closes its engagement at the New Piedmont on Friday evening.

On next Sunday evening another of the series of grand concerts by the Philharmonic Concert Orchestra under the direction of Mieczyslaw Gonsky will be featured together with an excellent photoplay program.

Mountain Splits, Smokes, Rumbles: People in Panic

POTENZA, Italy, Dec. 7 (United Press).—Inhabitants of San Feles fled in terror today following the appearance of great smoking fissures in the slopes of Mount Terrotta.

Dense clouds of fumes shot from the cracks as if projected by high pressure.

The eruptions were accompanied by loud rumblings adding to the fright of the hundreds of persons who took refuge in surrounding cities and mountains.

Scientists plan to visit the scene immediately to ascertain whether the disturbance is a geological phenomena or marks the birth of a new volcano.

CHIMES

Today and tomorrow the Chimes theater offers an unusual program. "Kindred of the Dust" is the feature, written by Peter B. Kyne and featuring Marian Cooper. For one day only, Saturday, December 9, a double bill is offered. "Wanda Haverley in 'The Truthful Liar.'"

A young, newly-married society girl and a clever blackmailer—see what happened. The second big feature is Martin Johnson's "Jungle of the South Seas," a highly artistic, educational masterpiece in screen education. It takes you to the undiscovered or rather unexplored South Seas. It is a remarkable record.

"Gee! It feels just like the Sun"

What a glorious source of winter warmth you would have, were you only able to install in your fireplace an actual lump of that parent of all natural heat, The Sun!

Impossible? Of course! Yet, thanks to the modern inventive genius, gas heaters give you, at the touch of a match, a very close approximation.

The gas heater is a scientific device which transforms for you the heat of gas into a product which has every essential of sun warmth, yet is always under your perfect control.

Gas heaters of the type recommended by this company project their warmth out into your room, giving, as repeated tests have shown, nine times the efficiency of an open fire. Also, a gas heater is absolutely clean, and continually purifies the air of your home if properly vented.

Your dealer in gas appliances, or the local P G and E representative, will be glad to go into details with you regarding the operating economy and other advantages of gas heaters. Call and see one or the other before the winter is further advanced.

Oreb Caravan At Meeting After Willing Hill Thrilling Trip

Oakland Real Estate Men Arrive at Record Convention at Santa Ana.

SANTA ANA, Dec. 7.—(Special to the Tribune).—With nearly 600 delegates in attendance, the annual convention of the California State Real Estate Association got under way here today. Delegates arrived by train, by auto and by stage. The party left Willing Hill at 10:30 a. m. and arrived at Santa Ana at 1:30 p. m. The convention was held at the Hotel Santa Ana.

The Ore caravan, comprising the Ebbett delegation, landed in Los Angeles last night after a strenuous and hazardous journey across the desert. The caravan, which was composed of a thousand men and one turn of lumber to Sausalito, gave the Oakland realtors many thrills.

Early today, however, the Ore caravan arrived in Santa Ana to find on the big convention hall, the largest ever held by the California State Real Estate Association. The San Joaquin Valley delegation arrived with the Ore caravan. The convention was called together at 10 o'clock this morning by retiring President C. C. Tatum, the annual reports of President Tatum and Secretary Glenn D. Williamson were made. With the election of fifteen new members, the California Association now comprises one hundred and two separate real estate boards throughout California.

Three hundred and thirty individual members of the state association were elected to membership by the directors last night. Convention headquarters are at the Santa Ana Inn.

The principal address this morning was delivered by former United States Senator Cornelius C. Cole, his topic being "California Real Estate in 1922." Senator Cole said that in those days townships changed hands for a first class offer.

An important conference is under way directed by Edwin T. Keller, state real estate commissioner, having to do with necessary legislation for the purpose of strengthening the present state real estate license law. George Bush, legislative counsel, and William H. Allen, chairman of the legislative committee of the state association, presented a number of suggestions to prevent fake colonization schemes and legislation was discussed.

Eighty-five home town speakers will be heard. Present two speakers will compete for the Fred H. Allen trophy awarded the realtor who makes the best five minute talk on his home town. Thomas G. Murphy is Oakland's speaker.

Gangrene Remedy Is Perfected by N. Y. Pathologist

BY JOHN L. SPIVAK, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Dec. 7.—A cure for gangrene, the dread disease hitherto considered incurable and relievable only by amputation, has been found by Dr. Benjamin Jablons, visiting pathologist and consulting physician to several New York hospitals. The story of the discovery, which took nine years of ceaseless search and experimentation on two continents, was told by him in an exclusive interview with International News Service today.

The first news of this remarkable discovery, kept secret for months, was given by Dr. Jablons in a communication to the medical press. He said that the treatment is made by injecting into the blood of the patient the compound evolved by the pathologist, which counteracts the effects of gangrene and brings about instant relief from the excruciating pain.

Garage Permit Is Cancelled

A long discussion in the City Council ended this morning by the cancellation of a building permit on a garage on Elm and Third streets. The garage was found to be a new addition to an old building, yet it had a permit applying to a new building. Fire Chief Sam Short advised the council that the Auto Association is getting up a proposed new ordinance covering all such points.

Idaho Opposes Separation of S. P.-C. P. System

Senator Gooding Fears Union Pacific Monopoly, Sees High Rate For State.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 7.—(By Associated Press).—Separation of the Central Pacific and the Southern Pacific system would "blast the last hope left in the hearts of the people of Idaho for better railroad service," Senator Gooding, Republican, of that state, asserted today before the interstate commerce commission.

Appearing in his own behalf he declared the commission should grant the Southern Pacific's request to continue its present control of the Central Pacific lines, even though a supreme court decree has been entered ordering their separation. Idaho was faced with a practical monopoly of transportation by the Union Pacific railroad and its subsidiaries, Senator Gooding said, and the policy of that railroad system had "wrecked and ruined the state a fiasco" by maintaining high rates. If the Central Pacific should be separated from the Union Pacific directly or indirectly, "WILL MEAN HIGH RATES."

"We know exactly what I expect if the Union Pacific is allowed to dominate the Central Pacific," Senator Gooding declared. "Rates will continue to be the highest that there are in the country. It is not hard to realize what is the matter with Idaho now when you read the rate schedules which the Union Pacific maintains. We have a hope that the Southern Pacific, retaining the Central Pacific, will some day build up into Idaho from Ogden, Utah, and give us competition. I am moved in this matter to urge the commission to deny the Central Pacific's request for the freight traffic committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce, and a number of other shippers or representatives of shipping corporations were called as witnesses.

All of them advanced the argument that the Southern Pacific by reason of its rail and water routes was encouraging seaboard to seaboard traffic between the Atlantic and Pacific coasts at the expense of the middle west and the Mississippi valley producing area generally. An independent Central Pacific line entering San Francisco, they contend, was necessary to give proper competitive transportation facilities to the middle west.

Council Tied On Motion Tooust Hayward Chief

Fight Started By Demand For Campaign to Support Liquor Operations.

HAYWARD, Dec. 7.—Motion that the city council demand the resignation of Fred Schilling, chief of police, because of his alleged laxity in enforcing the local prohibition amendment was abandoned last night following a vote on the proposal. Following abandonment of the proposal to ask for Schilling's resignation he was furnished with special instructions, upon the suggestion of R. A. Kolze, chairman of the board, to carry out an active campaign against the illicit sale of intoxicants within the city.

Proposal to ask for Schilling's resignation was moved by J. L. Wilbur and seconded by Mrs. Ruth L. Rogers. F. J. Cunha, in defense of Schilling declared that his time was now taken up with collection of city taxes and with street work. Cunha, in answering Wilbur's demand for Schilling's resignation, declared that the city ordinance places the burden of its enforcement equally upon all residents of the city and claimed that if the illicit sales of liquors are being carried on here Schilling is not alone to blame.

Wilbur and Mrs. Rogers voted to demand Schilling's resignation. Cunha voted against the motion, and, after some discussion, Kolze voted with Cunha. Samuel Shiffert, the fifth member of the council, was not present at the meeting.

HAYWARD, Dec. 7.—That the city attorney, C. W. White, and the city engineer, Jesse B. Holler, had advised the city council on Watkins street between C and D streets, to sign contracts for street work on the block advertised for by the city council was suggested by R. A. Kolze, chairman of the council. Holler said that the city engineer had suggested that the work be completed now. Holler will comply with Kolze's suggestion.

In order to permit the city council to come to an agreement on the type of flood to be used in the equipment, the city engineer, Charles A. Beardsley, former city attorney, has been retained as counsel for the association.

Man Disappears After Rescue in Mystery Blaze

The police are today trying to learn the identity of a man they saved from burning to death last night in a fire which caused $20,000 damage in a charcoal factory at 2425 Tenth street and Forty-second avenue.

When he was revived in the open air the rescued man told the police that he was the night watchman. Today Harry Miller, owner of the establishment, declared that no night watchman had been employed there.

Fire Chief Sam Short and Battalion Chief Max Dohman, who led the fire fighters, expressed the belief that the fire was caused by a spark from a combustion in the charcoal kept in the plant.

Marsh Property Holders United

An organization known as the West Oakland Industrial Property Owners' Association began functioning today following its formation last night at a mass meeting in the rooms of the Oakland Real Estate Board. The body is composed of owners of property in what is known as the West Oakland marsh.

Robert J. McMullen, president of the State Savers Bank, was elected president of the association, and H. A. Laffer, industrial engineer, was elected secretary and treasurer.

The members of the executive committee are: A. S. Deane, chairman, and A. A. Wise, E. J. Greenwood, Charles W. Loose and C. P. Murdock.

Day said: "We have no doubt that the intentions of the city in the matter of performing its obligation here have been and are of the best. But in the past pressure has been brought to use the dredge on other work, and the reclamation of the marsh land has been sidetracked. Injustice has not only been done many small property owners, a large proportion of the marsh are women, but the marsh remains an eyerore and its condition retards the industrial development of Oakland. We propose to make every effort to prevent any further inclination on the part of the authorities to delay work which should have been done years ago."

Burglars Plunder Modesto Home on Graduating Scale

MODESTO, Dec. 7.—F. R. Shiffert would rather call it off with the burglars. His house has been entered for the third time and each time the proposition was worse for Shiffert.

The first time the robbers took nothing. The second time they took the contents of his ice box. That wasn't so good.

The third robbery, which was discovered yesterday morning, was disastrous to Shiffert. They got away with $52 in cash and diamonds valued at over $500.

But they didn't get my diamond stick pin and $25 of money my wife had collected from the Neighbors of Woodcraft," said Shiffert, taking an optimistic view of the affair.

State Livestock Division and Its Chief Arraigned

California Holstein-Friesian Association Directors Ask For Investigation.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS. MODesto, Dec. 7.—An investigation of the division of animal industry of the California state department of agriculture is demanded here by the board of directors of the California Holstein-Friesian Association, following a meeting of representatives of the organization from a score of California cities. The demand also includes Dr. J. T. Iverson, chief of the division. The board of directors of the association adopted a resolution urging the inquiry and forwarded it to Governor W. D. Stephens.

The charges made against the division are:

"That Dr. Iverson wrote his O. K. across the face of a tuberculosis test certificate issued by a California veterinarian, who is under the ban in Nevada, and that the cattle involved were shipped into Nevada, where more than 50 per cent of them reacted to the tuberculosis test."

"That a fraudulent tuberculosis test certificate was issued in the employ of Iverson and accompanied cattle into Nevada, and that the employee, so far as the California Holstein-Friesian Association knows, has never been censured. He is still in the employ of Iverson."

Iverson's division is the livestock police department of the state. Its duties are to enforce the livestock sanitation laws, Iverson, until the consolidation of offices effected a year ago by Governor Stephens, was the state veterinarian—a position he has held about five years.

Alameda Police Find $1500 Loot

ALAMEDA, Dec. 7.—Forty-eight hours after being furnished with a description of loot taken by thieves from the home of John Henry Merrill, 1323 Caroline street, the city police found the loot. Alameda chief of police, and Bert Connel, captain of detectives, have secured $1500 worth of the stolen property and returned it to the owners according to an announcement made today.

The Merrill home was entered more than a week ago during the absence of the family from the city. The thieves took the loot Monday and gave the police a detailed account of their loss.

The thieves secured one of the richest hauls taken from an Alameda home in some years, police declare. It included furs valued at approximately $2000, evening dresses and wraps, the entire wardrobe of Merrill, four bolts of silk, newly jewelry and many valuable personal possessions.

Merrill is a well-known singer of the eastbay, and vice-president of the Adelphi club of this city.

CLEMENCEAU WINS FRIENDS.

Georges Clemenceau has won friends for himself and his country during his brief visit in the United States. Those who have criticized his speeches have applauded the man.

Clemenceau came to the United States against the advice of politicians and statesmen in his own country. He has always played the lone hand, acted upon his own initiative. In France it is known he never even joined a political party, but was selected as an independent to the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate over a period of more than fifty years.

The old man with the jutting eyebrows and the moustache which hangs down his cheek like the fangs of the saber-tooth tiger, attacked the administration when he believed it wrong and thus, on many occasions, became the recognized leader of the opposition. He destroyed cabinets and when he had finished the task, became once more the independent and free lance member.

Clemenceau came to the United States to urge our participation in European affairs. He has placed his views before President Harding and before large audiences in the largest cities of the East. It may be significant, the storm of criticism with which those views were greeted, has quieted. The progress of the visitor in winning friends has been remarkable.

When Clemenceau goes back this country may remember his visit, not so much for the impassioned appeals to send our interest and our concern overseas, as for the tribute he paid to Lincoln. The picture of the "old tiger" as he stood at the tomb of the Great Emancipator and the simple words he uttered are to be cherished. Said Clemenceau:

"Don't believe I came here to try to consecrate such a memory. I came in souvenir of the valiant men who fell on the fields of France in the same cause for which he was murdered, that we are going to try to go in the path of freedom he opened. Here I am, a private citizen. No more than any other who has tried to do his duty, hoping to be not like Lincoln, but to be so near like him as I can. Let us say no more. Here before one of the greatest men that ever lived all my heart goes out to America and the great man she produced."

THE NATIONAL PARKS.

Once more the National Parks of America have set a record for service. These playgrounds wherein are found unparalleled opportunities for recreation, in areas where curiosities, forests, and beautiful scenery are preserved in their natural condition, continue to grow in popularity.

During the past year the visitors numbered 1,216,490, a substantial increase over the phenomenal one of a year ago. Approximately 40 per cent of the visitors came by train, the remainder in their own automobiles. This large amount of travel by automobile has entailed additional labor in maintaining the park roads, but the year saw recorded fewer complaints from visitors than any in history.

From every state and territory men and women came to see the wonders of the national parks. It is perhaps not generally known that in many of the parks large areas have been inaccessible because of lack of roads, a condition which means, as the years go on and appropriations are made, the great playgrounds will offer an increasing number of attractions. Secretary Fall, of the Department of the Interior, is of the opinion that the program of road building and improvement should be undertaken in the near future and that it will be justified not only by the increased comfort and pleasure of visitors but by increased revenues.

LOSS WOULD PAY WAR DEBT.

War debts could be paid, or sums equal to them raised, by putting the idle land to work. In the United States there is an opportunity for the winning back of great wealth and for the ushering in of the day when no man need be poor unless he prefers that state.

An exaggerated statement? It is made by Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree Association, and one of those who have expressed willingness to cooperate with in Washington on January 11. From this conference, it is expected, will come suggestions for the prevention of waste. A prime object is to get the business men and chemical industry together for the working out of the problem.

Intelligent saving of waste in four things: coal, natural gas, yellow pine, and cereal straw, would pay America's war debt in five years, according to Arthur D. Little of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. In this saving thousands of persons would be put to work and the position of women in industry would be affected. For that reason there is to be an effort to place the subject before the Washington conference to which over sixty organizations of women have been invited.

Concrete evidence of the waste in the forest field is to be seen in the fact Minnesota pays thirty millions a year for imported forest products; New Jersey pays five millions a year in freight rates alone on imported lumber products. The story is the same elsewhere and there are more than eighty millions acres of idle land in this country which is good for nothing except to raise trees. Most of it is east of the Mississippi.

When this idle land is put to work and when the businessmen and chemists unite to make the greatest use of all products and by-products to the end there shall be no waste the nation will add billions to its wealth.

REDUCING THE OVERHEAD.

Americanization classes, exhibits, parent meetings, and community affairs held in the schoolhouses of a city or county serve to reduce the overhead of the schools. It is not often they are regarded in this light and yet the businessman will admit it is so.

In its regular program the school plant remains open five hours a day for five days a week. One way to reduce the overhead is by the accepted rule of operating the plant for more hours. In Oakland and in all the cities of California, schools are open to citizens for community work. There are evening classes in many of them and many house traveling exhibits of educational and cultural value.

In the United States today there are thousands of foreigners who are anxious to learn of the language, history and customs of this country. They have the earnest desire to be Americans. Those who are familiar with this branch of educational work have noticed their faithful attendance and diligence. There are also hundreds of thousands of men and women who would take time in the evening to make up for neglect or lack of opportunity for education in their youth. Another large field.

This is Educational Week. It presents a hundred problems to American citizens and invites attention to the American school plant and what it is doing. The opportunity is here this week for Eastbay men and women to inform themselves first hand of California's school program to the extent that there shall be no more unfounded criticism. Will the opportunity be accepted?

Not long ago New Jersey made a claim for honors with a 110-pound pumpkin which was promptly beaten in California with one which weighed 220 pounds. The fame of these pumpkins has reached Australia, where strong bid for second place is made. A rancher over there, named F. Munday, has grown a 195-pound pumpkin. Moreover, he says, cornstalks in his land grow sixteen feet high and he knows of a family of five children who go boating in a half of a squash. That would seem to move the squash and the cornstalk record to the Antipodes but California still holds her 220-pound pumpkin.

When the world war broke our Japan seized Kiaochow and received an award of it under the terms of the Versailles Treaty. Kiaochow became an area of controversy until agreement was made it must be returned to China from which it was taken. Japan has fulfilled her agreement and once more attracts a favorable attention the world over for the manner in which she is backing the agreements her statesmen made in conferences with the other Powers. Japan was first to scrap battleships; she left Siberia as she had agreed and now she has turned Kiaochow over to the Chinese. At a time when other nations are not backing up the agreements signed by their representatives at the Limitation of Armaments Conference, Japan is to be given credit.

A Frenchman, who is described as a scholar, announced Francis Bacon was the author not only of the plays and poems generally ascribed to Shakespeare, but also of works that are current under the names of Edmund Spenser, Robert Greene, Christopher Marlowe, Ben Jonson and Robert Burton. The Baconians should stop this man before he goes any further for the world will never believe the mind which conceived "The Anatomy of Melancholy" was the same as that which conceived "The Faerie Queene," Rob Greene's "Love Pamphlets," or the famous Marlowe line about the face "that launched a thousand ships."

Mr. Heywood Brown of "The New York World," objects fervently to being referred to as "the best-loved man of letters in America today." And, indeed, he does remind one of the sort of thing Aunt Prudence Hecklebury might say of Dr. Frank Crane. But some persons may think that Mr. Brown is a little extreme when he goes on: "Our ambition is to be hated, and if we can't arouse that emotion with printed words we are going to get desperate some afternoon and rush out of the office and begin to step on people's feet."

We shall never forget the terrible time we had with Fothergill. One night a couple of years ago. We called on Fothergill in his studio, and we got there just in time to save his life. He had hanged himself to a hook in the wardrobe with his suspenders; the suspenders had broken, and he had tried it again, after knotting them together, and again they had broken. But Fothergill would have gone on and on, until he succeeded in strangling himself, or else ruined the suspenders utterly, if we had not taken them away from him and asked him what the deuce he meant. "Oh," cried Fothergill, "it is coming! It is coming! It will get me, finally! It will get me!" And he threw himself upon the sofa and moaned and moaned and shuddered.

"What will get you?" we asked. "The Beast!" he said, "the Beast!"

We had noticed neither wolf nor landlord at the door, and there was not so much as a rat in the room itself. We adjured him to specify and particularize.

"The Beast," groaned Fothergill, "the many-footed Beast! The Beast! Popularity! It will get me! It will get me!"

Mr. Finch, it developed, was quivering in the grasp of a vast dread; he was invaded by a toothed fear that gnawed at his heart. Like Mr. Brown, he desired to be hated, and he desired to be hated by his enemies. But something had gone wrong. His poems were becoming popular.

The fame of his precious honey had spread beyond the confines of his own hive; not only his own little group of serious thinkers, but the broad, flat bourgeois thousands, had crowned and acclaimed him.

It was insupportable! It must be an intensely dramatic moment in the life of any young intellectual when he finds himself understood. . . . not merely understood, but (O God! the disgrace of it!) liked. Fothergill is an honorable man, loyal to the higher ministries of modern song, and he chose the only noble exit. . . . he chose Death.

The thing must have presented itself to Fothergill something like this:

"If these multitudes comprehend me, and agree with me, and love me, then they must be much nearer to me in intellectual power than I have supposed."

On the other hand, if they do not really comprehend me, but only pretend to, I am about to be subjected to a contact from which I shrink; these idle and empty persons with their loud and empty praise and their disgusting Victorian sentimentality will handle me and dandle me until my finer gold is corroded, until my mind is degraded and vulgarized."

It will be interesting to note whether Mr. Brown will be as true to the nobler part of himself as Fothergill. . . . for it was not merely a gesture on the printed page with Fothergill, but it actually went as far as the suspenders. Wilkins Micawber, similarly bowed under a sense of life's futility, was one time seen making motions at his throat with an open knife, and this also was a noble (though Victorian) gesture.

Will Mr. Brown come through with a good bloody suicide, that will make a first-page story, and give the rest of us writers (miserable creatures though we are) a good clean line to be proud of him? Or will he fail to do himself? We do not wish to seem overly eager about this matter, but in case we are of any assistance. . . . there are cobblestones below. . . . there is a typewriter near the window. . . . If Mr. Brown were to sit upon the sill and dictate his final statement we should take it down with the most scrupulous accuracy. . . . but why not a sonnet? Yes, Mr. Brown, let us have a sonnet!

Great Brown paused brooding on my window-sill

For one eternal moment ere he leapt

—He saw the idiot kosmos still

With its fat planets flaily bobbing

Like bourgeois dumplings sweet

And sickened by the sugary mess, he wept.

—"Nothing but love!" he moaned, and then he stepped

Out into space to join brave Fothergill.

One touch of honest hate had saved the boy.

A foe to nurse, a foe that could abuse!

Striving to wound, he only gave us joy.

And when he raged he merely would amuse.

Oh, let me add my cinder to his hell!

Heywood, I always found you lovable!

ANOTHER TURKISH MASSACRE!

Excerpts from the National Press

New York World: "One by one the old privileges of taking personal risks which threatened their own or other people's safety are being given to free-born Americans. Now window-cleaners face a campaign to compel them to wear the safety device or harness which the law prescribes but which members of this vocation for the most part dislike to use. In fining a window-cleaner $20 Magistrate Brown announced that he intended to deal severely with all violators of the law, and he instanced the drain on the State's finances caused through the Workmen's Compensation Law by deaths and injuries sustained from neglect of the precaution."

Brooklyn Eagle: "Within a few days countries as far apart as Peru, Mexico, Prussia and Bavaria have reported the spontaneous rise and infectious development of Fascist movements. Mussolini's success in Italy has stimulated malcontents the world over, chiefly among the middle classes and the less radical of the labor population. The leaders emulate Mussolini in featuring discontent with things as they are rather than any positive program of reconstruction."

The Chicago News draws the line: "Staff poets of this column are hereby informed that a frequent reason for canning otherwise acceptable poems is climatic conditions. We can't print gray verse on bright days or snow stuff when it's raining pitchforks. Perhaps the greatest handicap the Chicago school of poets has to face is the incalculable climate. Send us cravenly weather-proof poetry and the chances are two to one in its favor."

Athens Repeating History

The revolutionary tribunal passing judgment on Prince Andrew of Greece merely repeats history. Kings have faced revolutionary tribunals and have lost their heads. The Sixteenth Louis of France, for instance; the Czar Nicholas of Russia, also; although, to be sure, the hapless Romanoff's accusers and executioners denied him even the dignity of an open trial. Charles the First of England lost his head after a parliamentary trial which was vested with all the outward show of legality.

Other royalties have been less favored. Carlos of Portugal was shot while driving through the streets of his Portuguese capital; who does not recall the tragedy in Belgrade which bathed the palace in blood and gave the throne to Serbia to King Peter, afterward to become a war hero and war fugitive? History abounds in accounts of political assassination; the monarch is fortunate indeed if he escapes as did Manuel of Portugal, driven from his throne because of his attentions to a Parisian actress; exile is better than death. Constantine who may be said to be the real Greek war culprit, is twice driven from his country, but his life is spared; his brother pays the penalty which both should have shared, were even-handed justice done in Athens.

The first Napoleon, after having his way with political affairs in Europe until he imagined himself master, died a natural death in exile in St. Helena. Years afterward another Napoleon found refuge in England after an adventure quite as rash as that charged against Prince Andrew; the French did not demand his return that they might shoot or behead him; even the master war criminal of modern times, the former German emperor, escapes to Holland, there to write exculpatory memoirs and remarry.

So that the Greeks have plenty of precedent for permitting their royalties to live, although dishonored and banished. They also have precedent for more bloody reprisals; it is not to Greece's honor that the revolutionary tribunal prefers to pattern after the bloodletters of the French revolution, since Athens is not convulsed with any such upheaval as that which marked the progress of the crumbling of the ancient regime of the Bourbons. It is a rather curious commentary on that revolution that another Louis, the Eighteenth, was the last of French sovereigns to die in peace in his capital. His nephew, the hapless Louis Sixteenth, was beheaded; Napoleon was banished; another Bourbon, the Count de Artois, on the throne as Charles X was deposed and died in foreign lands; the French then chose their citizen-king, Louis Philippe, only to depose and banish him; finally Napoleon—the Third hurried to England after Sedan. There have been other deportations; Dom Pedro, last of the emperors of Brazil and last of royal ties on the western hemisphere; Maximilian, deposed as emperor of Mexico, paid with his life at Queretaro the toll of his political venture; Abdul Hamid, the famed, as Gladstone put it, died in prison, and one of his successors now is a fugitive in Malta. The history of nations and peoples is replete with instances of kings slain or deposed. —Salt Lake Tribune.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
BOYS AND GIRLS.
Some folks pray for a boy, and some for a girl.
For a small haired little girl to come.
Some claim to think there is more of joy wrapped up in the smile of a little boy.
While others pretend that the silky curls and plump, pink cheeks of the little girls bring more of bliss to the old home place.
Than any small boy's queer little freckled face.
Now which is better I couldn't say if the Lord should ask me to choose today.
And say: "Now what shall your order be, a boy or girl? I have made a stall with the two of you waiting for?"
I'd say with one of my broadcast grins: "Send either one, if it can't be twins."
I've heard it said to some people's shame they cried with grief when a small boy came.
For they wanted a girl. And some folks I know who wanted a boy just took on so.
When a girl was sent. But it seems to me that mothers and fathers should happy be to think when the Stork has come and gone that the Lord would trust them with either one.
Boy or girl? There can be no choice; There's something lovely in either voice, And all that I ask of the Lord to do is to let the mother choose safely through And guard the baby and have it all.
With a perfect form and a healthy yell, And a pair of eyes and a shock of hair, Then boy or girl—and it's dad won't care. (Copyright, 1922, by Edgar A. Guest.)

BAY CITIES GET READY FOR N. E. A.

First Steps Taken to Give Worth-While Welcome to 25,000 Visitors Expected
With Teachers Next July

The first step in preparation for the National Education Association convention to be held in this city and San Francisco next July was taken today when representatives of the two cities met in the offices of Superintendent of Schools Fred M. Hunter in this city.

It was decided at this meeting to at once name a joint executive committee, made up of three from each side of the bay, and also to select a transportation committee at once.

The executive committee will include a representative of the Oakland schools, a representative of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce and a third person representing other business interests. San Francisco will be represented by some one appointed by the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, an appointee of San Francisco schools, and one from the San Francisco Convention Bureau.

The mammoth organization that is to be built up in preparation for the coming of 25,000 visitors from all parts of the United States will include many committees of Oakland and San Francisco people. Each city will have a separate group of committees, in addition to several joint committees. The balance of the organization will be built immediately after the first of the year, when a representative of the National Education Association comes west to direct the preliminary plans.

Indication of the interest in this great gathering is found in a letter just received from Greenborough, N. C., and directed to Lane R. Wilson, district freight and passenger agent of the Southern Pacific, which asks him to secure accommodations in Oakland for a party of 250 delegates.

While the exact plan for the distribution of meetings for the N. E. A. has not been decided upon, the general plan is to have the international conference in San Francisco, and the meetings of the N. E. A. in Oakland. This was the suggestion made by the delegates who went east and probably will be followed in the main when the representative of the N. E. A. arrives in January.

MILK PRICE ULTIMATUM IS REJECTED

Housewives' Leagues to Redeclare Boycott On Retail Quotation of 13 Cents;
Grand Jury Probe Refused

Executives of the Alameda County Milk Dealers' Association today rejected an ultimatum delivered by leaders of local housewives' organizations to the effect that they either reduce the price of milk to 12 cents a quart by next Tuesday, or face a general boycott by the housewives.

The women's ultimatum followed the refusal of District Attorney Ezra Decoto yesterday to conduct a grand jury investigation into the local milk situation, on charges made by the women that local milk dealers had formed a combine to hold up the price of milk to 12 cents a quart.

Following the conference with Decoto, Mrs. M. J. Platts, president of the Berkeley Housewives' League, announced that she still believed that the present price of 13 cents a quart for milk represented an unreasonable profit to dealers, and that her organization would start a boycott next Tuesday to force a reduction of the price unless it were reduced in the meantime.

"GOUGING" DENIED.
Mrs. W. T. Cleverdon, president of the Berkeley Housewives' League and of the state organization, declared her intention of circulating a petition asking Berkeley housewives to unite in refusing to purchase 13-cent milk.

That the local dealers will face the boycott rather than reduce the price of milk at present, was asserted today by J. H. Davidson, president of the Alameda County Milk Dealers' Association, who declared that charges that the members of his organization were "gouging" the public were groundless.

"We don't fear the threatened boycott," he said. "A boycott already is in effect to some extent, but we are getting along all right. We'll see it through, and will not allow ourselves to be forced into a reduction of the milk price below what we know to be a fair and reasonable one."

Speaking for the State Housewives' League, Mrs. Cleverdon declared the proposed boycott is only one of three courses which her organization is going to adopt in the effort to obtain a reduction in the price of milk.

Plans to invoke legislative action to declare milk a public utility in California, and to place its production, distribution, and rate-making under either state or municipal control, are being made by the executive board of the State Housewives, she declared. Also, the legislature will be asked at the coming session to restore the "teeth" to the Cartwright anti-trust act.

LAW CALLED POWERLESS.
In refusing to call a grand jury investigation at the instance of leaders of local housewives' organizations, District Attorney Decoto declared that they had not presented sufficient evidence to the effect that a combine existed among local milk dealers, and also that the "teeth" had been taken out of the Cartwright law by amendments made to it in 1909.

"As the law now stands," he said, "persons dealing in the same product are permitted to combine for the purpose of securing a reasonable profit. Who is to define reasonable profit? Fix the cost of production, and define reasonable profit, and we will have something definite to proceed upon."

Decoto made this statement at a conference held in his office yesterday afternoon, which was attended by executives of the housewives' leagues of Oakland, Berkeley, and Alameda.

He also pointed out to the women at the conference that the present price of milk was only a cent higher than the former price, and declared that in his better judgment he would not be sufficient to deprive many children of the amount of milk they required.

Husband Beat Her, Says Wife in Suit

Mrs. Essie E. Lottman has instituted divorce proceedings against Frank H. Lottman, charging that he had beaten and wronged her. Primary Law Is Attacked In Contest Over Election

An amendment to the primary law which was passed by the legislature in 1921 will be attacked through an election contest filed today by Joseph S. Furtado, defeated candidate for justice of the peace in Washington township. B. C. Mickle, who won the election by a margin of eight votes, is made defendant in the suit. The vote was: Furtado, 1028; Mickle, 1036.

While the contest is brought on all the usual grounds, namely, mistakes, irregularities and misconduct on the part of election clerks, the main battle is to be waged over votes cast for Mickle by writing his name in below that of Judge Ralph V. Richmond, the majority candidate.

An amendment to Section 23 of the Primary law, passed in 1921, provides that the name of the candidate receiving a majority of all votes cast for the office shall have the degree below that of the general election placed separate, with a blank space below it, the other candidate to be placed in a separate column of justice of the peace for Washington township. As two were to be elected, Judge Richmond's name as majority candidate was placed separate, and the names of Furtado and Mickle were placed in a separate group.

The contention is made in the contest that, where Mickle's name was written in below that of Richmond's, these votes should not be counted, as Mickle's name was in a separate place on the ballot. It is probable this point will be carried to the State Supreme court for final decision.

The ten precincts involved in which a recount is demanded are: Niles, 1 and 2; Centerville, 1 and 2; Irvington, Warm Springs, Mission San Jose, Decoto, Alvarado and Newark.

As required by law, the contest will not be presented to Superior Judge T. W. Harris, to whom it was assigned, until January 3, when the date for recount will be set.

Veterans to Hold Formal Invitation

Colonel John Jacob Astor Post No. 85, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will hold a formal invitation at Blake Hall, Twelfth and Washington streets, next Saturday evening. The degree team of the Lieut. Lansdale Post of Sacramento, known in veteran circles all over the state for its impressive ceremonial work, will have charge of the affair. The Sacramento installation team will arrive in Oakland early in the evening, accompanied by its band of twenty-five pieces.

The member of the post and the team from Sacramento will meet at the veterans' hall, at the city hall, and march to Blake Hall. The line of march will be east on Fourteenth to Broadway, south on Broadway to Twelfth street, west on Twelfth to Blake Hall.

Following the ceremony refreshments will be served at Memorial Hall in the city hall. All members are requested to attend and bring prospective members.

Red Cross Asks For Old Magazines

BERKELEY, Dec. 7.—So that school children and university students may be able to buy magazines of aid in school work at a saving for their parents, an appeal for donations of old magazines was made today by the Berkeley Chapter of the Red Cross.

Constant calls for magazines to be used in school work are being made at the Red Cross Shop, at Oxford street and Alston way, according to Mrs. Jo Mills, the manager. Art and travel magazines are in especial demand, but all kinds of reading matter can be used, says Mrs. Mills.

Sneak Thief Robs Church Cloak Room

BERKELEY, Dec. 7.—While the Swedish Evangelistic church, 1918 Blake street, was filled with worshippers last night, a sneak thief visited the cloakroom and made his escape with an overcoat and a box of clothing belonging to Paul Lindstrom, 1429 Dwight way. Lindstrom reported his loss to the police. The missing coat and clothing were valued at $18.

WOMAN IS CHOKED BY S. F. BURGLAR

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 7.—Aroused from sleep by a hand clutching her throat, Miss Fern Jordan, 53, secretary of the Advertising club, fought a battle with a negro in her apartment at 1200 Sacramento street early today. Unable to remember what had occurred, she found herself lying on the floor of the bathroom, her assailant gone and her watch and $45 missing.

Soon after 4 o'clock Miss Jordan discovered a man leaning over her bed. She struggled with him and he dragged her to the floor. When she succeeded in releasing his clutch she screamed, and was thrust into the bathroom. Once more she felt the man's fingers about her neck, and fainted.

Miss Jordan told Patrolman Porter of the Central Station that her assailant had entered with a pass key. She believes he was formerly employed at the place.

FIRST BAZAAR AT U. C. READY

BAD BOOZE FATAL.
TONBRIDGE, Eng. Several persons have been fatally poisoned by metenylated spirits which they drank because whisky and brandy have advanced in price.

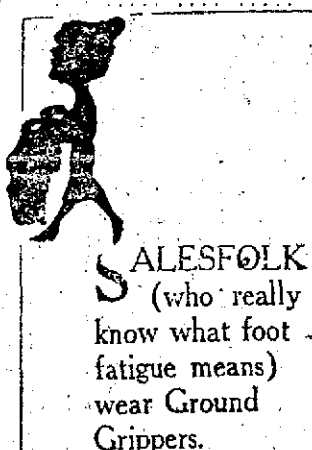

The bazaar is planned as a benefit for the women's loan fund at the university, and will raise money to aid co-eds through college. Assistance advanced in the form of loans is repaid by the recipients as their finances permit. No interest or other charges are incurred.

The bazaar is planned for the men's lounge room in Stephens hall, the new student union building, the opening time being set for 1:30 o'clock. A "stoney dance" is planned for the afternoon and evening. The women's benefit also will have the distinction of being the first social function held in Stephens hall. Miss Loretta Street is in charge of plans for the benefit, while among those assisting are the Misses Verna Dyer, Helen Hanawalt, Frances Hitchcock, Eina Brown and Blanche Cooper.

Both the bazaar and the dance will be open to the public.

Uncle Wiggily

Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND LULU'S CORN CAKES.

Dig your own hole, said the Fox.

One day the Woodie Wolf was strolling along through the woods, feeling very hungry for ears to nibble. When he met the Fuzzy Fox, the Fuzzy Fox was digging a hole in the ground near a path that led under the trees.

"Good morning, Mr. Fox," said the Wolf. "Why are you working so hard—digging a hole in the frozen ground?" For the ground, you must know, was frozen hard, as this was near to Christmas time.

"You are working very hard, Mr. Fox," spoke the Wolf.

"Yes," answered the Fox with a tired sigh as he sat down to rest. "I have to dig a hole, but I think it is worth it."

"Why?" asked the Wolf, as he noticed an eager look on the face of the Fox.

"Because," whispered the Fox, "by digging this hole I shall catch Uncle Wiggily and nibble his ears."

"Nonsense!" laughed the Wolf, opening his mouth and showing his sharp teeth. "It is no use, Uncle Wiggily can be caught by digging a hole in the ground you are very foolish. I know some rabbits live in burrows under the earth, but not Uncle Wiggily. He lives in a hollow stump, bungalow."

"As I didn't know that!" chuckled the Fox. "You and I have been to that hollow stump bungalow often enough trying to catch the rabbit gentleman. But I have another plan. Listen!"

"Along this path," went on the Fox, pointing to one near where he was digging, "along this path Uncle Wiggily comes to get his carrots. Some time today he will hop along here. By then I shall have dug my hole. I will hide in it, pull some leaves over me to cover me from sight and when Uncle Wiggily comes along I'll jump out and grab him. He'll never see me until it is too late."

"Hum!" said the Wolf slowly. "That is a good trick. I'll help you catch that rabbit."

"Dig your own hole," said the Fox, and the Wolf did, making a hiding hole for himself on one side of the path, while the Fox made another hole on the opposite side, deep enough the Fox and Wolf would hide in them, covering themselves with leaves, and as Uncle Wiggily passed they would leap out at him.

And just about this time Uncle Wiggily was walking through the woods looking for an adventure. Oh, Uncle Wiggily, be careful! Be careful!

The bunny gentleman had not hopped very far before he met Lulu Wiggily, the duck girl. Lulu carried a bag slung under her wing.

"Good morning, Lulu!" called the bunny gentleman. "What have you in that bag?"

"I have cornmeal in this bag, Uncle Wiggily," said Lulu.

"What is it for?" asked the bunny gentleman.

"For making cakes," quacked the duck girl. "I'm going to the mill to get cornmeal for making cornmeal cakes. I'm going to the mill to get cornmeal for making cornmeal cakes. I'm going to the mill to get cornmeal for making cornmeal cakes."

"What is it?" asked the bunny. "I'll make a little camp fire right here," quacked Lulu, "and bake ourselves some cornmeal cakes. We'll pretend it's a camp. To make corn cakes is very easy. You just mix some meal with water and bake it over a fire."

said the bunny. "We'll use a flat stone for a pan, as Jimmie did when he went camping with the Boy Scout Animal Patrol," said Lulu. Uncle Wiggily, with a twinkle in his pink nose, said, "I'll be a boy scout, camping out. We'll make a fire—well make a fire right here beside the path," went on the bunny. "Some one has been digging here and scattered a lot of earth over the leaves so that there will be no danger of our fire setting the forest ablaze. We must be careful not to start a forest fire."

"Oh, what fun we'll have!" quacked Lulu. And while she mixed up some cornmeal with water in a tin can she found beside the path, Uncle Wiggily made a big fire on the freshly turned earth. And, as you have guessed, the bunny made his fire right over the holes in which the Fox and Wolf were hidden. That's what he did!

The Fox and Wolf heard the bunny and Lulu talking, but could not tell what was said. But, all of a sudden, the Wolf in his hole whispered to the Fox in his hole: "Isn't it getting warm?"

The Business Woman

Each one—
Must have some special fitness—
This nerve-consuming day and age—
The women too have heard the calling—
And though some men may find it galling—
It is the rage—
For women kind to go in business—
And some kick off the petticoats—
And say too long have they been goats—
To man's consuming impudence—
And so they hang up M. D. signs—
Harangue in courts—and seldom fail—
To keep the erring from the jail—
And smile at Judge—triumphant—
Now sitting at my meager board—
Is but a modest woman—
But she has talents very keen—
She keeps the books—and keeps them well—
For our small corporation—
And balances them at the end of month—
And oftentimes I see her there—
With pen or pencil—deep in thought—
For yesterday she went and bought—
Some simple things—
And charged them to the future—
But well I know when pay-day comes—
Her books will surely balance—
For she's a business lady—
The laundryman knocks at the door—
For family wash—
She checks each piece and makes full note—
He must return just as she wrote—
For she's a business woman—
The groceryman rings at the bell—
For morning order—
She's got it on a little pad—
And if he brings her something bad—
He gets the very Dickens—smiling—
For she's a business woman—
The milkman says last month she took—
Eight extra p's of cream—
But when she looks upon her pad—
That milkman finds that he's in bad—
For she had only seven—
And so it goes each passing day—
When we are sick she doctors us—
And nurses us—and soothes us too—
When we grow well she gives advice—
About the proper things to do—
To keep ourselves in perfect trim—
And when some trouble threatens us—
We go to her to seek advice—
Just as we'd go to lawyer—
And so you see she is a nurse—
Likewise a doctor too—
And gives advice just as the lawyers do—
And that's what every mother does—
They're our best business women.

Septimus Wiggs met his chum the other day. "I say, Bill, I watched a wonderful machine at our shop this morning."

"And how does it work?" asked Bill.

"Well," was the reply, "by means of a pedal attachment, a fulcrum lever converts a vertical reciprocating motion into a circular movement. The principal part of the machine is a huge disk that revolves in a vertical plane. Power is applied through the axis of the disk, and work is done on the periphery, and the hardest substance, by mere impact, may be reduced to any shape."

"What is this wonderful machine?" asked Bill.

"A grindstone," was the reply.

A recent conference of physicians became involved in heated discussion. The atmosphere cleared when the disputants found they were in substantial agreement, their differences being caused solely by words and definitions.

What a blessing if our doctors would write prescriptions in plain English so we would know how much we pay for aqua pura and sodium chloride in the prescription.

A letter in a Greek word was the occasion of a religious controversy which waged through several centuries of the Christian era and made two rival parties in the early church.

If we could know how our neighbors of a different faith define life, duty, education, friendship, brotherhood—the big realities—we would find ourselves not far apart.

We will get together when our creeds are expressed in a language which we can all understand.

Fever and Fireworks

TODAY'S SHORT STORY, BY Ad Schuster

CAPTAIN EDWARD BATES, clad in pajamas, walked alone in the menacing shades of an African moonlight and held clutched in his hand, as it were a spear or a sword, a Roman candle. A cool breeze fanned his face and slowly there came a realization of where he was and what he he was doing. He would have to wait for daylight to find his way back. He must take care of himself. It was dangerous for a man with a high fever to exercise too much; then, again, this was Wologola land.

The young American, head of a scientific expedition sat down and waited. It would not do to think too much of his plight, of the danger from natives. He would try to piece together the story of the evening. Bates had been ill for a week, and after noon he had heard the doctor say it was about time for the turning point. The doctor did not know he had heard. Then there had come the box, the box from Alice and the rest of the party had brought it in and opened it.

"This will reach you," a note had said, "on or near the fourth of July. I am sending you a few fireworks and will picture you celebrating away off in your native land. You are to be back by Christmas. Think of me when you send a skyrocket over the heads of your savage Wologolans."

Bates had smiled at the note. The doctor had said nothing else until he found himself walking the hard path through the low hanging trees and fat clumps of brush, walking alone with this foolish Roman candle. The doctor would be looking for him, if he had a match he would shoot off this candle for a signal.

came to Bates he was in a thicket of fear. He opened his eyes to stare at a leather-faced native, and knew as he did so that his fever was gone. The native returned the stare and disappeared.

The doctor had said that I am back in my body," Bates thought. "Pretty soon I will know what they intend to do with me." The American knew enough of native superstitions and beliefs to realize he had been safe so long as he was unconscious. The Wologolans would not dare harm a "body" when the "man" was not there. Bates sat up and looked around. There beside him was the ridiculous Roman candle. "If I can get a light somewhere," he said, "I'll make my exit dramatic."

Of all the tribes this was the one to be feared. Alone, it clung to the belief that the white men were conspiring to take its land. In the presence of numbers and guns the Wologolans were friendly and protesting. But men who journeyed into their country alone never returned.

The chief was the largest native Bates had ever seen and quite the most efficient. He grinned pleasantly at the white man and said that he was rapidly

HAROLD PHELPS, Morgan Hill, Calif.

Morgan Hill is a regular Pirates' Nest of Authors. Here's a built-up nature tale from Harold, who knows and loves the big outdoors: A MORNING WALK IN THE HILLS.

One fine day in spring I started for the foothills with my dog. My route led through the orchards where were now in full bloom. Birds of various descriptions were fluttering about in the trees and on the ground. The dog seemed to think that the birds were for him to chase. This he proceeded to do, although he caught none.

Finally we came to a large green field in which the cattle were feeding on the green grass, from afar came the soft tinkling of a cow bell. As we passed, the cattle looked at us with mild eyes. A buzzard was wheeling aloft, breasting the pure mountain breeze. And from far and near came the songs of the meadow larks, and went on squirrel regarding us from the mound in front of his burrow let us know of his presence by his shrill battle cry.

At last we were in the hills. A jay scolded from a wild oak tree. Numerous birds flitted from the trees and a lark flew from the grass at my feet and parting the grass I disclosed a pretty little nest with four eggs, evidently a lark's. The mother lark fluttered in the grass trying vainly to draw us from her nest. Without touching the nest I once more covered it with the grass and went on.

I was just in time to see the finish of a race. Prince, my dog, was chasing a ground squirrel. He almost had it when it disappeared in a hole. After a few minutes' day in the hills I returned home.

THE GIANT.

Once upon a time there lived a giant over on a hill. On the other side of the hill lived a king named Margaret and she was aged 22 years. One day the terror of the king offered half of the kingdom to the man who would kill the giant. Many and many gave up their lives. At last one man came to try to kill the giant and he went over the hill and saw the giant asleep so he took the pick and struck him a mighty blow that knocked him dead and then Dave went to the king and told him the story. So the king took twenty soldiers with him and went over the hill. There he saw him flat on the ground and he took Dave by the hand and kissed him two times and said, "Dave, Dave! My hero! You shall marry my daughter and have half of my kingdom."

So the next day Dave went to see Margaret and Dave kissed her. So the next day Dave married Margaret and lived happy ever after.

"Come on," yelled a delicious American. "Come on, you cowards! It's the Fourth of July, and we'll finish this thing in fireworks!"

The doctor and the party from the station heard the shout and devoted their attention to the suffering man. A thin wisp of smoke came from the ant hill and back in the brush the natives ran in every direction.

Later on Captain Bates went home for Christmas and married the girl whose strange gift had saved his life.

When Thor Lost His Hammer

WHEN it rains, thunder is likely to be heard. When it snows, there is no thunder. The Northmen noticed this and decided it must be because Thor didn't have his hammer during winter and couldn't make any thunder then. They made up this story:

One day Thor found that his hammer was gone. Loki thought it had been stolen. He made a trip to the home of a giant called Thrim.

"How is everything in heaven?" asked the giant, grinning.

"Not very well," replied Loki. "Thor has lost his hammer. Do you know where it is?"

"I ought to know. I have myself buried it eight miles deep in the earth. I won't give it back unless I get the lovely Freya for a bride."

Returning to the home of the gods, Loki gave the message. Everyone hated the idea of giving Freya, but they were in fear. If Thor didn't get his hammer back, he couldn't guard them against the giants.

The goddess was asked if she would become the giant's wife. When she heard the question, her eyes were dry.

"Never!" she cried.

The only thing left to do was to play a trick on old Thrim. Heimdal, the wise god, said Thor ought to dress up like Freya, go to the giant's home, and get his hammer back.

Thor didn't like the idea because he thought everyone would make fun of him, but at last he said he'd do it. Loki dressed up like a woman, too, and went with him as his maid. Thor wore a heavy veil.

"When Thrim saw the 'goddess,' he was tickled. He gave her a seat of honor at the marriage feast. Thrim watched his bride, and was amazed by the way she ate. Eight large salmon and a whole ox were not enough for her. She also made away with all the cakes put on the table for the women, and drank two barrels of beer!

"What's all this?" cried the giant. "She eats more than any bride I ever heard of, and surely no woman ever drank so much beer!"

"Oh, that's all right," said Loki. "She has been excited about this wedding. She hasn't had a bite to eat or a drop to drink for a week."

Thrim was satisfied and went back to his drinking. Soon his brain was all a dazed up. He told a servant to fetch Thor's hammer. After a while, the servant returned and laid the hammer on the bride's lap. Thor jumped to his feet, tore off his veil, and held his hammer aloft. Lightning flashed and thunder roared. Thrim was knocked over, along with his servants. Fire destroyed the dwelling.

In triumph, Thor and Loki went back to heaven with the mighty hammer.

When I was eating breakfast nobody said anything about Christmas. So I said we are having regular Christmas weather and my father said we always had Christmas weather around Christmas. He said we had Christmas weather around February and it would be something to talk about. Then he looked at my plate kinda surprised. I could see that he was wondering where my pancakes had went. This message was suggested by a woman friend of the inventor. The first public message was sent over the line was the announcement of the nomination of James K. My Marriage Problems

Oldie Garrison's New Phase Of Revelations of a Wife

Why Did Dicky Steal Madge?

My little prophecy concerning Katherine was promptly fulfilled. After a few hours of rest enforced by Lillian, she declared she would more than ready to begin the delicate and arduous work planned for her. Accordingly, Lillian, Katherine and I drove to Dr. Pettit's on the very evening of the day she came to us, for the arrangement of the necessary preliminaries to her hospital engagement the next day.

The tall, grave physician welcomed my little friend with more real, unaffected cordiality than I had seen in him for many months. I recalled that in the old days of my first acquaintance with Katherine, I had suspected Dr. Pettit of a tenderness toward her, but I had decided simply the admiration and liking of a physician for an unusually capable and gifted nurse who possessed besides a most attractive personality.

But whatever his feeling of the old days, Dr. Pettit's pleasure in seeing Katherine again was most patent, and for a few minutes Lillian did not interrupt the exchange of questions and reminiscences between them.

Indeed, it was Katherine herself who, with characteristic thoughtfulness, put a period to the conversation and turned to Lillian with an apology:

"Excuse me, I should have remembered that you have something most important to discuss with Dr. Pettit."

"It is perfectly all right, my dear," Lillian responded. "Be sure that I should have interrupted you ruthlessly if I had felt that I must." But if you have finished—she paused tentatively.

"Absolutely," Katherine smiled.

"Then let's get down to cases. You have managed so that no suspicion of anything out of the ordinary will attach itself to Mrs. Bell's arrival at the hospital. Lillian's tone was assertive rather than questioning.

"To understand it, I must first tell you," Dr. Pettit returned. "I am sure that you struck our unknown friend, was so conscientious in driving that he ordered no expense to be spared in his care. That is, I mean a private room, and a private nurse. But the said nurse is short-handed, and my suggestion that I could bring her to the hospital this man was retained with much joy, especially as the one who has been caring for him has been asked to go to another case. So Miss Bickett will step into the place without any question or delay."

"Good!" Lillian's characteristic monosyllabic was emphatic. "Then what time tomorrow will you call for her? It will be better for Mrs. Graham and me not to appear in the matter at all."

"Of course," the physician agreed. "And I will call at 10 o'clock, if that is agreeable to Mrs. Bickett. He bowed formally.

"He is the same ridiculous darling old rascal," Katherine declared, as after perfunctory farewells we drove rapidly back to the farmhouse.

"I wonder if he'll ever marry. If he managed to get the right sort of wife for his unique talent, she'd cure him of a lot of those little mania's."

DISCUSSING DR. PETTIT.

"And he is in the coffin of a padded cell," Lillian commented dryly. "Nay, my dear heart, your friend is a woman, not a man. He fits into the picture in any other capacity."

"I think you're wrong," Katherine retorted spiritedly. "If he ever fell in love—"

"He's been 'in love' Lillian's quotation of the phrase was exactly ironical. "I have no knowledge, and if there could be found on either occasion a more amiable idiot than he I'd go a long way."

But let's not waste our time talking about him. We've got a mission coming with the Dickwade when he learns you're going to leave us, or I miss my guess."

I was thankful, indeed, that she had summarily switched the subject, and I began to feel that either of my friends from noticing the flush which I could not control at Lillian's words.

For I knew that her references to Dr. Pettit's excursions into sentimental regions not only meant his case, infatuation for Claire Foster, but the feeling for me which he had so frequently betrayed in the early years of my marriage, and which had caused me so much annoyance, and Dicky many ill-tempered hours. I knew that Lillian believed Katherine to be ignorant of Dr. Pettit's former penchant for me, or she would not have alluded to it, but I was not so sure that the keen intelligence of the little nurse had not perceived more than she had ever betrayed in those old days of close association.

DICKY GOES RIDING.

I sent the car along speedily, giving but perfunctory attention to Lillian's instructions to Katherine as to her answers to Dicky's possible questions. And when we had Dicky ensconced on the veranda.

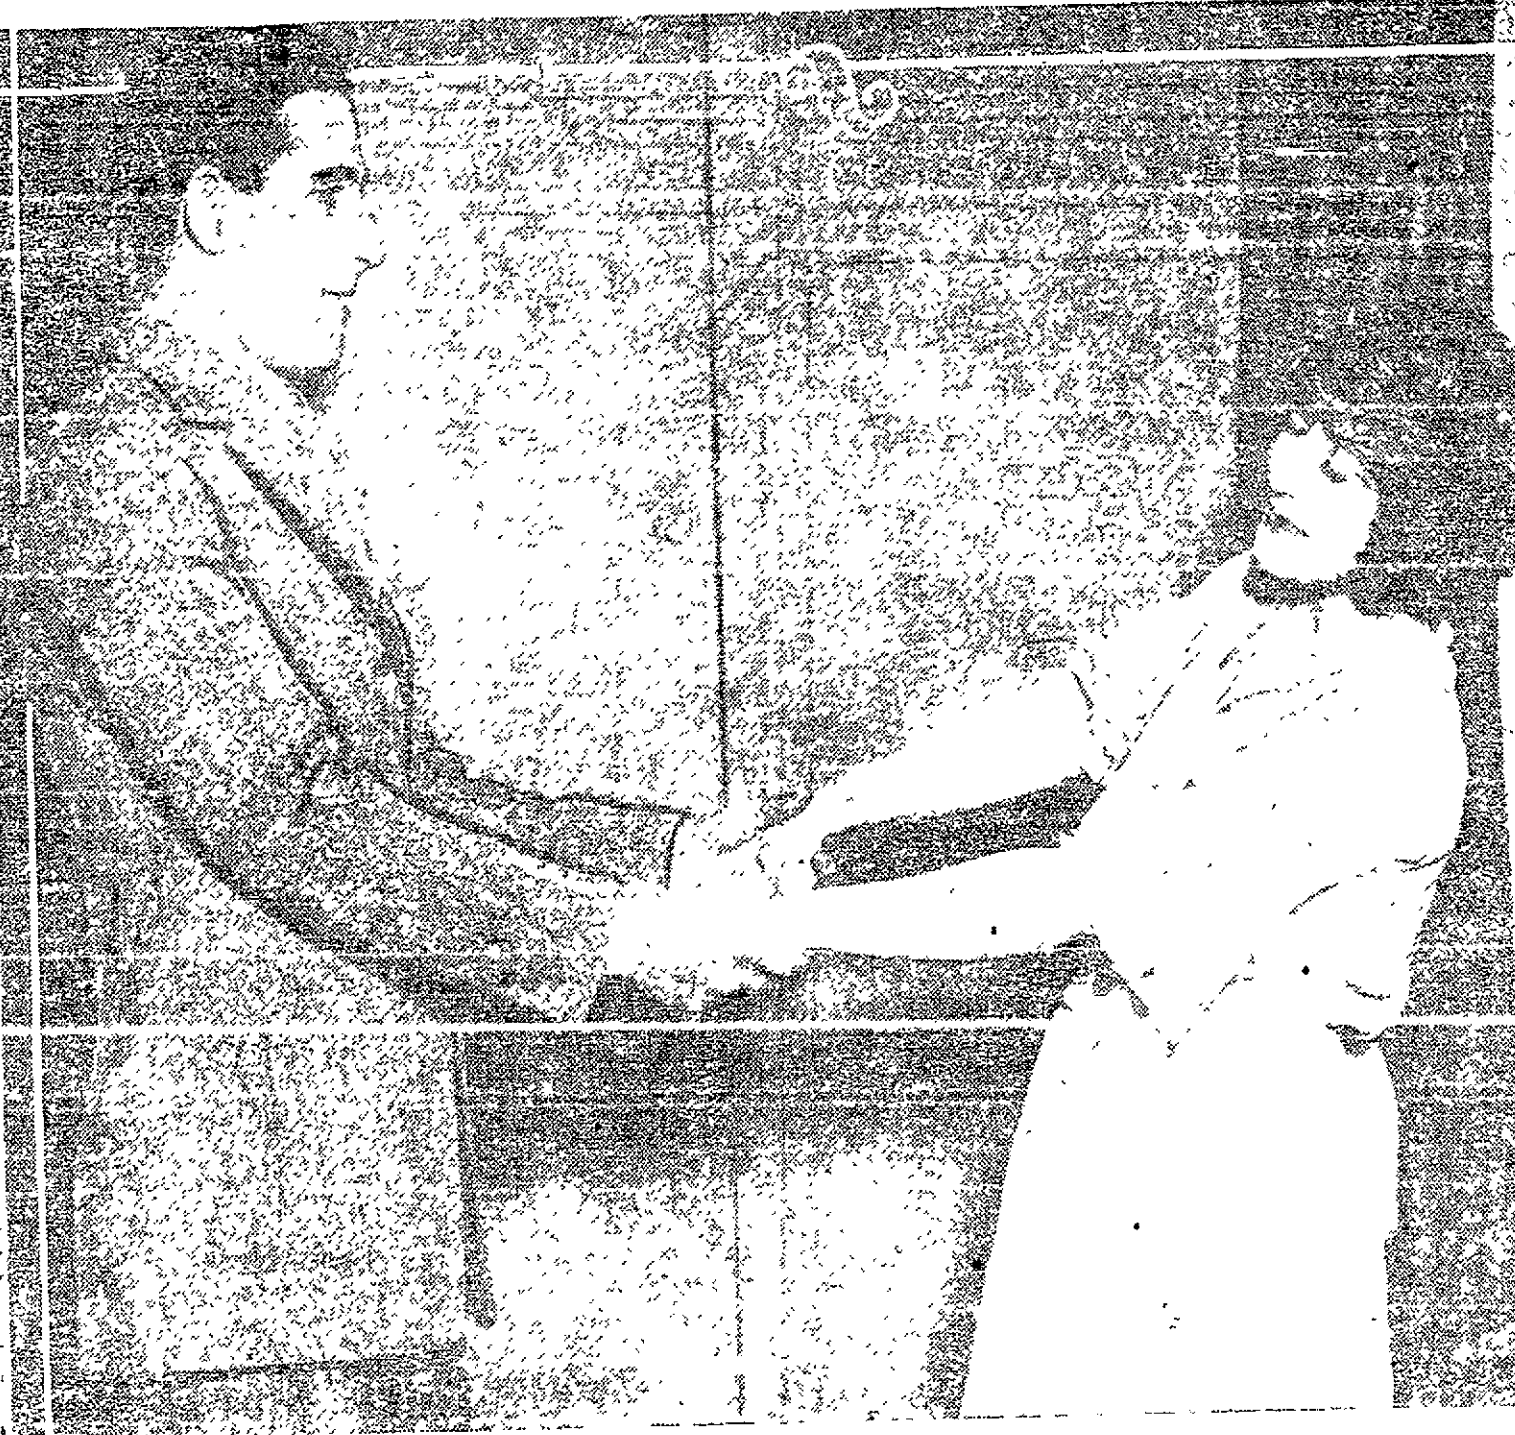

Dicky sprang up as we turned in the driveway and helped Lillian and Katherine on—greeting Katherine charmingly on old-time terms, and putting me back with a gesture, he climbed to the seat beside me.

"Pardon, girls," he called mockingly. "I feel like a little spin, so I'm going to steal Friend Wife."

CHAPTER 33

THE ETERNITY OF A DAY.

Four o'clock on the following morning found a youth and a girl standing together on the deck of a derelict schooner, peering after a shapeless mass that was slowly receding in the gloom.

For some minutes they stood there, the girl leaning against the mast, the boy standing with his back to the log that enveloped them, following the soft put-a-put of the marine motor until it rounded the lower end of Government Island and disappeared into the Alameda boat-house, when the sounds died away completely.

"H-a-u," sighed Speed, loudly, exclaiming rapidly after the manner of a man who has just been relieved of intense anxiety.

He stretched his arms over his head like one who has achieved a new-found freedom and chinked his fists ecstatically, while he sighed again.

"That's a relief," he exclaimed. "Now we can be ourselves for a while. No more pretense. I can talk to you without whispering and if we had a boat we could go on an excursion of our own."

"What a strange situation," she said, and from the intonation of her voice Speed knew that she was thrilled by the romance of it. "Have we in the very heart of a city, within a stone's throw of an interurban electric railway, so close to the ocean, and yet we are as if we were in a desert island."

As a chaffee for a few minutes. He settled himself beside me, and I tried to give my unimpaired wit to the subject of Katherine.

"Pardon, girls," he called mockingly. "I feel like a little spin, so I'm going to steal Friend Wife."

presence, and yet we are safely hidden, isolated—as much alone as if we were on a desert island."

One of Speed's boyhood dreams had been that some day he might be cast up on an uninhabited island with the one girl. How many youths have not dreamed and plotted over this same age-old Robinson Crusoe problem?

His comprehension of the ship with an island brought to him sharply the charm of this adventure. "Whatever perils the full moon night might produce, he would not waste these precious moments in caviling to fear."

The picture presented by the boy and the girl would have done credit to a master artist's brush. She was a girl of about sixteen, her face lit up with the glow of the cold air. Her strong, young, her face lit up with the glow of the cold air. Her strong, young, her face lit up with the glow of the cold air.

humble, not at all like a man who had made a conquest so easily. A sense of his own insignificance submerged his ego. His record as an athlete, as a scholar, as an attorney and now as an investigator appeared trivial. He wanted to tell her that he was not a conqueror, but he remembered that this was a rank bromide.

He tried to think of various ways of expressing his thoughts. If some subtle phrase would come to him, he would tell her he was not a conqueror, but he remembered that this was a rank bromide.

After all, what did he want to say? Should he tell her he was not a conqueror, but he remembered that this was a rank bromide.

been broken open. But more than that, Mrs. Snoop's prints were exactly the same as those found on the blowgun."

Queen's lips were parted and she was breathing heavily. Her gaze, fixed squarely on the athlete's eyes, never faltered.

"Yes," she breathed, impatiently. "Well, we trained her to this boat before she was released from the Berkeley jail on bail," continued Speed, and I swear to you and clucked aboard."

"But how did you describe the Swam?" asked the girl. "He is very wise."

"I am," pointed an escaped convict who looks like me," said the quarterback. "I dressed up in his striped clothes, had my hair cut, these scars were made on my forehead and hand, and he accepted me instantly as Reginald Montgomery."

"But when he comes back to-night—wow—"

"Why do you say that?" she asked, puzzled.

"Because I will know I'm a spy," replied the athlete. "The real Count is dead. The world knows it now. And when the Swam comes aboard this boat, there will be a snow down."

Queen stood up and caught at the lapels of his coat. He kissed her on the forehead but the anxious frown there did not disappear.

"Oh, what will he do to you?" she asked, her face lit up with the glow of the cold air.

"He will be terrible in a temper," the varsity man laughed and said.

"You'd better ask what I am going to do to him," he said, a bit grimly.

"But he is a giant," protested the girl. "Much larger than you, stronger and probably he is armed."

"I am sure he must be armed," Speed said. The revolver out of his pocket and held it up to her. The girl recoiled from the deadly gleam of the barrel.

"No, I am armed," said the football player, still smiling.

"You would not shoot him?" she asked, her anxiety shifting to the other side. "He really is a great prophet."

"A prophet of doom," asserted Speed. "He is a heck of a prophet. He has no object in the world except to get control of the Quist millions. Why, he proposed that I kill two of his enemies and that I marry you."

An instant later the university man realized that he had made an unwise confession. The girl flushed, then the color receded from her cheeks leaving them pale. A queer twisted smile broke through wan lips. It occurred to Ted Sargent that this girl had suffered much with fortune. He saw that she was near breaking point.

He would have taken her in his arms but she pushed him away from her vigorously.

Cocaine first obtained recognition as a medicinal drug about 35 years ago, and the commercial supply was derived from leaves of the wild coca plant of Peru. Now the shrub is cultivated extensively in Java, which will export this year about 4,500,000 pounds of the leaves.

Piccadilly, the famous thoroughfare of London, Eng., is said to have received its name from the "piccadillo," a collar worn by men of fashion in the 17th century. These were sold by a merchant named Piccadilly, who stood where Piccadilly now runs.

What does your wife do?

THE under-the-sun species, man, was when people would live down and die when their time came. Business in my line was brisk then. There was a run on caskets and the wheels of the hearse occasionally got a hot box. But now when people live beyond their allotted span. They're out-Matthiasing Matthuseiah and pretty soon they'll be living forever. What with goat glands, monkey glands and white corpuscle experiments, the older people grow, the younger they get. Before long the only people that will die will be the undertakers, and they'll die of starvation. Tain't right. The total surface of the earth is 57,000,000 square miles, and 110,000,000 of these are occupied by people, and that's bad.

OAKS SECURE WALTER MAILS AND TRADE ART KOEHLER

FOUR PLAYERS ARE RULED OUT AT MEETING OF THE TRIBUNE LEAGUE ADVISORY BOARD

ROUGH TACTICS WILL NOT BE TOLERATED IN TRIBUNE LEAGUE

Protests Are Decided and Player Who Hit Umpire Is Banned Forever; Keeley and Shoulder Cannot Play in League.

With the first half of the schedule played, President George J. Hans of The Oakland Tribune Mid-Winter League had the members of the league advisory board as his guests at a supper in a local cafe last night and thrashed out a lot of business. Members of the board who attended were William (Doc) Moskman, Louis J. Kennedy, Fred L. Krumb, Maury C. Pessano and members of The Tribune Sporting Department.

Among the matters to be settled by the board were the protest of the Oakland Natives No. 50 on their game which they lost to the Chevrolet Motors a few weeks ago, and the cases of Walter Kelley and Orville Shoulder of the Durant Motor baseball team.

The board threw out the protest of the Oakland Natives because it was based on a decision of the umpire.

Walter Kelley and Orville Shoulder are no longer eligible to play in The Tribune League. Kelley is on the ineligible list of organized baseball according to a decision of Commissioner Landis, and as a protection to other players in The Tribune League who have signed contracts to play in organized ball, Kelley is barred from further participation in Tribune League games.

Following is rule 33 of the national agreement, which made it necessary for the league to bar Kelley for the rest of the season:

Rule Automatically Bars Durant Player.

"No game shall be played between two clubs of this league hereunder, or any of its players under contract or reservation, with any club containing an ineligible player; nor with a club that has played with another club either during the championship season or at any other time a violation of this section shall subject each offender to fine, suspension or other penalty, in the discretion of the board."

The case of Orville Shoulder had been hanging ever since the start of the season. Before the playing of the first game, Manager Viti was questioned on Shoulder's eligibility, and he insisted that Shoulder was eligible as far as he knew, and that Shoulder was of the same opinion. It was understood that Shoulder or any other player in the league would be declared ineligible any time during the season that proper information was furnished. However, President Hans could not rule Shoulder or any other player out until he had the right dope on him.

Hans wired to Secretary John Farrell of the minor leagues and learned in an answer that Shoulder had been under suspension in professional ball for 100 days. Even allowing the time he was in training camp, Shoulder was under contract for more than twenty days longer than the league rules permit. Failure of the 1922 baseball records to be published before this time also made it difficult to obtain the dope on Shoulder.

Feeling that Viti's club would be badly crippled through the loss of Shoulder and Kelley, and as Phil Gardner is out of the lineup with blood-poisoning, permission was voted by the board to Viti to sign two new men within the next ten days.

Player Ruled Out For Striking Umpire.

Larry Essick, a player with the Golden Gate Merchants in the Class B League, was barred from The Tribune League for the remainder of the season and probably for next year because he struck Umpire Turner in a game in which the Golden Gate Merchants met the Wedgewood Woodmen last Sunday. Umpire Turner ejected the game to the Woodmen, who were leading, 5 to 2, and his action was backed by the league advisory board, and the protest of the Golden Gate Merchants overruled.

Arnold Quinn, a young first sacker who signed with the Magnavox team and who for the last three Sundays refused to report and is now playing with the Oakland council team in the Knights of Columbus league has been placed on the blacklist and will no longer be eligible to play in The Tribune League. Any other players desiring the league to play in leagues such as Quinn did will also be placed on the blacklist. When a player signs a contract he does so with the understanding that he plays with the team until released. Most likely players are Graham, the K. of C. league will take action to prevent players taking such steps.

Downey Is Suspended For Careless Language.

Charles "Chic" Downey, second sacker of the Maxwell Hardware team, was set down for one Sunday for using profane language on the ball field.

The board also makes a request that the supporters of the Coney Drug Store team which makes its home grounds at Alberger Field, make improvements on the surrounding ground which is surrounded by chuck holes. Also that the Fruitvale grounds be put in better condition or else games will no longer be booked there. Foul lines and proper accommodations for the fans should be provided for the grounds. The board also suggested that the San Leandro management close up the south exit of the grandstand until all games are over, as it will prevent fans from swarming on the field during the playing of the last inning.

Two Protests Are Not Allowed By Officials.

The protest of the Mothers Cookies on their game with the Mathews & Botano team at Alameda last Sunday was not allowed. The M. & B. team had a five-run lead when the Cookies left the field, claiming it was too dark to play. Manager Lampe of the Cookies delayed the game by remaining out of sight after chasing a ball that went for a home run. The protest of the Chris Nelson team of the Class "C" League against the Alameda Comets was overruled. The Nelsons claimed that the Comets used a player under an assumed name.

Coaches Are Permitted To Sit On The Bench.

As a number of clubs requested that they be permitted to have coaches on the bench, such as Honus Mitze with the Calatone Water and Achis Nissen with the Hayward Boosters, the advisory board voted to allow each club to have a coach on the bench, but before such coach will be eligible to act, his name must be handed into the league and approved by President Hans. Such coaches will not be allowed to take part in any arguments that may arise, and will not be permitted on the field.

The league officials are well pleased with the way in which the first half of the schedule went along, and are hoping that the second half will run as smoothly.

GOLF

My W. D. McNICOLL.
A golfing tournament was to have taken place at Claremont yesterday, but only a few of the women members turned out, and they were satisfied to call it a day at the 24th. Claremont women golfers are all keen students of the game, and are looking forward to Saturday's exhibition match, when they hope that Hagan and Kirkwood will explain and nominate their shots, as was done at Linn.

Hagen's intentional hook into the wind at the 15th was perfectly executed, but Kirkwood's intentional slice from the same tee, high over the trees for the wind to bring back to the fairway was deservedly cheered, both players' balls came to rest in the middle of the fairway, not many yards apart. Pitch, chip, pitch and run shots, were played to order with deadly accuracy. Learning how and why they were played was worth the penalty of getting wet. Kirkwood's back spin shot to the 17th caused the ball to spin back several feet like something alive after it seemed to have stopped dead.

In the recent club championship at the Berkeley Golf and Country Club, the tournament committee wisely insisted on the competitors adhering to the strict interpretation of the rules as laid down by the Royal and Ancient, and the qualified in threesomes and foursomes are not allowed to participate in the succeeding match play rounds. Probably more serious rules were broken than the afore-said, but not reported, or perhaps misunderstood. Players who take practice swings less than a club's length from the hole, or who penalize themselves two strokes in medal play and loss of hole in match. Many experienced players have this bad habit. No one came to call the shot on them. In the case of beginners it is sometimes hard to tell whether the practice swing was not an intentional shot.

Walter Mails Will Twirl for Oaks Next Season

On the left is shown PITCHER WALTER (Lefty) MAILS, who will twirl for the Oaks next season. Word was received today from Louisville that the pitcher has been secured from the Cleveland Indians whom he helped to win the world series in 1920 and had a good season in 1921. He did not pitch in many games last season, but Louie Guisto, shown on the right, and who was on the Indians with Mails last season, says he will make a good pitcher for the Oaks.

Bill Klepper Dropped From Baseball Roll

Fight Is On to Exterminate Pools, Which Are Menace to Sport.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Dec. 7.—A fight to exterminate the baseball pools to save the game from suspicion was pleaded Commissioner Landis by major and minor leaguers today as a result of the commissioner's appeal last night to wipe out the game, which is the greatest menace to the sport.

The commissioner declared he would accept no excuse from any club official for not making a fight to stop pool operations.

"While the operations of these pools have absolutely no connection with baseball and cannot possibly be traced to the actions of any player or club," said Commissioner Landis, "nevertheless if this thing is allowed to continue it will destroy the good name of baseball."

Commissioner Landis, in his address, suggested that the minor leaguers meet in joint session with the major league club owners, but he made no mention of the fact that William H. Klepper, president of the Portland (Ore.) club of the Pacific Coast League, who yesterday was barred forever from participating in the affairs of the National Association of Professional Baseball leagues, plans to seek an injunction to restrain the minor league powers from interfering with his operations as president of the club. G. C. Moser, attorney for the Portland club, said today he would take action as quickly as he could to gather the evidence. Klepper was expelled for filing an alleged false statement relative to the paid-in capital stock of the Tacoma (Wash.) club, which he organized. In addition, he was ordered to pay $900 back salary due Manager Raymond of the Tacoma club.

Wheeler ("Doc") Johnston, former first baseman with Milwaukee and Cleveland, announced today he had purchased his release from the Philadelphia Athletics for $5000, to accept the management of a club on the Pacific coast.

The minor leaguers will wind up their convention today with the election of the 1923 convention city. Nashville, Tenn., Detroit, Los Angeles and West Baden are bidding for it.

Georges' Offer To Fight Siki May Be Answer

French Idol Desires to Clear Charges By Meeting in Ring.

PARIS, Dec. 7.—Georges Carpentier believed that the best place to settle the controversy over his recent bout with Battling Siki is in the ring. Writing to Le Journal the French boxer says:

"Here is what I propose to Siki: Notwithstanding his disqualification and the disqualification I might incur, I offer to meet him at any date he likes, in public or private. Should he be ready to put up a stake I bind myself to pay to charity that stake, or, if one is offered, I am absolutely certain I would finish Battling Siki this time in less than three rounds."

M. Henri Bernstein, referee of the Siki-Carpentier fight, told L'Auto today that he heard Siki say: "Don't hit at my stomach, you hurt me."

M. Bernstein, however, said he attributed no importance to these words. Reports have been current that M. Bernstein, at a meeting of the referees attached to the boxing federation, declared he heard Siki say something to Carpentier which proved that the match had been framed.

Al Gras, Siki's chief second in the match, heard nothing that would throw light on the charges of a frameup. L'Auto learns. During the fighting, M. Gras noticed, according to the newspaper, that Siki fought like a novice in the first round. He recovered somewhat in the second, and was still better in the third, which seemed to indicate an understanding between the boxers.

Interest in the controversy extends far beyond the sporting public and the affair is receiving more attention than the Lausanne conference. L'Auto says that Carpentier, Descamps and Helters have been surprisingly inactive, contenting themselves with calling Siki a prevaricator, instead of demanding that the boxing federation join them in making an investigation.

The Echo de Paris asks for the Deputy Diagne is supposed to possess. It says that the delay in producing them is evidence that they do not exist.

"Grads"- Freshmen Defeated on Court

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, Dec. 7.—The opening games of the annual inter-class basketball series were played last night at Harmon gymnasium, the Junior quintet sweeping the "Grads" before them by a count of 29-21 in a worse rout than the score indicates, while the Sophomores took their ancient rivals the Freshmen into camp by a score of 29-22.

BASKETBALL.

The basketball team from the Berkeley Chinese Congregation Mission won the 130 lb. division of the Sunday School Basketball League, playing the same brand of ball that won them the championship last year. Their first game with the First Presbyterian proved their hardest.

Ed Konetchy Will Be Omaha Manager

OMAHA, Neb., Dec. 7.—Ed Konetchy, former major league first baseman, has been signed to manage the Omaha Buffaloes for 1923, according to a telegram received here from Barney Burch, owner, who is wintering in the south. According to the contract, the Omaha club has purchased Konetchy from the Toledo club where he played

CLEVELAND INDIANS RELEASE SOUTHPAW TO OAKLAND TEAM

Art Koehler Traded to Sacramento for Infielder McGaffigan; Pitcher Deacon Jones Goes to Des Moines.

By EDDIE MURPHY.

Walter (Lefty) Mails, who went up to the Cleveland Indians in the American League from the Sacramento Senators in 1920 and who by twirling seven straight wins helped the Indians to win the championship, has been released to the Oakland club, according to word received from Louisville where the Minor League moguls are in session. Mails also helped the Indians to win the world's championship after the close of the season. The Indians won five out of seven games with the Brooklyn Dodgers. In 1921, Mails won fourteen and lost eight games. He did not have such good success with the Indians last season, but Louie Guisto, former Oak and a teammate of Mails on the Indians, claims that Walter will make a good man for the Oaks. If he pitches as well as he did for the Senators in the Coast League, he will be one of the best southpaws in the league.

Mails is satisfied to play ball in the Coast League again. He stated a month or so ago that he would like to pitch for the Oaks. Along with the announcement of Mails coming to the Oaks came the information that Pitcher Gordon (Deacon) Jones has been disposed of to the Des Moines Club in the Western League.

Art Koehler Traded For Marty McGaffigan.

Marty McGaffigan, shortstop and second sacker of the Sacramento club, will be with the Oaks next season, and Art Koehler, catcher, will be among the missing when Ivan Howard leads his athletes into training at Myrtlebeach Hot Springs in the spring. According to word received here today, the Oaks made a trade for McGaffigan at Louisville. McGaffigan is one of the fastest men in the league and a sweet infielder. He is the hustling type of player who injects a lot of pep into the infield. The Oaks were shy on speed last season and McGaffigan should be the man to speed things up a little. Just what position he will be used at has not been settled, but it is believed second base, as Ray Brubaker has stated he would like to be switched back to short if possible. Brubaker played third base the closing month of the season and looked fine around that bag.

McGaffigan a Leading Base-stealer in P. C. L.

McGaffigan has had big league experience. The Senators got him through the Cincinnati Reds in 1919. It was necessary to have him released from the army. In 1920 he was the leading base-stealer of the league and put up a keen race for the honors last season, although he was out for about a month at the start, due to an injured hand. McGaffigan is one of the best infielders in the league when he wants to keep in shape and hustle, and it remains to be seen if Ivan Howard can get the work out of him.

Art Koehler was with the Oaks two seasons. The Oaks claimed him through the waiver route when Walter McCredie tried to ship him

J. Dempsey in South On Vaudeville Tour

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 7.—Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxing champion, was to arrive here today for a few days' rest before opening a vaudeville engagement. Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, will not arrive until Monday, having stopped off at Oakland, Cal., to visit his mother.

Local boxing fans are awaiting developments in a possible meeting between Kearns and Ray Archer, representing Jess Willard, former heavyweight champion, who wants a return bout between Dempsey and Willard.

off the Portland club out of the league in 1920 he was a hitter and one of the hardest working catchers in the league. Last season he was not as consistent a hitter, but was always dangerous.

He was handicapped by a bad knee which he had fixed up since the close of the season. Koehler is a hard worker and should go good with the Senators.

MILLIONS COME TO NATION FROM MINERAL LEASES

New Law Makes Possible Development of Resources That Were Locked Up.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—A substantial beginning of the active development of vast mineral wealth, heretofore locked up in the public

Oil is the foremost product of these lands so far, but Dr. Eain said that when coal resources of the east start to give out, the government owned coal fields in the western states would be of prime importance.

OIL ROYALTIES.

In the fiscal year ended last June, there were produced from government lands other than Indian lands

18,256,362 barrels of oil, of which the Federal government received as royalty 3,616,852 barrels, worth $4,768,397, not including bonuses. In addition, at the end of the year 1949 a month was being received by the government from natural gas leases on public lands in Wyoming. In the Rocky Mountain field alone, there were on government land 336 oil wells, of which 267 were in the Salt Creek, Wyo., field. A hundred other wells are being drilled.

The largest number of producing wells belonging to the government is in the Salt Creek field, where the government holds title to nearly all the land. Such an im-nearly all the land. Such an immense amount of crude petroleum was produced that the capacity of the wells was far greater than the pipe line facilities to transport it.

MONTANA DEVELOPMENT.

In Montana also, development proceeded rapidly and at the end of the fiscal year there were fifty-seven producing wells in the Cat Creek field and nine drilling on government land in the newly discovered and promising Sunburst-Kevin field. Last June a well near the center of the Cat Creek field drilled into a second and prolific oil sand and flowed naturally at the daily rate of 2000 barrels. Another well came in at 2400 barrels. By these developments this field became the richest in the area.

third largest producer in the Rocky Mountain region.

NAVAL ROYALTIES.

These developments are exclusive to activity in naval petroleum reserves. Final adjudication was reached in outstanding contests on such oil lands, leases were granted and drilling arranged. A study made by the Bureau of Mines showed the government lands were losing heavily by drainage and that approximately 22,000,000 barrels had been lost. Of this, on the scale now in effect, the government's royalty would have been worth $8,500,000. To prevent these losses, leases were given to drill on such lands where drainage occurred and the navy is receiving royalties in oil which is converted to fuel oil for naval vessels and shipped at such points as necessity warrants for time of emergency.

The United States government is one of the largest coal land owners in the world, and also holds inportant reserves of phosphate, potash, and other salts. Coal is now being mined in these lands, under lease, in Wyoming, Washington, Montana, North and South Dakota, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico and Nevada. Phosphate rock is being

The Foreman & Clark Guarantee Level OF STYLE

The Foreman and Clark Guarantee Level of Style demands:

New York's newest models the minute they appear in the style center of America.

Produced at once in our own big New York factories, expressed immediately to our big upstairs stores from coast to coast, and ready for the public less than three weeks later, months ahead of ordinary clothing distribution.

This Guarantee Level also demands that every Foreman and Clark store from coast to coast shall show at all times newer models than any other store, a greater style variety than any other store, a larger assortment of patterns and fabric than any other clothing institution.

When a man is styled by Foreman and Clark there is no smarter clothing in America than the suit or overcoat he has on his back.

OF WOOLENS

The Foreman and Clark Guarantee Level of Woolens demands that every Foreman and Clark store from coast to coast shall show at all times newer models than any other store, a greater style variety than any other store, a larger assortment of patterns and fabric than any other clothing institution.

Double warp worsteds. Double filled worsteds. Double warp and double filled worsteds. Class Double A Cheviots. Class Double A, Cassimeres. Gabardines. Serges. Whipcords. Mixtures. Tweeds.

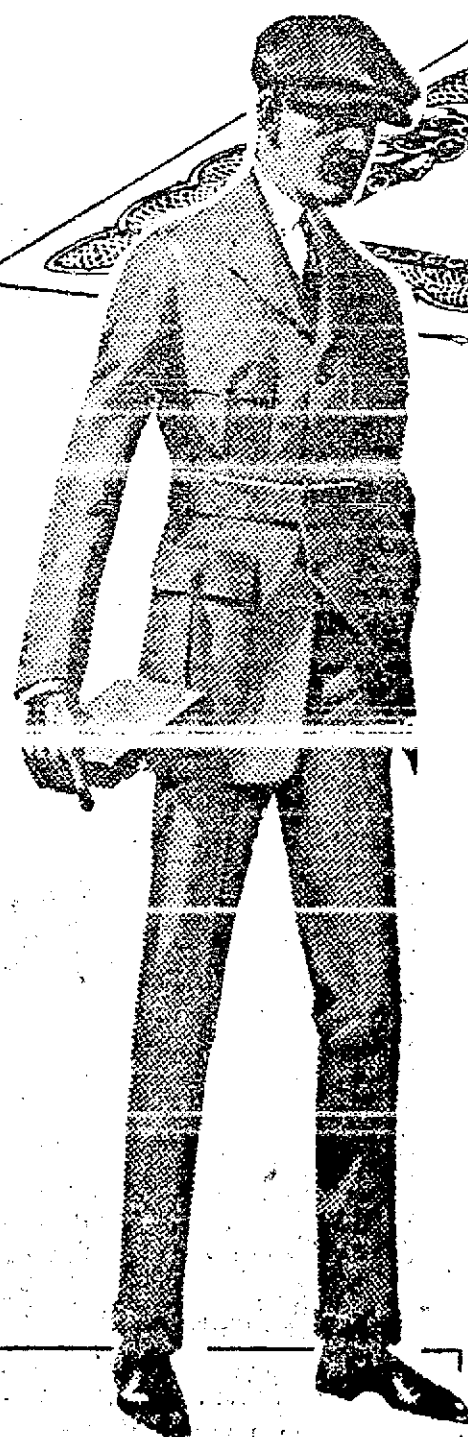

This Guarantee Level of Woolens demands that every Foreman and Clark store from coast to coast shall show at all times newer models than any other store, a greater style variety than any other store, a larger assortment of patterns and fabric than any other clothing institution.

Suitings must be 18, 14 and 16 ounce.

Overcoatings must be 30, 32 and 34 ounce.

and of CONSTRUCTION

Note: These Foreman & Clark prices are guaranteed prices. They are never boosted up or marked down. They will be the same next January as they are today. We give every man the same value, whether he buys at the beginning of the season or the end!

F. & C. "JR." BOYS' CLOTHES
The boys can't wear them out. They're built for rough service. Guaranteed to last. Saving at $7.50, $10, $12.50

The biggest thing Foreman & Clark ever put over in building and selling clothes is the Foreman & Clark Guarantee Level of Style, of Woolens and of Construction! Here is the secret of building 500,000 Garments every year to satisfy 500,000 Buyers—not some of them or most of them—but all of them! It means the same guaranteed value, the same guaranteed saving, the same guaranteed fit, wear, style, shape and wool—whether you buy in New York, Chicago, Kansas City, Los Angeles, or any of our upstairs stores from coast to coast!

No other suits or overcoats within $10 to $30 measure up to this guarantee level!

We want to make one thing perfectly plain: Foreman & Clark believe that selling clothes under a guarantee means nothing unless they are built up to the same guarantee in every process of production. We are clothing manufacturers because we are clothing retailers. . . . the largest in the world. . . . remember that! Our ideas about building clothes came from our experience in selling clothes. . . . nothing else! We operate our own three New York factories and ship these clothes direct to our big upstairs stores because we could not find another manufacturer to build clothes as well as we demand they must be built or as low in cost as we ourselves can build them!

Remember. . . we started from the retail end with just one little upstairs room. Today our yearly sales exceed $10,000,000,000! Foreman & Clark clothes are great because the public taught us how to make them great! No one but the clothing buyers of America could have built this great success in 12 short years.

Read what this guarantee level means in the facts on this page! Ask yourself what other brand of clothes at any price is built up to such standards! See why every Foreman & Clark garment is not only sold under our ironclad guarantee. . . . but built up to it first! Is it any wonder that Foreman & Clark are winning 200,000 new customers in 1922 against every other clothing institution's heavy loss?

CONSTRUCTION

- 1 Pliable Belgian canvas coat body. Instead of stiff cotton canvas.
- 2 Genuine silver Hymo. Instead of loosely woven haircloth.
- 3 14-inch lock-stitched lapel: three fine rows of parallel threads, instead of one or two.
- 4 Combination edge and skirt stay—starts where the average stay stops.
- 5 Duo-stitched, triple-braced pocket-flap, double strength against sagging and tearing.

CONSTRUCTION

- 6 Inverted V-neck coat sketched supporting lower area of skirt as human muscles support the body.
- 7 Counter-stance No. 1 runs up and down strain. Counter-stance No. 2 runs right to left pull. Counter-stance No. 3 runs diagonal or spiral twist.
- 8 Guaranteed pure 100% wool felt. Ask the highest priced custom tailor what this means in shape-holding.
- 9 Entire front separately placed, shaped and built into each garment; not pre-assembled and padded into place.
